Superintendent Hurley said that wider roads, allowing two or more streams of traffic in one direction, as has been suggested, might be the idea solution of the traffic problem, but the psysical and inancial obstacles to the realisation of this plan are very great. The highways in Connecticut compare very favorably with those in other states, according to Mr. Hurley, who believes that driving conditions here can be the finest in the country if all drivers will cooperate in maintaining a reasonable speed under the conditions that exist when they are on the road.

It is believed by the department that Sunday's traffic set the record for the year. All available state policemen were called out to handle the great number of cars on the road, and Superintendent Hurley and other officials of the department were out supervising the work of the patrolmen.

The majority of the lagging automobilists that cause the traffic jams are actuated by selfishness, Mr. Hurley believes. Drivers are out for short pleasure stunts and give no thought to the fact that the man behind may be in a hurry to reach his destination.

WARRIORS HOLD POWER CO. TEAM TO FIVE-INNING 3 TO 3 TIE SCORE

The Eastern Conn. Power, league leaders and the Warriors, battled to a five-inning tie game, Tuesday evening, each team scoring three runs. As the score indicates, the game was close throughout and afforded plenty of thrills to the small gathering of fans.

The Power team expected rather an easy victory over the Warriors, and the strong opposition that the latter offered came as a surprise.

Johnny Greene twirled for the Power team, and after the second inning, held the Warriors scoreless. He allowed five hits in all and fanned four. Couture on the mound for the Warriors was also touched for five hits, while five went out via the strike-out route.

The Warriors showed the Power team that they had a battle on their hands when they scored two runs in the first inning. Hamel led off with a single through short, and went to second on Sadinsky's sacrifice. Kampf grounded to Whitney and Hamel took third. Jackson singled through the infield, scoring Hamel, Jackson stole second, and came all the way home when Shefflot threw wild over the middle bag.

The E. C. P. tied up the contest in their half of the second. Murphy led off with a single through the box. Smith hit to Bill Burns, and when the latter fumbled, Murphy was safe at second, and Smith at first. Goldblatt singled to left, and Murphy came home, Smith going to third. L. Hull hit a long sacrifice fly to Jackson, and Smith scored after the catch. Cimikowski walked, but Whitney closed the inning with a fly to Burns.

The Warriors again took the lead in their half of the same inning, scoring one more tally. Jab Burns singled through short as a starter but was forced at second by Fitzgerald, Fitzgerald took second when Greene threw wild to first in an attempt to catch him off the bag. Courbois fanned but Couture came through with a long hit to center for two bases, scoring Fitzgerald. Hamel fanned for the third out.

In the third, the E. C. P. tied up the battle once more at three runs apiece, where it stayed for the remainder of the contest. Shefflot doubled to left to start hostilities. Dugas walked, and after Murphy had fanned, Smith also walked, filling the bases. Goldblatt again came through with his second hit of the game scoring Shefflot. Couture then settled down and fanned both Hull and Greene.

Goldblatt and Jab Burns led the hitters with two hits out of two times at bat, while Shefflot garnered a double and single out of three trips to the platter.

Joe Jackson featured with a nice catch of Dugas long fly to deep center in the fifth, while Leo Hamel played a nice game at third for the Warriors. The score:

CRUCIAL TWILIGHT LEAGUE GAME SLATED FOR TONIGHT

Leap-year comes every four years. Christmas comes on the twenty-fifth of December. Independence day comes on the fourth of July—and the biggest game of the Twilight league schedule comes tonight, when the Yantic and the Eastern Connecticut Power to give battle at the Duwell field, starting at 6:30 this evening. Since the 24th of July when the game was postponed for some unknown reason, these two teams have avoided this game until finally with the league championship at stake, they must play the game this evening. Should the E. C. P. win they will increase their one game lead so that it will be hard to catch them, but should Yantic inflict the bitter sting of defeat upon the boys from the Power Co., these two teams will become deadlocked. That it will be a desperate battle can be judged from last night's game when the youthful Warriors with nothing to gain, gave the E. C. P. their hardest game of the season, holding them to a tie, three all around.

If a team with nothing at all to gain will fight like this, what will a team with almost an even break such as Yantic will have when Hank Morin cries "Play Ball" tonight, do?

It is almost safe to bet that the fans that throng to the Duwell field this evening will have something to sit around the stove this winter and talk about.

It is rumored that both teams will take advantage of the free for all rule and that players will be imported for tonight's game alone. Whether this is true or only talk, can also be found out tonight, but it is almost certain that several strangers will dig their spikes into the Duwell field tonight.

Provided that the lineups are not changed the rival teams will take the field in the following order:

E. C. P.—Shefflott, Goldblatt, c; Simcox, Dugas, p; E Murphy, 1b; Barry, 2b; Cimikowski, ss; Whitney, 3b; Greene, lf; Hull, rf; Smith, cf.

Yantic—Hamel, c; "Gill" Jones, p; Sweet, 1b; Hoxie, 2b; Normandin, ss; Lamphere, 3b; E. Hoxie, cf; Charlie, rf; J. Lamphere, lf; Rathbone, cf.

An added attraction to the baseball game will be the huge bicycle parade which will go once around and finish on the field. The parade had been planned all summer and should be one of the biggest events of the season.

BUDDIES DROP LOOSE GAME TO NAILDRIVERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 17.—The Buddies threw away a perfectly good ball game in the first inning here tonight as the Naildrivers chalked up a 2 to 1 victory for their ninth consecutive win. The game was called in the middle of the fourth inning because of darkness. The first break came when Joe LaBelle circled the bases on errors. The Buddies made a strong bid for the game in the second inning when Lambert doubled and Jaworski walked with two out but J. LaBelle gobbled up Barrett's hot grounder at second to retire the side. Accept Challenge

The Lions baseball club accept the challenge of the Versailles Cubs for a game Sunday at the Lake street playgrounds at 3 o'clock. Each team has a victory over the other and a fast game is expected.

SECOND GAME OF RIVERVIEW AND SUB BASE SERIES SAT.

The second game of the series between the sub base and the Riverview clubs will take place Saturday afternoon at the State hospital diamond. The first game was played at New London earlier in the year and resulted in a 5 to 4 victory for the Riverview club. Rivalry between these two clubs has always run high and this year it is at fever heat.

The base, anticipating a stiff game, has strengthened during the past few weeks with the addition of Dutch Rafus, an All-Navy second sacker. Harrington and Burdette, two other fast ball tossers, Meska or Wilder will probably do the firing line duty for the sailors while Manager Zemke will send either Tony West or Lefty Dugas to the mound for Riverview. Manager Zemke and Mrs. Zemke are spending a month's vacation at Anderson's Camps but Paul will be on hand Saturday to direct his club. Paul recently caught a three-pound bass which proves he is just as good a fisherman as ball player.

ATHLETICS WIN BOTH GAMES OF DOUBLE BILL

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Athletics opened the battle for second place today by taking a double-header from Cleveland 9-4 and 6-4. The Mackmen had their batting togs on and used up five of Speaker's best hurlers. Both games were cinched with batting flurries in the third inning. Dave Barbee, one of Mack's new outfielders, hit his first big league home run in the second game. French contributed seven of the locals twenty-seven safeties. Burns added two doubles to his total for the season. Score:

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox won an abbreviated five inning game from the Yankees here today, 5 to 2. The Sox knocked Hoyt out of the box in a third of an inning, scoring four runs on four hits, a base on balls and two steals. Chicago stole six bases on Pat Collins, the wet ball being partly responsible. Connally was effective except in the fourth inning, when New York bunched three hits for as many runs. Score:

BURELLE TAKES HIS TEAM OFF FIELD LAST NIGHT

With the score 1 to 1 in the seventh inning, Red Burelle, manager of the Taftville Town team, withdrew his club from the field and Umpire Murphy awarded the game to the Taftville A. A., 9 to 0. Burelle protested one of Mr. Murphy's decisions at home and refused to play unless the umpire reversed it. A sad ending for what was a good ball game.

Centennials Blank G. and E.

The Centennials won a 9 to 0 game from the Gas and Electric in the Jr. Twi league at the Academy campus on Tuesday evening.

There will be no game this evening at the campus in the league.

LAKE ST. TRACK TEAM WINS TITLE IN PLAYGROUNDS MEET

Lake street playgrounds won the final track meet of the season held at the Academy campus on Tuesday afternoon defeating Elizabeth street, Laurel Hill and Jail Hill in a four cornered duel for supremacy. The winners score was 48 points out of a possible 108 while Elizabeth street was second with 42 points. Laurel Hill finished third with 13 points and Jail Hill last with 3 points.

Marshall of Laurel Hill was high point scorer, amassing a total of 13 points for his team. The high lights of the afternoon were 100 yd. dash, 440 yard dash, junior relay, 1-2 mile senior relay. The last event on the afternoon's program provided the greatest thrill for the onlookers, Lake street's relay team nosed out Matt Sheridan's runners in a thrilling 1:57 02 half. Walter Anton running anchor for the Lake street boys turned aside the tide of defeat by overcoming a 20 yard lead and nosing out Elizabeth St. to break the tape a winner.

Angelo of Elizabeth street was the juvenile star of the meet while LaRochelle and Sadinsky did good work. Sadinsky's 220 in the 1-2 mile relay was the fastest performance of the afternoon. In the junior events LaRochelle of Elizabeth street and Babbitt and O'Neill of Lake street were the outstanding performers in the juniors events.

In the girl's events Elizabeth street made first and second in the 60 yard dash for girls and first and second in the baseball throw. In the 30 yard dash for junior girls Lake street took first and second.

The meet was exciting from start to finish, every event being closely contested and the winner could not be decided until the final event had been run off. From Elizabeth street's victory in the junior relay down to Anton's thrilling race in the senior half mile relay the meet was replete with the maximum of interest to the spectator and participant alike.

One of the finest exhibitions of the afternoon was furnished by Angelo, diminutive Elizabeth street sprinter in the 440 yard senior run. He led the field from the gun up to the 300 yard mark where he died to be passed by Ruffo, Marshall and Gauthier.

From this group of athletes which performed at the campus on Tuesday afternoon a relay team or relays teams will be chosen to represent the Norwich playgrounds in a special half mile relay, at the Norwich fairgrounds on the last day of the New London county fair.

PLAYERS ACTED IN GOOD FAITH SAYS HEYDLER

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The attempt of three veteran Pittsburgh National league players to oust Fred Clarke, assistant manager, from the bench was termed "mistaken zeal" to further what they honestly believed to be for the best interests of the club, John Heydler, president of the league, said here tonight after holding extended hearings into the controversy. The league executive added that should the players, Max Carey, Carson Bigbee and Babe Adams leave the team, they "will do so with a good name."

Summing up his findings, the league executive, whose only action was to clear the names of the players, said:

"I cannot go back of the right of the officials of a league club to release, suspend, or ask waivers on any of its players, nor would I wish to do so if I had the right; but it is my opinion after a most complete and thorough hearing of this case that none of the three players——Carey, Bigbee and Adams—has been guilty of wilful insubordination or malicious intent to disrupt or injure his club."

HENRY COHEN, OF NORWICH, SPEEDED PAST STANDING CAR AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 17—(AP)—Henry Cohen, of Boswell avenue, Norwich, was fined $25 in the police court this morning for recklessness in speeding his auto past a trolley car that was receiving and discharging passengers, in the Ocean Beach section of the city. Cohen demurred to the complaint for he was represented by an attorney. The demurrer was overruled and the fine was imposed.

James F. Marshall, a sailor, was similarly fined for a like offense. He was speeding along on Broad street near Morgan street as a street car was discharging passengers. The auto endangered women so that they were forced from the side of the road to escape being run down. A motorman yelled at Marshall but he kept going, not fast enough however to conceal his registration numbers, so he was haled into court.

THREE TAKEN TO HOSPITAL AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 17—An automobile driven by Herbert Maynard, 23, of 29 Viets street, was completely wrecked and two of the three other occupants of the automobile are now patients at Home Memorial hospital, suffering from injuries received. One of them, Mrs. Grace Murphy, 26, of 17 Gilbert street, East Hartford is in a critical condition as the result of a possible fractured skull, following the auto overturning on the New Haven turnpike. At the hospital this afternoon it was stated that Mrs. Murphy's condition is critical and that she has remained in a comatose state since being admitted there. Maynard suffered bruises and scratches and George Potter, 22, of 114 Shaw street, suffered severe lacerations on the head and severe bruises of the body. The fourth passenger, John Dardis, 25, of Waterford escaped with minor bruises and did not require hospital treatment.

The automobile was on its way from [illegible] New London about 8 o'clock and reached a point at Staples Corner, Waterford, which is close to the [illegible] cemetery, when Maynard lost control of the steering wheel. The automobile which was traveling at a high rate of speed, left the concrete road and continued off the road, side-swiping three telephone poles and then crashing through the fence, hurling all the occupants to the ground. Mrs. Murphy lay unconscious beside the highway, while Potter, Maynard and Dardis sought assistance. Passing autoists were haled and Mrs. Murphy and Potter were made as comfortable as possible, being stretched out on the grass by the road, until the arrival of the ambulance, when Mrs. Murphy, Potter and Maynard were rushed to the hospital. The state police are conducting an investigation for the purpose of determining whether Maynard was criminally responsible for the accident.

This evening Officer Johnson, state police barracks, Groton, concluded his investigation and at once went to the hospital where he arrested Maynard on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Maynard's condition was such as to permit his discharge at the hospital and he was brought to police headquarters and locked up in default of a surety on his bond of $5,000 for his presentation in the Waterford town court tomorrow afternoon. Maynard is well known and is employed at the plant of the J. N. LaPointe company, Pequot avenue.

John Foley, when he was arrested for intoxication, gave a bond to appear to answer this morning. He either forgot his engagement or intentionally failed to keep it so his bond was called in police court today and declared forfeited.

Steve Bukas, with a long court record, was sent to jail for his conduct at his home and in the treatment of his family. He got drunk yesterday after he left his work as a freight handler for the Central Vermont Railroad company. Then he went home and abused his family until Mrs. Buska asked for his arrest. It was claimed that she was better off without Steve than she was with him, so he will work for the county for a couple of weeks or more.

George Bates, the husband of Effie Tillman, colored, was fined for intoxication. Effie secured his arrest last night and today hustled about and raised the money to pay his fine instead of letting him work out the amount, with costs in jail.

Frank Reynolds and Percy Openshaw were charged with intoxication and each said he was guilty. They were fined $5 each and then the execution of the judgment was suspended, that they might get out of town.

John J. Woods had a load on at the beach that made him very quarelsome. He would not be pacified till he ran counter to Policeman Gokeli and Sergeant Gaffney and sustained rough handling. He was fined $10 on each of two counts and was turned over to the probation officer to raise the money.

Mrs. John O'Connell and infant son, of 481 Williams street; Mrs. Bridget Ennis, 10 Methodist street; Mrs. Henrietta Martin, 45 Fourth street, and Harry Moore, 84 Waller court, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of Patricia M., infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Donohue, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of her parents, 27 Waller court. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Dr. E. Oliver Winship today sold three building lots on Glenwood road to Herbert B. Prentice. The lots are a portion of the Rev. Father L. W. Riggs estate, which Dr. Winship purchased recently.

Harris D. Kosowsky has sold a house and lot on Trumbull street to Attilio and Guillemini Paolini.

James Sisitsky, of Springfield, Mass., will be presented in the New London police court the latter part of this week charged with violation of the city's parking ordinance at Ocean Beach. The city manager several weeks ago ordered that no automobiles be parked in front of driveways at the shore resort because of ingress to the rear entrances being prohibited as well as egress of the cars, if the parked automobiles were allowed to remain at the driveways. Sunday, Sergeant Samuel Hick discovered Sisitsky's automobile blocking a driveway and ordered the owner into court. Sisitsky returned to Springfield, but this morning his attorney, Louis J. Gordon informed the police that his client would present himself for trial.

The city of New London is to lay more than 2000 feet of sewer in the section of the city known as the Pequot without delay and it is to lay an extension of sewer on Maple avenue a short distance. There is to be laid 103 feet of sewer on Lower Boulevard to Hillside road, 428 feet on Henderson road, 389 feet on Washburne road and 423 feet on Worthington road, all being in the neighborhood of Hillside road which has become one of the most inviting sections of the city. An appropriation of $3,093.56 was made for sidewalks and curbing in various sections of the city.

On motion of Councilor Streeter the name of South Ledyard street was officially given to the highway south of Cedar Grove avenue and extending to Ashcraft road, at the request of residents there. It was pointed out that the tax bills had designated property on South Ledyard street and the owners of the property taxed wanted the name officially given to the highway.

Seventeen permits for building were presented to the council last evening for the construction of dwellings, garages, additions, etc., more than is usually sought from the council at a single meeting. All were granted. The biggest contracts will be awarded by the telephone company for storage buildings, though there were applications made for the erection of a few dwelling and garages.

One banner is to be placed at the junction of Bank street and Montauk avenue and will bear the words "Welcome Firemen." Another is to be placed at Union and State streets.

Damien Beaudreau of Bear Cove, N. S., employed as a laborer by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company, is a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital suffering from a fractured skull, suffered Monday morning. His condition is critical. Beaudreau was at work at the pier of the Central Vermont railroad, East New London where concrete was being mixed in connection with repair work. When the bucket was loaded with concrete one of the supporting chains parted and allowed the bucket to fall on Beaudreau's head.

Harry Campbell, formerly of Norwich, now train dispatcher in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, this city, and James Shields, engine dispatcher, have returned to New London, having spent a fortnight in Nova Scotia on a fishing trip.

New London is to have another in-dustry, which, although starting business on a small scale, gives promise of enlarging within a short time. The new industry, however, is not to start without difficulty or annoyance for its proprietor, Joseph Bernstein, 73 Montauk avenue, for tonight Mr. Bernstein made it known that he anticipates trouble for his help when work is started tomorrow. Bernstein went to the police station and requested police protection for his hands, who will start work at 8 o'clock. Mr. Bernstein stated that he had received information and such as he considered reliable, that his help will be interfered with in an effort to cause them to refrain from working for Bernstein. Bernstein did not state what has prompted the movement to attempt the prevention of his help working, but from another source it was hinted that propaganda tending to injure Bernstein is being circulated by one or more men engaged in a similar line to that which Bernstein intends to manufacture, which is clothing. The new concern will be known as the New London Cloak company and will be located in the Armstrong building, Bank street. Bernstein was formerly proprietor of the City Dye works, selling the business to New York parties several months ago. The latter business turned out a poor investment, for the purchasers as the dye works is now out of business.

This evening a fire was discovered in the basement of the Armour Beef company, off Railroad avenue. Employes were in the place and detected the odor of smoke. Opening the door leading to the basement clouds of smoke entered the main storeroom. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters, Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and the Nameaug Engine company responding. The fire was located about a motor used for the refrigeration plant and was quickly extinguished, little damage resulting.

Funeral services for Mrs. Julia W. Holloway were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at her residence, 41 Montauk avenue, the service being read by Rev. Lucius W. Shey of Mystic. The bearers were Mrs. Holloway's three brothers, Archie, William and John Hayes and her three nephews, Kirkland H. and Carl Wilson and Ralph Hayes. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic.

"Back to Life!", the encore picture presenting Patsy Ruth Miller, David Powell, Mary Thurman and Lawford Davidson at the Broadway theatre Thursday tells the story of a woman whose life was a living death, and of a man who came back from the dead!

Her torment began when she married a man she hated to save from disgrace the name of her husband, who had died in battle. The man's torment began when, after more than a year of operations and impaired memory—of imprisonment in German camps, escapes, etc.—he came back to find his wife had married another and richer man—the man who had once been his rival for her hand.

Unwittingly the woman had committed bigamy. And the man—what was to be his destiny? Must he stand by and watch, from behind his living mask, the unhappiness of the woman who had once—and still was—his? "Back to Life!" is an adaptation of Andrew Soutar's novel, "Back From the Dead."

Palace Theatre to Open Sept. 2nd.

When the Palace theatre, Norwich's palatial amusement palace opens on Sept. 2nd under the direction of the Connecticut River Valley Theatres corporation, it will present to the public of this city one of the most beautiful and well appointed theatres in the country. While the theatre has been closed, a large force of expert decorators, electricians, and theatre designers have been engaged in making all necessary changes to enhance the beauty of the interior and to correct any faults in the original design.

Charles A. Meade, the resident manager of the Palace for the new company has arrived in the city and states that in addition to the new decorative scheme and the new electrical equipment the latest designs in stage hangings and decorations will also be installed in order to allow elaborate prologues and stage presentations to be given on the same scale as presented in the largest cities of the country.

The opening attraction at the Palace under the new management on Sept. 2nd to 4th with a matinee on Saturday, will be that widely known wonder of the theatrical world, "Abie's Irish Rose", presented by the Boston company; this phenomenally successful comedy drama has broken all records throughout the country and the Palace engagement will be the first in this part of the country outside of Boston. Following "Abie's Irish Rose" on Sept. 5th, the Palace will present as it's first motion picture attraction the cinema sensation of the season, "Variety", that has packed the Rialto theatre, New York city, for the past two months, establishing a record never before equalled in the history of that theatre, that has held many of the greatest successes in the motion picture world. The featured players in "Variety" are Emil Jannings, possibly the greatest character actor of which the screen can boast and Lya de Putti, the new vamping of the movies who has set all the critics enthusing over her beauty and remarkable ability as an actress. The feature attraction will be accompanied by an elaborate stage presentation and a program of exceptional short subjects. Special attention is being given to the new Palace orchestra, Walter W. Lang conducting, which is being assembled with a view to pleasing the music lovers and to give each program the proper musical setting.

Mr. Meade, who assumes the management of the Palace is a man of wide experience in theatre direction and the sending of such a man to direct the local house is another evidence of the intention of the new management to give the Norwich public the best entertainment procurable and under capable direction.

Why I Am a Private Nurse

I chose nursing as a life work because I had an intense desire to care for an invalid father, whom I all but idolized, but was too young to know how to care for him. I used to enjoy very much caring for the sick pets on the farm. Then the fear of becoming a selfish woman decided my choice.

It seems to me after years of practice that private duty nursing is an ideal school, wherein to learn how best to serve our community, lead a Christian life, broaden our minds and gain a happier reward than in any other walk of life. We make friends among our patients that are always ready to stand by, we not only give but receive in our service as a private duty nurse.

I suggest to any young woman who is trying to decide what she will do, to take a course in training in our hospital. I know she will feel as I do after a quarter century of nursing that it will pay a hundred per cent.

Breed Theater

All youths are said to sow their wild oats; they choose various ways of making this flaunting last fling. Sometimes they are caught in the intricate mesh of life and are hurled into the depths.

It is a boy and girl who have met such a fate around which the story has been built and woven into screen form by Marshall Neilan. The picture is based on the story, The Gambling Chaplain, by Gerald Beaumont, which was dramatized by George Broadhurst under the title of Wild Oats Lane. It will be shown at the Breed theater today and Thursday, as the main attraction of one of the best double feature programs seen here in a long time.

Figuratively, here is a lane, full of those remnants who have sowed their wild oats and have never been able to regain a firm footing. The girl, who never had a chance, is played by Viola Dana. The boy, weak and a victim of circumstances, is portrayed by Robert Agnew.

The Gilded Butterfly, an absorbing Fox Films production with an underlying moral subtly interwoven into the plot, comes to the Breed theater Wednesday as the second feature.

Beautiful Alma Rubens is the lovely Linda Haverhill of the story, who after being raised in luxury by her father finds herself heavily in debt at his death. Knowing no other manner of living and finding her father's friend willing to loan her money on some worthless bonds, she goes further into debt.

The climax of the story is thrilling, and unexpected—the end entirely satisfactory.

Bert Lytell is co-featured with Miss Rubens in the role of Brian Anestry. Others in the cast are Frank Keenan, Huntly Gordon, Vera Lewis, Herbert Rawlinson, Arthur Hoyt and Carolynne Snowden. John Griffith Wray directed the production.

Charles Dickinson, who has been operating the Chicago-St. Paul-Minneapolis air mail line, cancelled his contract.

MARKET WAS UNEASY

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—(AP)—The "quiet" movement in the stock market was checked, at least temporarily today by heavy selling for both accounts, reflecting uneasiness over the money situation. The increase of over $30,000,000 in brokers' loans reported by the federal reserve bank last week following directly after an increase of $65,000,000 the week before coupled with unconfirmed rumors of an early increase in the Boston Federal Reserve bank re-discount rate, brought a flood of selling orders into the market which carried scores of issues 1 to 5 points below yesterday's final quotations. A brief rally in several issues, some under way, however, at the close. United States Steel common established another record high price at 159 1-4. It then broke to 154 1-4 on publication of an unofficial report on financial tickers that no stock dividend would be declared in either October or January but rallied above 156 at the close. For a net loss of over 2 points on the day. Total sales of this issue were close to 825,000 shares.

Bridge Sheffield Steel broke 7 points to 134 1-2 and then rallied slightly. Bethlehem, Colorado Fuel, Crucible Steel, United States Industrial Alcohol, Ludlum, Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube showed net declines of 1 to 2 1-2 points.

Heavy realizing took place throughout the session in high prices industrials which recently have enjoyed large advances. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe lost 7 points to 132. Du Pont dropped 6 to 301 and then snapped back to 305 1-2. General Motors closed 5 1-4 points lower at 204 1-2, and Air Reduction, American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Loose-Wiles, National Lead and United Cigar Stores showed net losses of 2 points or more, the last named after establishing a new high at 109 1-4. Unconfirmed rumors that big blocks of these stocks were being sold for investment institutions helped to create a bearish sentiment.

Pools were active in a number of issues during the early trading. New peak prices for the year, or longer, were registered by Abitibi Power, Columbian and Straus, Allied Chemical preferred, Collins and Aikman, Douglas and Pectin, General Asphalt preferred and preferred, Gotham Hosiery, Jewel Tea, National Supply, Pierce Arrow preferred, Pullman, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol common and preferred.

Rails yielded with the industrials although special buying was apparent throughout the session in a few issues. A sudden demand for the Van Sweringen stocks stimulated the late rally. Chesapeake and Ohio advancing over 4 points to a new record price at 150 3-4 after having sold down to 146. Pere Marquette common moved up 2 1-2 points to a new maximum at 103 1-2. Rock Island also attained a new top price at 62 3-8. Atlantic Coast Line broke 7 points to 218 1-2 and then rallied to 221, while New York Central was among the dozen or more issues to show net declines of a point or more.

Active wheat futures broke another cent or more a bushel on heavy selling attributed to northwestern interests. Cotton closed 11 to 15 points net lower on reports of extensive insect damage being offset, in part, by heavy rains in the southwest where moisture was needed. Raw sugar was unchanged and refined prices moved within narrow and irregular limits.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Several interesting movements took place in ordinarily inactive currencies. Spanish pesetas rallied about 25 points to 12 1-2 cents bringing them within a cent of the year's high mark. Japanese yen crossed 48 cents, the highest price for years while Mexican silver exchanges broke to new low levels for the year. Demand sterling was slightly easier around $4.85 and French francs were firmer around 3 3-4 cents.

Try Magnesia for Stomach Trouble

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour Gassy Stomach.

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and know these things will not cure their trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated of heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

HORACE CLIFT AGAIN PRESIDENT OF 26TH REGIMENT CONN. VOLS.

Horace Clift, Mystic, veteran of Co. K, was re-elected president of the 26th Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers of the Civil war at the 63rd annual reunion of the 26th, held at Buckingham Memorial Tuesday. Nine veterans of the regiment were present, and there were also present honorary members and guests from various sections of the state.

At 12:30 o'clock the business meeting was called to order by President Clift, the meeting opening with the repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison. President Clift then addressed the gathering as follows:

Comrades, Ladies and Gentlemen: The passing of another year has brought the annual reunion of the Twenty-sixth Regiment. Since the last meeting, six of the comrades who were with us then have passed away. It is a reminder of a limit to life, yet does not shake our faith in Him who holds our destiny in His hands.

As we meet here our thoughts naturally go back to the war period. We well remember the long seige of Port Hudson, in which the Twenty-sixth Regiment took part in all the battles. With shot and shell, and bursting bombs, and comrades falling around us, few escaped without a wound. Some of us were with a wounded comrade during his last hours, and "saw in death his eyelids close clamly as to a night's repose, like flowers at set of sun."

Those events occurred sixty-three years ago, and changes have come. The survivors of those who were then enemies, when they now meet, they meet as friends, realizing that each side to that conflict had a foeman worthy of their steel. By the kindness of members of Sedgwick Post, the present owners of this building, we are permitted to meet in the home of William A. Buckingham, governor of Connecticut during the War of the Rebellion.

This city, noted for its historical persons, male and female, is well called The Rose of New England. We have present with us the mayor of the city.

The corresponding secretary Berian B. Champlin of New Haven, a 97 year old veteran, submitted his report as follows:

Comrades: We have met today to keep our 63d annual reunion. We have now 23 of the old Regiment living and I think the youngest has passed the 80th milestone. Old age and distance keep many of our old comrades away who would be glad to be with us today, so if we get 10 comrades together we are doing well. It is true we were what some called "short term men," but we have kept a record that our friends can well be proud of—815 men in the regiment a few days less than 4 year's service; 52 killed; 146 wounded. Eighty-four died while the service from disease contracted there. They gave their lives for the country as much as if they had been killed by a Reb bullet.

The night of the surrender of Port Hudson orders were read saying the column which was to march inside to receive the formal surrender the next day would be formed of one regiment from each brigade and the 26th, C. V. regiment would report at headquarters at sunrise the next day. When the column was formed the 26th was given second place of honor.

The following deaths have been reported to me since the last reunion:

R. P. Williams, Co. A., died Oct. 3, 1922.

L. O. Smith, SM. died Oct. 12, 1925, aged 79 years.

J. W. Bogue, Co. A. died May 25, 1926, aged 90 years.

C. H. Niles, Co. H, died March 12, 1926, aged 84 years.

G. Hammond, Co. G, died May 13, 1926.

J. Peabody, Co. A, died June 6, 1926, aged 80 years.

John C. Smith, Co. A, May 14, 1926, aged 85.

M. A. Potter, Co. G, Aug. 8, 1923.

I have received letters of regret from Comrade Fuller Douglass, Latham, Shea, Morley and St. John Harvey.

Mr. Champlin also submitted the financial report which showed all bills paid and a balance in the bank. As acting secretary, Mr. Champlin read the minutes of the previous reunion meeting held Aug. 17, 1925.

President Clift appointed Nathan A. Newbury, Chauncey Morse and Alvah Morgan, a nominating committee and the committee, after a brief deliberation recommend that the officers be re-elected.

The report was accepted and the officers were re-elected as follows:

President, Horace Clift.

Recording secretary and treasurer, to be appointed by the president and corresponding secretary.

Corresponding secretary, Beriah B. Champlin.

Vice-presidents, Alva Morgan, H. C. Wright, J. Morley.

A collection taken up at the meeting for the expense of the reunion amounted to $24.35.

The veterans extended a vote of thanks to Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R. for the use of their rooms during the reunion. To Mr. Champlin, secretary and treasurer, it was also voted to extend a vote of thanks, and this action was greatly appreciated by Mr. Champlin who will soon reach the century mark in life. A beautiful basket of gladioli donated by Mrs. Stanley of the Gladioli farm, Derry hill, was also highly appreciated.

Under the head of new business Sec. Champlin stated that Arthur L. Peale, secretary and treasurer of the 18th Regiment, in behalf of the regiment, suggested that the 26th and the 18th hold a joint reunion next year. The suggestion was approved by the meeting.

Odell D. Tompkins, a summer resident of Mystic, with home address in New York, and a guest at the reunion, spoke briefly following the business session. He said in part:

We are glad to be present, even though it be only as observers of the event. How significant an event it is—63 years after you were discharged from service of your country you were able—some of you, many from distant points have come back to meet. But to meet for what?

For a word—a handshake—yes—but for something more than that. It's a refreshing, stimulating and inspiring thing to come in here from the busy street, to and from business, engrossed in the little game of profit and loss.

For men in late quiet years of life show by your presence your loyalty to a day, loyalty to your regiment, that meant neither gain, place, power, or honor to any of you—only sacrifice.

I hope that a boy's heart will bring back you "buddies" here for many years to come.

Orrin M. Price, commander of Sedgwick Post and an honorary member of the 26th extended an invitation to the 26th Regiment to hold their next reunion in Buckingham Memorial. Commander Price brought out the fact that his regiment was only three miles from the state line and that communications were always going on between them especially in the 48-day siege.

At one o'clock adjournment was taken to the dining room when the members of Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, under the direction of Mrs. Florence Dean, served the following menu:

Fruit Cocktail
Mashed Potatoes Tomato Salad
Green Corn Roast Beef
Brown Gravy
Rolls Apple Pie
Watermelon
Coffee Cigars

The veterans and their guests were escorted into the dining room by four color bearers, Mrs. Clara Burke, Mrs. Mary Austin, Mrs. Lillian Brewster and Mrs. Annie Turner, Mrs. Lena Pukallus played a piano solo. The tables were decorated in national colors, flowers and other patriotic trimmings.

Those who assited Mrs. Dean were: Mrs. Clara Burke, Mrs. Elizabeth Risley, Mrs. Annie Turner, Mrs. Lydia Perkins, Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom, Mrs. Jennie Newbury, Miss Lola Bell Roath, Mrs. Nellie Bailey, Mrs. Lula Frazer, Mrs. Elizabeth Mackey, Mrs. Lillian Brewster, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanton, Mrs. Frances Copeland, Mrs. Hattie Thatcher, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Mary Austin, Mrs. Louis Woodward, and Mrs. Elizabeth Bell.

Mayor Milo R. Waters and Arthur L. Peale, present as guests, briefly addressed the meeting.

Mayor Waters expressed his appreciation to the gathering for the opportunity to be present and extended an invitation to the veterans to hold their reunions in this city regularly. He lauded the soldiers who served in the war, men, he said, who risked their life, property, etc., in time of the crisis of the country.

Two boxes of cigars, gifts from ex-Mayor Herbert M. Leroh and from the Sedgwick post, Sons of Veterans were received and were greatly appreciated.

Letters of regret were received by Secretary Champlin from the following veterans:

From J. J. Jerome, Yucca, Ariz.: Your welcome favor of July 24th in regard to the 63d annual reunion was duly received.

Thanks for your kind attention. Please say to the comrades then present that even if I cannot be there in person my thoughts will be with them and my best wishes are their for many returns of that memorable day.

With regards to yourself and them, I remain, yours sincerely,

From St. John Harvey, Mystic: Your letter received and was glad to hear from you. I regret to say that it will be impossible for me to be at the reunion at Norwich this year on account of an automobile accident at Old Mystic, April 3, which was no fault of mine. I was seriously hurt by an automobile which was run by a man whose name is Morgan. He said that his brakes did not work right. My physician, A. H. Meyers, M. D., Mystic, Conn., thought at first it would be impossible for me to recover. Some of the bones in my left foot and leg were broken besides other serious injuries but I have recovered enough to be able to get around a little but would not be in any condition to go to Norwich at present.

Enclosed $1 for you to use where needed.

From G. A. Latham, Chattanooga, Tenn.: That dear old invitation asking for my presence at the 63d annual reunion of that grand old 26th Regiment of Connecticut Volunteers on Aug. 17th. It is with much sorrow that I am unable to attend, but all the same I will remember you all on that special occasion, and may the gathering be one of interest to all present. My best regards to all.

From Michael Shea, Troy, N. Y.: Thank you very much for your kind invitation to attend the re-union of the grand old 26th regiment.

Old age and infirmity will not permit me to partake of the pleasure that surely would be mine could I make the trip, however, convey to the other members who are still with you that they have my very best wishes for an enjoyable day and the good wish that the Almighty will spare all of us for a few years more, at least.

Kindest personal regards to yourself and with pleasant memories of the past.

From J. H. Morley, Boston, Mass.: Am very sorry to inform you that I can't meet you in Norwich on the 17th of August. Am not well. My legs are very bad. Also my eyes.

The comrades present were: Horace Clift, Co. K; Orrin M. Price, 13th Conn. Volunteers; John C. Taber, 26th Conn.; J. C. Benjamin, Co. I; John Irish, Co. C and I; John Service, Co. K, 18 C. V.; Chauncey Morse, Co. F, 26 C. V.; B. B. Champlin; Alvah Morgan, 26 C. V.; Nathan A. Newbury, Co. K, C. V.

VETERANS MAY CONTINUE VOCATIONAL TRAINING

An opportunity to continue with vocational training under the guidance of the United States Veterans' bureau is offered to Connecticut war veterans who had started such training before June 30, it is announced by Major Thomas J. Bannigan, regional manager. This is in accordance with one of the provisions of the amendments to the World War Veterans' Act of 1924, as enacted at the last session of congress.

The new provisions will make it possible for the rehabilitation of those now in placement training to continue until January 1, 1927, while the time limit for those receiving institutional training is extended to July 2, 1928, July 2 of this year had been the date formerly set for the completion of all training work.

During the past fiscal year 267 Connecticut veterans, who, for various reasons were incapacitated for their pre-war occupations, completed vocational training under the direction of the veterans' bureau and were placed in gainful employment. This brings the total number rehabilitated in Connecticut since the war to 1,615.

The result obtained by the training work and the method of handling the problem are briefly outlined in the following statement made recently by Major Bannigan.

"Those rehabilitated in Connecticut during the fiscal year July 1, 1925, to July 1, 1926, numbered 276. Of these 73 per cent were trained in trade and industrial pursuits, 10 per cent in commercial, 8 per cent in professional and 6 per cent in agricultural. The preponderance in the trade and industrial category is quite consistent with the fact that Connecticut is primarily an industrial state. The average post-training wage of these veterans is $30 per week and in the aggregate they represent a total earning power and wage value of approximately $400,000 a year. While vocational re-establishment has been the primary aim of our rehabilitation activities, there have also accrued to the rehabilitated veterans, as collateral benefits, social and economic improvements that will have a salutary effect not only upon themselves and their families, but also on their communities.

"There were some whose training it was necessary to discontinue without being able to bring about a condition of rehabilitation. These numbered 29, approximately one to every nine of those rehabilitated. In half of these cases of discontinuance, however, the cause lay in the fact that the veteran's physical condition became such that training was not feasible. Those whose training was discontinued for other reasons than physical were given every reasonable opportunity and every fair consideration and it was only when it became evident that their aptitude, conduct and lack of suitable progress were such as not to warrant further efforts by the bureau toward their vocational rehabilitation that their training was permanently discontinued.

"In our administration and supervision of rehabilitation activities we stressed not only the matter of assuring suitable training in the essential units of each veteran's selected occupation, but also laid particular emphasis on prior arrangements for employment after completion of his training. This was accomplished mainly through the process of adjustment into employment. The veteran, while undergoing practical experimental training, developed, even a considerable time before his training was completed to a point where his service and the work he produced had some actual value. The point was stressed with the trainer, who was induced to begin paying the trainee a small wage."

It is said that in the average case of men given training the salary received in the position secured as a result of the training is 55 per cent larger than that received before the war. Mr. Gridley, chief of the rehabilitation division, pointed out that in every instance possible some occupation was found for the veteran in which he could use physical and occupational abilities gained in his previous employment. In one case cited a man who had been incapacitated for that work by wounds was given training for the position of automobile salesman and now earns $10,000 a year, as compared with the $27 a week he earned before the war.

During the period of training the men are given a government allowance sufficient to cover their living expenses. This continues until two months after the training period has closed. In some cases the veteran is able to command a small salary for his work during the latter part of the training period.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service was led by Rev. Mr. Whitten, in the absence of Miss Fanny Edwinston. How Can We Prevent Waste? was the topic. Scripture references, Luke 15:11-32; John 6:1-13.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Carlisle Botham (Dorothy Louise Hansen) who were married recently, by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey at the Norwich Town Congregational parsonage, are to reside at 54 Hedge avenue, Norwich.

In observance of the birthday of his mother, Mrs. John Heath, of Elm avenue, Frederick Heath, of Groton, paid her a visit Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Norwich Town, had as guests Sunday, the former's relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Gremley and the latter's mother, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd, who is sister of Dr. Lamb, all of Mystic. Recently Dr. and Mrs. Lamb motored to Mystic to spend the day with their relatives.

A little girl about six years old, residing on Town street, Sunday afternoon about four o'clock, attempted to cross the street and looking in one direction, failed to look the opposite way s stepped directly in the path of an approaching automobile, which was proceeding up the hill at Harland's corner. The driver of the touring car, a woman, instantly swerved to the center of the highway missing the child by a narrow margin. The child's mother who rushed to the girl's aid, spoke in commendatory words of the driver, for her quick action.

FORECASTS BUMPER APPLE CROP IN CONNECTICUT

Bumper apple crops for Connecticut are heralded for this year by V. A. Sanders and C. D. Stevens, statisticians for the New England Crop Reporting Service. They report that the condition of commercial apples in Connecticut August 1, was the best of any New England state, being 77 per cent of normal. Maine was lowest with 60 per cent. Although Connecticut is not expected to produce the largest crop in New England, it is claimed that its product will be the best. On August 1 it was forecast that it would amount to 274,000 barrels against 300,000 in 1926 when the production was higher but the quality poorer than that expected this year. Better spraying and introduction of advanced methods of culture are given as causes of the improved quality.

During the last five years the average production in Connecticut amounted to only 192,600 barrels.

The statisticians say that the condition of the hay crop is 83 per cent. of normal in New England and estimate a harvest of 4,167,000 tons in the section as against 4,631,000 in 1925. They say that indication afor the grape harvest are "encouraging" and that the peach situation is in some places "fair" and in others "good." The Connecticut potato crop, they report, is 81 per cent of normal, or about 7 per cent. lower than last year.

POETRY

Sea-Sleep

Sleep, sleep, sleep
In thy folded waves, O Sea!
Till the quiet breathings creep,
With a low-voiced melody,
Out of the glimmering deep.
For sleep is the close of life;
'Tis the end of love, and its birth;
'Tis the quieting of strife,
And the silencing of mirth.
Hush and sleep!

Close thou thy lids, O Sea,
On palaces and towers;
Dream on deliciously
Deep in thy dreamland bowers
Waken us not again,
Beating upon our shore,
Rousing the strife in men
With full and thunderous roar.

Drop from thy crested heights
To still repose and rest;
Fold us in hushed delights,
With dream-flowers from thy breast;
Not as the poppies are
But lilies cool, that weep
Tears that as kisses scar
To soothe for slumbers deep.

Hush thou the little waves,
Hush with a low-voiced song,
Till the Under-Deep that laves
Thy lucid floor lifts strong;
Till the Under-Word is borne
To this weary world of ours,
And lives, for love that mourns,
Fold as the dew-dipped flowers.

Rest thou in time's unrest,
In the bloom-bell and the brain;
Then loose, all silver tressed,
The streamings of thy mane;
Gliding, dissolving so,
That we at peace may be,
Sleep in thy silver glow,
Thy azure calm, O Sea;
Make lullaby!

—Thomas Lake Harris.

The Garden of Shadow

Love heeds no more the sighing of the wind
Against the perfect flowers; thy garden's close
Is grown a wilderness, where none shall find
One strayed, last petal of one last year's rose.

O bright, bright hair! O mouth like a ripe fruit!
Can famine be so nigh to harvesting?
Love, that was songful, with a broken lute
In grass of graveyards goeth murmuring.

Let the wind blow against the perfect flowers,
And all thy garden change and glow with spring;
Love is grown blind with no more count of hours
Nor part in seed-time nor in harvesting.

—Ernest Dowson.

London's first cafeteria has been a success. It has a seating capacity of 500. The cafeteria is in the shopping district, and has proved popular with women.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN CRASH OF BIG FRENCH CROSS-CHANNEL PLANE

Nine Persons Were Seriously Injured—Airplane Carrying Thirteen Passengers, Seven of Them Americans, Became Lost in Fog—Crashed to Earth Near Folkstone, England—Only a Few Farm Hands Witnessed the Disaster—Scene Described as Terrible—Robert Blaney of Boston Was Killed.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(AP)— A big French cross-channel airplane, carrying 13 passengers, seven of them Americans, became lost in the fog which enveloped the English coast today and crashed to the earth near Folkestone. Two passengers are reported to have been killed, nine seriously injured and three slightly injured, both pilot and mechanician the latter injured also. The plane was flying from Paris to the London air station at Croydon.

The names of the American passengers as reported from Paris are: Robert Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hazards, Robert Blaney, Miss Nell Wick, Laurence Strohl and Mrs. Edna Troarn.

The names of the dead and injured are not yet known. Nine of the injured were conveyed to Victoria hospital at Folkestone, two of them are reported in dangerous condition. The two other injured passengers were taken to Sandage hospital.

Only a few farm hands witnessed the disaster. Owing to the fog the plane was forced to descend to a low level, for its bearings. Approaching Romney marshes, it appeared to have engine trouble. It dropped rapidly, struck the top of a barn and toppled over on to a haystack. Both pilot and mechanician were pinned beneath the forepart of the machine, which was torn away.

H. G. Wilson, the occupant of the farm where the plane crashed, described the scene as a terrible one. The rescuers had to force open the doors of the plane; they found those inside held by the wreckage. Several were bleeding and were evidently badly injured. One apparently was dying. But all showed remarkable pluck, and most of them were cheerful.

TWO AMERICAN WOMEN AMONG THE INJURED

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Two of the American passengers on the wrecked airplane, Miss Elizabeth Bennett and Miss Saiden, are being treated at the Sandgate hospital, according to the Daily Mail's advices. They received cuts in the face and arms, as well as other injuries.

(Neither of these names appears on the passenger list as reported from Paris).

The names of the Americans, as taken from the passenger list at Paris, are Robert Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs Stanley Hazard, Miss Nell Wick, Laurence Strohl and Mrs. Edna Troarn. Their home addresses are not given.

The Victoria hospital at Folkestone, to which nine of the injured were transferred, reported late tonight that all of the injured were in critical condition.

NINE OF THE INJURED IN CRITICAL CONDITION

FOLKESTONE, England, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The officials at Victoria hospital, where nine of those injured in the airplane crash are being treated, said late tonight that all are in critical condition, and that the hospital staff was fully occupied with operations. It was impossible to give the names of the victims before morning.

American Killed

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The American passenger killed in the airplane crash, the Daily Mail says, is Robert Blaney of Mount Vernon street, Boston, Mass.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Robert Blaney reported killed in the crash of a London-Paris passenger airplane today, was the son of Dwight Blaney, noted water color artist of this city. He had graduated from Harvard university this year and had spent the last two months abroad, planning to return shortly.

ALL LEADERS OF MEXICAN REVOLT HELD FOR BAIL

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Gen. Enrique Estrada, former Mexican secretary of war and commander of an insurrecto band intercepted by federal and county officers near here last Sunday night, together with members of his staff was arraigned today before Federal Commissioner Ryan on a charge of violating the neutrality laws of the United States.

Bail for Estrada was fixed at $20,000, while Aurelio Sepulveda, former Mexican army officer, was ordered held in $10,000. Bail for other members of Estrada's staff ranged from $1,000 to $5,000. As yet none of the prisoners has furnished bond. Preliminary hearing in all cases was set for September 9.

Escorted by a detachment of marines, the rank and file of Estrada's army was moved this morning from Fort Rosecrans to the marine corps base here, where they will be confined until the date of their hearings, unless they furnish bail.

Details of plans to equip Gen. Estrada's expedition against lower California with an armored motor transport division, were given by department of justice officers in Los Angeles today.

Following information that a motor truck was being armored in a Hollywood garage, federal operatives learned that the garage proprietor, Herbert Sanburn, had been commissioned by a man giving the name of Benjamin Rogo, to equip four trucks with armor plate which had been given fire tests at Fort Arthur at San Pedro.

Sanburn said Rogo, who appeared to be plentifully supplied with money, reported the trucks were to be used in gold transportation service in Mexico by the Colorado Mining company. One truck, work on which was rushed at Rogo's instance, was delivered fully equipped last Sunday at 5 a. m. It was Sunday night that Estrada and his "army" were taken into custody by American authorities.

TESTIMONY AT HEARING FOR CARPENDER AND STEVENS

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Testimony that James Mills, husband of Eleanor Mills, chorister found murdered beside Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, had said, before learning of the double slaying, that Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, the rector's widow, had told him Dr. Hall was "in South Jersey doing institutional work," was given today at the hearing for Henry Carpender and Willie Stevens, charged with the murders. Mills previously testified Mrs. Hall told him her husband had disappeared.

Three detectives testified that in an examination of terrain near the crabapple tree on the Phillips farm, near New Brunswick, in checking the story of Mrs. Ane Gibson, woman pig raiser who pointed out Carpende and Stevens as men she had seen at the supposed scene of the murder the night of Sept. 14, 1922, they found evidence that a mule had been tied to a sapling.

The hoof prints of an unshod mule were photographed, and evidence of an amial having been tied to one of the saplings was discovered. They did not make their examination until more than a month after the crime was supposed to have been committed. The photographer who took the pictures said he no longer had the plates, but was instructed to make further search.

ALLEGED CATTLE FRAUDS UNCOVERED IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Aug. 18—(AP)—New regulations aimed to stop alleged cattle frauds uncovered in the western part of the state were approved by the governor's council today after starling stories of deals in diseased cattle had been presented.

Witnesses declared that cattle condemned for tuberculosis were bought by dealers for $10 or $12 a head and shipped west where they again were tested and condemned, with a resulting indemnity total of $50, $25 from the state and $25 from the federal government. The same cattle were often resold to slaughterhouses or even picked up again for state tests in another section, it was said.

The testimony resulted in part of a change in the animal industry division's rules under which an owner submitting cattle for a tuberculin test must, in addition to other information, "state where, when and from whom and atw hatp rice the herd, or individual members of it, were purchased."

Purport of Kellogg's Plattsburgh Speech

Dispels Idea That U. S. Will Attempt to Set Up an Independent Naval Limitation Conference.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Secretary Kellogg's Plattsburgh speech, summarizing work of the Geneva preliminary arms limitation conference and setting out American policy in emphatic language, is given more than surface significance in official circles here. There can be no question that it was delivered with a definite purpose as the state department has cabled in full to all American diplomatic missions in major capitals the compete text of the address dealing with the Geneva situation.

The obvious purpose of the secretary was to answer once and for all published reports from Europe that the Washington government might withdraw from the Geneva gathering with its league of nations aspect and attempt to set up an independent supplementary naval limitations conference. The less obvious but equally clearout meaning read into the address is that the secretary intends to make it clear to the world that the United States is not to be held accountable for any failure at Geneva to arrive at practical results which promise reduction of armaments.

Before he completed the final draft of his speech, Mr. Kellogg had not only his conferences with President Coolidge but had received first hand reports from members of the American delegation who had returned from Geneva and could tell him or their conclusions as to motives behind some of the French or other maneuvers in the experts committee. He reflected the hope of these delegates that eventually tangible results will flow from the Geneva conference if it can be kept from frittering its opportunity away in idle speculation as to impossible and impracticable limitation formula.

The Washington government has had experience in trying to formulate an all-embracing unit by which to measure relative naval strength. It tried to do that in advance of the Washington conference but failed. As a result the direct, practical proposals based on tonnage made by Secretary Hughes were enfolved.

The French and some other delegations at Geneva have been considering the far more difficult problem of finding a basis for limitation in a formula that would cover land and sea forces, aircraft and even national economic resources and possibly man power. That the Washington government views such suggestions as almost frivolous in that they can only lead away from actual reductions in armament, Mr. Kellogg has made plain. It sets no value whatever in attempting to prescribe an armaments cure-all like an old fashioned "shot gun prescription" such as country doctors fed patients with undetermined complaints.

The address may well have the effect of stimulating the Geneva commission to elimination from its discussion of such general theories as are without practical value at this time. The American demand for results, voiced by Mr. Kellogg, hardly can be wholly ignored.

And in one other respect his remarks have considerable significance. They leave the door wide open for American initiative in seeking a separate conference among the great naval powers to widen the scope of the Washington limitations agreements should the Geneva gathering adjourn without taking some constructive and hopeful action toward that and other phases of the problem of cutting down military overloads.

MacDONOUGH MEMORIAL DEDICATED AT PLATTSBURGH

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., Aug. 18 (AP)—The Thomas MacDonough memorial, erected in honor of the American naval commander who defeated a British fleet in the battle of Lake Champlain, 113 years ago, was dedicated with elaborate ceremony today. Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg delivered the dedicatory address, and high officers of army and navy joined with representatives of state and municipalities in tribute to one of the outstanding figures in American naval history.

Secretary Kellogg, after recounting briefly the story of the Lake Champlain engagement, devoted the greater part of his address to a discussion of the Geneva conference for the limitation of armaments, and denied unqualifiedly that any withdrawal from the Geneva discussions was contemplated by the Washington government. Mr. Kellogg adhered closely to the prepared manuscript of his address. He made no reference to the Mexican situation.

Secretary Kellogg was roundly applauded when, in referring to the fact that there had been more than a century of peace between Great Britain and the United States since the battle of Lake Champlain, he said: "It is inconceivable that anything can bring these nations again into the conflict of war."

Explosion at Army Ammunition Depot

Magazine Said to Contain a Billion Rounds — Fifteen Miles From Portsmouth, Va.—No One Killed.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 18.—(AP)—A magazine said to contain a billion rounds of small arms ammunition exploded at the army ammunition depot at Pig Point, on the James river, 15 miles from Portsmouth, tonight at 7:10 o'clock.

Nobody was killed or injured, hasty check was said to have shown, the chief damage being to the magazine, which was destroyed. Fire apparatus from Portsmouth aided the depot Garrison in fighting the flames.

An hour after the explosion, the fire was believed to be under control. Members of the families of civilian employes at the depot were rushed out of the danger zone and the garrison was prepared to desert the station if the flames threatened to spread to nearby magazines.

The explosion, like that at Lake Denmark, N. J., a few weeks ago, was blamed on lightning, although the blast did not occur until several hours after an electrical storm had passed over the depot. The theory was that the lightning had set a slow fire. The fact that practically the entire personnel of the depot was attending the nightly exhibition of moving pictures and were thus drawn away from the danger zone, was responsible for the absence of any casualties.

CLOSING ARGUMENTS IN GAINES MURDER TRIAL

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 18—(AP)—The state's purpose in introducing testimony concerning an "unnatural affection" between Wallace Gaines and his 22 year old daughter, Sylvia, whom he is accused of choking and beating to death June 16, was explained today by Deputy Prosecutor Peyser, who summed up the state's case in the trial of Gaines on a first degree murder charge.

"The purpose of introducing evidence of unnatural relations betwen the defendant and his daughter, was not to prejudice the jury, but to show motive," Peyser declared.

The jurors in the trial were instructed today by Presiding Judge Jones to find the defendant either guilty or not guilty of murder in the first or second degree. Should Gaines be found guilty of first degree murder, the court directed the jury to determine whether the penalty should be life imprisonment or death.

Defense attorneys rested their case last night and it was indicated the defendant's fate might rest with the jury late tonight.

Continuing his summation of the state's case, Mr. Peyser said: "This murder is not like one committed in a saloon when the cause develops in a quarrel within a few minutes, but it is one in which the motive grew from the time when the defendant's relations with his daughter began, for it could lead to but one thing—this murder."

"It is not necessary for the state to show that there was any brooding or contemplation of the act long in advance. A matter of two or three seconds is sufficient to show premeditation," Peyser said.

"Circumstantial evidence is more reliable than direct evidence of eye witnesses," Peyser said. "Circumstances are inanimate and never lie. Witnesses for the state are a fair cross section of the citizenry and have no motive but to tell the truth. Always in a case there is on the other side members of the defendant's family.

"Can you imagine a wife, mother or son telling the whole truth when it will convict some member of her family"? The principal witnesses for the defense are the defendant, his wife, his brother and relatives and employes of the brother. Their testimony and creditibility should be carefully weighed.

"When Mrs. Gaines shot herself, Sylvia and her father had no sympathy for the stricken woman. They left her to go for an automobile ride."

Peyser recalled quarrels between Gaines and Sylvia.

WOMEN INFORMED HOW TO GROW OLD GRACEFULLY

DURHAM, N. H., Aug. 18—(AP)—Don't be afraid to get married—married women live longer than spinsters, Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the life extension institute, advised women today. Time does not cause old age, he declared, speaking at the farmers' and homemakers' conference at the university of New Hampshire. He offered a health recipe for retaining youth, said that many young women's faces would benefit by scrubbing, and questioned whether modern women are healthier than those of a generation ago. Of 100,000 women examined in 12 years by the institute, he said, not a perfect one was found.

"There is no short cut to youth and beauty," Dr. Fisk said, taking as his subject "growing old ungracefully." "These prizes must be worked for and it is entirely consistent that they should be won by fundamentally sound methods of living."

"Limit night life," he urged. "Take daily setting up exercises and try to expose a good portion of the skin each day to the direct sunlight. Keep worry and fear and apprehension out of your life as far as possible.

"Have a few kindly thoughts daily for members of your own sex. Extend these with discrimination to members of the opposite sex.

"Have a yearly examination and have your physical defects as revealed by such examination promptly corrected.

"Don't be afraid to get married. Married women live longer than spinsters though not much longer. They haven't the long lead over single women taht married men have over bachelors.

"Avoid, as Lord Bacon expressed it, 'anger fretting inward.' Cultivate serenity. It makes no wrinkles.

"Forget your birthdays. Do not live by the calendar but live according to your physical state, yielding when you have to with courage and philosophy if limitation of your activities is wise and necessary.

"Finally, go to the beauty parlor for some finishing touches if you must, but do not let such places aid in fooling yourself as to wha tis going on beneath the surface in the way of preventable or curable deterioration."

$8,506,802 PAID STATE BY MOTOR VEHICLE OWNERS

Amount Paid Directly or Indirectly for Fiscal Year Ended June 30, Represented an Increase of $1,794,476.64 Over the Amount Contributed the Previous Year—Doubling of the Gasoline Tax is Responsible for Most of the Increase During the Past Year.

HARTFORD, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Owners of motor vehicles in Conecticut contributed $8,506,802.33 directly or indirectly to the state revenues during the fiscal year ended June 30. This represents an increase of $1,794,476.64 over the amount contributed during the preceding year and is a gain in ten years of $6,711,325.69, being that much greater than the amount received from motor vehicle sources by the state in 1917.

These figures are shown in a comparative financial statement for the past ten years on the state's income and expenditures which has been prepared by Deputy Treasurer Thomas H. Judd and will become a part of the annual report of Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers to the governor.

Doubling of the tax on gasoline sales is responsible for most of the $1,794,476 increase during the past year. This tax in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, when the levy was one cent on each gallon, amounted to $1,113,420.54. During the past year the tax was two cents a gallon and the total revenue approximately doubled, reaching $2,344,426.09.

Besides the gasoline tax, motor vehicle receipts for the past year include $5,584,789.94 in registration and license fees, $50,805.50 in gasoline sales licenses fees, and $225,750.80 in fines paid by operators. Motor vehicle receipts, under present laws, are used for the maintenance and consolidation of highways.

The state received $92,340.50 from the tax on motion picture films during the year, the statement shows. The levy of this tax was opposed by motion picture interests and during a controversy in the first months of the operation of the tax estimates of the amount that would be collected by the state from this revenue source ranged from $75,000 to totals in the hundreds of thousands.

Total receipts of the state were $29,610,677.14, a gain over last year of $777,302.27. Expenditures also increased by $833,095.86 to $27,974,463.15. The surplus at the end of the year amounted to $1,636,213.99 or $62,798.59 less than the surplus of a year ago.

Surplus of receipts over expenditures has been shown by the state each year since 1921. That year there was a deficit of $2,039,187. The two preceding years, 1919 and 1920, also showed deficits, these three years being the only ones in the ten year period which the comparative tables cover in which the state was unable to show surplus.

The state's funded debt is $16,291,100, having remained at that total since 1922. The sinking fund, including cash and invested amounts, is $12,391,757.53, representing increase in the ten year period from $3,966,357.1

Other amounts of revenue which go to make up the total of state receipts for the year are listed in the statement as follows:

Admissions tax, $12,106; avails of courts, $287,028; estate penalty tax $44,994; tax on express companies $20,966; state secretary's fees, $1,940; fishing licenses, $55,539; combination fish and game licenses, $34,081; game licenses, $36,454; bridges and ferries, $4,610; sundry highway receipts, $1,270,141; highway obligations, $175,939; inheritance tax, $2,506,920; insurance fees, $130,504; insurance department receipts, taxes $353,487; interest on deposits, $220,087; interest on school fund, $24,714; investment tax, $501,274.

POSTERITY MAY SUBSIST ON SYNTHETIC FOOD

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 18. (AP)—Synthetic food, taken from the light of the sun and from the nitrogen of the air by chemists, will be resorted to in solving the world's food problems as population increases, Dr. H. E. Barnard, president of the American institute of baking, predicted today.

Speaking before the institute of politics, he discounted pessimistic warnings that peril exists in the fact that population is increasing faster than food production. Present development of the synthetic food industry, he said, justifies the prediction that chemists will find a means of wrestling from sunlight and air synthetic food to feed the human race. The ocean is another storehouse of food supplies that is, as yet, virtually untouched, he said.

He pointed out that processes already have been developed for the production of human foods through the growth of the yeast plant. A manufacturing plant the size of a city block employing 20 to 30 men would be able, he said, to produce in the form of yeast as much food in 24 hours at 1,000 workers could produce from 70,000 acres in an entire years.

REORGANIZING CANADA'S DEPARTMENT OF CUSTOMS

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 18—(AP)—Canada's department of customs and excise is undergoing complete reorganization. Revelations resulting from the recent parliamentary investigation are felt to have proved so grave that nothing but drastic steps are regarded as a remedy. The whole department will be surveyed by an independent firm of chartered accountants.

While this reorganization proceeds, the investigation which was begun by a parliamentary committee last session also continues. From Halifax to Vancouver, the customs department is being scrutinized.

Montreal and certain border towns in the province of Quebec where smuggling had attained the proportions of an established business, were really the only places which underwent exhaustive investigation by the parliamentary committee last session.

The main ports of the maritime provinces are now being visited.

ANNUAL CRUISE OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Darkness had fallen over Newport harbor tonight before the first and only boat of the New York Yacht club's racing fleet to finish the first day's run or the annual cruise drifted over the finish off Brenton's reef lightship.

The winner was N. W. Ayer's Lynx, recently brought here from Italy, where she was built, and sailing her first race under the New York Yacht club colors. The Vanite and the Resolute, former American Cup defenders, were still 10 or 15 minutes from the line when the Lynx finished, and the stake boat weighed anchor and came in without waiting for them.

Miserable weather attended the first leg of the cruise from New London. The first boats were sent away at 10:30 this morning, but it was 8:15, unofficial time, before the Lynx slid home tonight. Leaden skies, spitting rain squalls, and a punky wind from the southeast greeted the sailors. The course was a dead beat all the way up Long Island Sound and when the fluky breeze died altogether this afternoon, most of the 57 contestants in the various classes gave up and signalled for tows.

SNEEZING POWDER PRANK GETS BOYS INTO CITY COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 18.—Something original in the line of boyish pranks came to the attention of the police after ten o'clock Tuesday night when four youngsters were arrested by Officer Roderick Lariviere for having blown sneezing powder through an open window into the home of the Lavigne family, on Clark street. Between spasms of sneezing which caused them much discomfort, members of the family ordered the boys away but two of them stood their ground and gave way to an inclination to argue. As a result the police were notified and the boys were brought to court Wednesday morning. Onesime St. Martin of 101 Union street and Emil Thiffeault of 27 Temple street were charged with breach of the peace. The other two boys were only fifteen and their cases coming within the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, followed the requirement of a week's continuance for investigation, in order that all four cases could be disposed of at the same time. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton asked that those of the two older boys be continued also. This was ordered done by Deputy Judge Andrews who placed the four in charge of Alfred Handfield, acting as probation officer in the absence of S. Arnold Peckham.

Today (Thusday) is annual Clerks' Day in Willimantic and all stores will close. This year the clerks have not prepared a general program of sports and entertainment as the advent of the automobile carried with it an inclination to drive off to a beach or a neck of woods for a day's outing. The main local attraction will be golf on the links at the Willimantic Country club. Two carriers at the post office will share in the holiday and there is to be but one mail delivery in the city, this to be in the forenoon. The post office and the sub-station will close at noon for the remainder of the day. Mail collections will be made as usual.

An explosion heard and felt by some people in the city about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon remained a mystery until Wednesday when an investigation disclosed that it was a dynamite blast in the work of excavating for the laying of the new water main near the Willimantic river bank leading to Pleasant street. A section of a ledge encountered in digging the trench was blasted. Similar explosions will undoubtedly be heard from time to time as the work progresses.

When work was halted at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the well on the Frank Marsala property on South Windham Road where rumors have it that the body of Joseph Bastano was buried 17 months ago, a depth of over 26 feet had been reached. The well dug and then refilled because a ledge was encountered before water was reached, according to Marsala, started to yield water when operations were halted Wednesday. There is still considerable dirt to be hoisted to the top and there is every indication that today (Thursday) will be the final day of redigging.

The August festival given at Lakeside casino for the benefit of St. Mary's church, South Coventry, of which Rev. Dennis Moran is pastor, closed as a huge success, with a large attendance Wednesday.

The meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club was held at a local tea-room Wednesday evening with a brief program in charge of Allen B. Lincoln, chairman of the entertainment committee. President Sherman P. Hollister was in charge of the meeting. Secretary Arthur Morrill read the minutes.

Michael Nelson, who said he came from Providence, but had been working in Connecticut, pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication, when in police court Wednesday morning. On his word that he had been ill, but had a job to go to, Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews showed leniency and gave the man twenty-four hours to get out of town.

SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES FILL UP HOURS IN THE GROVE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, Aug. 18—At the Tabernacle, Tuesday evening, Mrs. M. S. Rees conducted the song service which was heartily entered into by all. Rev. J. M. Von Deck of Oneco read the scripture lesson and Rev. E. J. Ayres, of Norwich offered prayer. A pleasing solo was sung by Miss Lenore Elwood, of New London. Rev. Dr. Milton S. Rees took for his subject "Alone With God;" his text was Matt. 6:6. He said that prayer is for one to close his eyes to the seen and to open them to the unseen. He referred to several of the great characters of history whose moments of triumph were preceded by long periods of prayer and communion with God. His was a very earnest and powerful discourse which made a deep impression. A prayer by Rev. Dr. Frick, a solo by Mrs. Rees; the singing of "Sweet Hour of Prayer" by the congregation and benediction by Dr. Gornall followed the sermon.

The Morning Watch service at 6 o'clock this morning in charge of Dr. Spaulding was characterized by the leader's address on some practical phases of the prayer life.

The church school period at 9:30 was in charge of Rev. R. C. Stimson who gave a very interesting talk on "My Vacation School." He covered the following items: Program, equipment, cost, handwork, and general running plans of a daily vacation church school. Several questions from the audience were satisfactorily answered by the speaker.

The period for stewardship and missions at 9:20 was made very profitable by the vigorous and telling address of Dr. Gornall on "The Stewardship of Life." He spoke about the human body and our responsibility for its care, then considered the three elements which enter into one's personality, viz, the intellect, the emotions, and the will, and set forth the wonderful possibilities of the proper culture of these.

Dr. Frick's period at 10:10, covering "Psychological Interpretation of Religious Facts" was given to the consideration of the instincts. This was easily the most popular period of the morning. Dr. Frick's able and illuminating address gripped his hearers and held them to the last sentence. He explained the instincts as automatic happenings arranged by God which no one can explain and the operation of which furnish stories more interesting and more romantic than life itself. Every instinct wherever found has its purpose. It is often for self-preservation and sometimes is extended for the preservation of offspring. Every instinct found in animals is also found in the human being. There are three ways in which we may treat our instincts which are the principal elements of our lives. (1) We may give them free rein, as for instance the glutton, and take the consequences. Or (2) we may lift them in high ideals for altruistic purposes. Or (3) we may find their counterparts in our spiritual natures.

Dr. Rees' period on Evangelism was occupied with another of his characteristic addresses developing the possibilities of the average layman in winning his neighbors and friends to know and love Christ. He spoke more particularly of the incident where Jesus fed the multitude with the loaves and fishes and developed spiritual lessons which apply in the life consecrated to God and his work.

The afternoon service at 2 o'clock was held in the open air auditorium. The hymn "Stand Up Stand Up for Jesus" was sung by the congregation. The scripture lesson, Matt. 28:11-20 was read by Rev. Joseph Cooper, of South Manchester. Prayer was offered by Rev. Norman W. Lindsay of Brockton, Mass., a missionary in Algiers, Africa for five years and soon to return. The hymn "Til I Live For Him Who Died For Me" was sung. The speaker was Rev. Dr. R. E. Gornall, field speaker of the World Service commissioner, Chicago; he presented briefly and pungently some of the work of the two missionary boards, Foreign and Home, which are a part of the work supported by the "world service" funds. He admitted that the men in charge had made mistakes, but he challenged any one to show an instance

To Fleck Off An Old or Soiled Complexion

A woman need never cease to have a young-looking complexion if she will acquire the simple mercolized wax habit. The wax actually takes off the old complexion, with all its imperfections, and the newer and livelier skin, which then appears, bears that rare beauty and irresistible loveliness that only a youthful skin can possess. The skin is indeed youthful, in reality as well as in appearance. The natural process of tissue-change, which slows up with the passing of the years, and in most conditions of ill-health, is hastened along by the mercolized wax treatment. Faded, muddy, sunned, freckled or blotchy skin is flecked off in powder-like particles, a little each day, causing no inconvenience.

Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store, is the only known product that accomplishes such results. It is applied at night like cold cream, and washed off in the morning.

effectiveness has been carried on with fewer mistakes than the work which Methodism has carried on in the past decade for world betterment. With panoramic effect he sketched several of the mission fields and the various kinds of work there going on for the extension of Christ's Kingdom in the earth. He kept the audience alive with his occasional play of wit as he made a powerful plea to his hearers to give strong support to the continuance of this work now so nobly begun in the name of God and humanity.

Bishop W. F. Anderson, resident bishop of the New England area, was the speaker Wednesday evening.

BISHOP ANDERSON DELAYED BY A TRAIN ACCIDENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, Aug. 18.—The service at the Stafford Springs house at 6 p. m. was in charge of Rev. Frank Chamberlain, who was also the speaker. Following the address, several improved the opportunity given for testimony.

The evening service was held in the outdoor auditorium at 7:30 and was opened with a praise service led by Mrs. M. S. Rees. The scripture lesson was from the first psalm, recited in unison by the congregation, led by Dr. Gornall. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Spaulding. A solo, "My Father Watches Over Me" was sung by Mrs. Rees, the choir joining in the chous at the end of each stanza. Rev. M. E. Genter of Norwich, district superintendent, made the announcements and the offering was taken. A duet was sung by Mrs. Rees and a volunteer from the choir, "Jesus and Shall It Ever Be." The song, "Love Lifted Me", was sung by choir and the congregation.

Bishop W. F. Anderson had been announced as the preacher of the evening but owning to a train accident he was delayed. It was announced to the waiting congregation that it was not the bishop's train that was wrecked, but that his train had had to make a detour and would be late in arriving. While the congregation was waiting, Dr. Rees was placed in charge and a song and testimony service followed, which was a reminder of other days. Still the bishop did not arrive and several prayers were offered and the hymn "Lord I Hear of Showers of Blessing" was called for and sung; also the choir sang "Sail On." "I Love to Tell the Story" was sung by the choir and congregation and during this the bishop arrived, the time being exactly 9 o'clock (daylight saving time).

In introducing the bishop, Mr. Genter recalled the service of a year ago when the bishop was here and the people stayed even after he had pronounced the benediction for a further service and would not go home. In responding the bishop said that he had started from Boston on an earlier train than was usually necessary, but in the delay he had been comforted in remembering the experience of last year and the confidence that he had that the people on Willimantic Camp Ground would not mind staying on toward midnight when necessary. He then delivered an earnest address on "Nature and Religion."

Gospel meetings for prayer and testimony are being held at the Stafford Springs house at 1 and 6 p. m., each day, carried on for several years by an association known as the Stafford Springs House association. This association has been greatly bereaved during the past year in the death of Rev. John R. Miller who has been its president and to whose devotion it owes much of its prosperity. The work, however, has been promptly taken up by the vice president, Rev. Frank Chamberlain of Hope, R. I. Thus far the speakers have been as follows: Tuesday at 1 p. m., Mr. Chamberlain; at 6 p. m., Rev. J. M. Von Deck, Oneco; today at 1 p. m. Rev. W. D. Woodward. The meetings are always interesting and make a very helpful supplement to the other features of the camp meeting.

Mr. Miller was pastor of the church at Moodus the past year and previously held pastorates in East Thompson, in West Thompson and in Eastford.

There is a meeting for children under 12 each day at 9 a. m. and at 3 p. m. each day for youths. Both these services are being held at the New London House.

From 4 to 5 p. m. each day is observed by many as recreation hour. The play ground is used for organized play in charge of a special committee. A novel game of baseball with the use of a foot ball under the supervision of Rev. R. C. Stimson was the special feature today. Boys and girls both participated and the victors won, 34 to 25.

DANIELSON

J. B. BASSETT SOLE OWNER OF LARKIN REED MILL

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 18.—The co-partnership of John B. Bassett, Alfred W. Bassett and William J. Ross in the Larkin Reed company has been dissolved. William J. Ross and Lillian L. Bassett, the latter executrix of the estate of Alfred W. Bassett who died early this spring, have sold their shares in the partnership to John B. Bassett who becomes manager and sole owner of the company.

This mill, a small one-story wooden structure located on the Old Furnace road, was established in 1870 by Henry R. Lathrop, who built and operated the mill for several years, then sold out to Byron Wood and Daniel Larkin, both of Danielson. It then became the Larkin and Wood Reed company. Later Mr. Wood sold out to Dan Larkin, who continued to run the mill under the name of the Larkin Reed company, under which title it has since been run.

A number of years ago Daniel Larkin died, leaving the mill to William J. Ross. Mr. Ross sold shares to John B. Bassett and Alfred W. Bassett who died recently. This co-partnership was formed about ten years ago, from which date John Bassett took over the managing end of the business, W. J. Ross and A. W. Bassett remaining as silent partners. Not long ago an addition was built to the one story structure, being necessitated by the increase in business. Mr. Bassett plans to continue to operate the mill under the same name of Larkin Reed company as the manager and sole owner of the plant. This company has long supplied mills with reeds and combs and their business is widespread.

A machine shop at the plant is still owned and will be run separately by William J. Ross.

IMPROVED FIRE ALARM BOX TO BE TRIED OUT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 18.—A new fire alarm box, it is planned will eventually be placed at the corner of Maple and Williams street and will be box No. 12, and residents about this section of the town hope that the plans may materialize. This section of the town which is at the top of Maple street on Riverview, is rapidly growing, several new houses having been built since spring in that territory. There have also been several calls upon the fire company to extinguish bad grass fires in this district as well as two bad fires in houses last winter, one at the Williams home and another in a house owned by the Perkins sisters on lower Maple street. The addition of this new box to the present system, Chief "Put" Woodward of the local company says will prove a wise move for the town. Mr. Woodward also has a new type of box which is to be tried out and will be placed at box No. 23, the corner of Main and Center streets, moving the box at this number now over to the new box on Williams and Maple streets. The new alarm, Chief Woodward states, will enable the alarm to be sent in to the station much faster because there are but two motions in turning in the new alarms whereas the present type box requires four. Also in the new alarm there is no glass to break—just to open the door, pull down the lever and let go, this turning the alarm in at the station and ringing it four times.

Mrs. Jennie Eldridge, 82, died at her home in Dayville Tuesday. She was born in the town of Canterbury and was the widow of John Eldridge and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Azel Nickerson Lewis. Arrangements for the funeral were in charge of Louis Kennedy of Danielson and members of St. James' choir sang. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery at Dayville.

JEWETT CITY

CLARK C. PALMER, HOPEVILLE, IS DEAD AT THE AGE OF 91

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 18.—Clark C. Palmer, 91, died at his home farm in Hopeville during the night Tuesday.

Mr. Palmer was born in Hopkinton, R. I., Dec. 15, 1834, the son of Amos N. and Mary Barber Palmer, and was a direct descendant of Walter Palmer, who was born in Nottinghamshire, England, 1585, emigrated to New England 1629, and settled in Stonington in 1653, where he died, November 10th, 1661.

Clark C. Palmer was of the ninth generation. When he was nine, his parents came to Jewett City where his father built the house on Pleasant View, now owned by Miss Ellen Broome. At the time of Clark Palmer's marriage in 1858, he went to live in Hopeville, in the house where he died 68 years later.

Mr. Palmer married Miss Elizabeth Partridge of Griswold, in 1858. She died in 1871. His second marriage was with Miss Helen Saunders, also of this town, in 1874, she dying in 1897. There were ten children of whom five sons and one daughter survive—Frank of Bradford, Pa., William R. of Griswold, Charles of Sayleaville, R. I., Amos of Mansfield, Conn., Walter of Chicago and Mrs. Pearl D. Morgan of Hartford. One sister survives, Mrs. Helen Lewis of Naugatuck.

Early in life Mr. Palmer took a term at cotton manufactire, and during the time he was so interested, he was for three years overseer of spinning in the Shetucket mills, in Greeneville. His life business was that of a farmer, and for 70 years he has been a tiller of the soil, noting in that time the changes and advances which have come, as three score years and ten have passed since in the days of his young manhood, he first set his hand to the plow.

When it comes to old line republicans, Mr. Palmer was one of the sort that backed his views under all circumstances. Reverses only served to strengthen his belief that his party was right; and so he carried on, unswerving to the end. His political record in Griswold, stands as evidences of his town's faith in him.

In 1858 he ran 147 votes ahead of his opponent and served in the state legislature in the house of 54 and 55.

He holds the record in Griswold for assessor, having served 23 consecutive years. He was fair and considerate, which, coupled with a knowledge of the taxable property of the town as yet exceeded by no following holder of the office, qualified him as Griswold's steady choice.

Many an efficient term of service stand to his credit as selectman, member of board of relief, on the board of education, collector of taxes, grand juror, justice of the peace and constable. For a dozen years he was the acknowledged republican leader of Griswold and the chairman of the town committee.

With the passing of Mr. Palmer, the name of the oldest member of the Jewett City Baptist church has been removed from its roll. No record would be complete that failed to tell of Mr. Palmer's interest in the one time Hopeville lyceum. He, the late Joseph Roode and Charles Saunders, were the outstanding figures in that once famous institution. Here was to be seen, in the many spirited debates in which he took part, the evidence of his brilliant intellect. Ready wit backed by sound common sense, made his arguments of that instantly available sort, which seldom met defeat. Here, too, his kindness, courtesy and encouragement, gave to many a young man the help he needed at the time it counted most. William S. Cone, an engineer of national note, now a resident of San Francisco, and associated with Col. Goethals in the great engineering scheme to furnish a water supply for Oakland, Cal., received the first stimulus from Mr. Palmer.

The Jewett City Creamery Co. deemed it for its interest to elect him many succeeding years to serve on its board of directors.

Mr. Palmer always told with pride of his having voted first for Freemont, against Buchannan in 1856, and for every republican presidential candidate since. As a reliable friend and an upright conscientious citizen Mr. Palmer stood out promihently in the town's life and interests.

GETTING OUT THE VOTE

The American Legion is to begin next month a nation-wide campaign to get out the vote in November. The Legion doesn't care how the vote goes and it is not concentrating on candidates or issues. Its object is to increase the number of people who take the least part a conscientous citizen can take in the conduct of government. As matters now stand, this is a popular government by a small minority of the qualified voters. Only half the voters go to the polls and in many cases the election is determined by one-third of them.

A number of national organizations are interested in getting out that portion of the vote which favors particular legislation. There have been several laudable campaigns to increase the whole vote. But this is the first time that a strong national organization has tried, through the agency of its numerous local branches, to persuade people to go to the polls and register whatever opinions they may have reached. There is in the movement a challenge to the qualified but indifferent voter. He has become the concern of the country's strongest patriotic organization.

The Legion has entered an interesting field. This unknown vote holds in its power the destinies of the country, if it can be aroused to action. It could at one election overcome the political boss vote, which is herded to the polls to vote as ordered, and bring about a radical reform in every community where the government has fallen into the hands of corrupt men and women. If the Legion posts set the example and exert the great influence which they could wield in many communities, the veterans of the world war may advance the welfare of the country fully as much as they did eight years ago on the battle fields of Europe. They deserve and should have the support of the people everywhere in getting out the vote.

HIGHWAY DICTATORSHIP

Superintendent Hurley of the state police is nothing if not resourceful. Motor drivers who fail to "step on it" when a state policeman, under instructions from the head of the department, decides it is time to "give her the gas" are to be arrested. The head of the state police department admits that there is no law under which a driver can be arrested for slow speed, but he proposes to accomplish his end by the rather devious process of accusing the driver of failing to obey an officer. By the same process of reasoning a pedestrian who was told to "step lively", could be haled to police headquarters if he failed to quicken his pace to the satisfaction of the minion of the law.

The slow driver who holds up a line of traffic is aggravating enough, in all truth, but it is to be remembered that the law gives him as much right on the highway as the man whom it holds down by speed limits beyond which he may not go. The question of what is the proper rate of speed on the highways is not the real one raised by this autocratic announcement by the head of the state police department. The real question is whether a police agency, in a democratic country, has the right to impose on the people rules which the people, through regular legislative processes, have not seen fit to impose on themselves, and to subject them to the indignity of arrest if they fail to obey it remains to be seen what standing in court an arrest made on such a flimsy pretext would have, and it is pretty certain that it would be given a court test if an attempt to enforce such an arbitrary assumption of authority were made.

NEW TREATIES IN EUROPE

Within the last fortnight several new treaties have been signed by nations of continental Europe. One of these, a treaty between Italy and Spain, is causing some uneasiness in Great Britain, according to some correspondents of American newspapers. It is supposed to be a treaty of arbitration and amity, but newspapers believed to be inspired by the respective governments concerned declare that it solidifies the interests of the two signatory nations in the Mediterranean as well as in Latin America. It was negotiated in what fascist newspapers call "the good old method, secret diplomacy," although it will have to be registered with the secretariat of the league of nations, unless both Spain and Italy resign from the league.

France has concluded new treaties with some small states in eastern Europe. So has Italy. But perhaps the most significant of the new pacts is that between France and Germany. It is described as a treaty of commerce, residence and travel. It not only provides for favored-nation treatment in the matter of tariffs, but supplements private agreements concerning deliveries of coal, coke and [illegible]. While the text has not been made public, Paris and Berlin newspapers of semi-official status affirm that the treaty is exceptional in that it establishes the closest economic relations between France and Germany ever known to those two nations which have long borne the designation of "traditional enemies."

Some commentators take the view that the sudden passion for new treaties in Europe presages the decline and speedy dissolution of the league of nations. The resignation of Spain is regarded as certain. Other withdrawals may follow. That would involve a return to the perilous doctrine of the balance of power, to rival alliances and increased armament. Such an interpretation may be too pessimistic. The new treaties may be consistent with the spirit of Locarno and with the covenant of the league of nations. Certainly the Franco-German treaty is in no sense adverse to the purposes of the league. The September meeting of the assembly and the council of the league should clarify the whole situation.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

A curious situation has arisen to affect the parcel post convention between this country and Cuba. The convention may be terminated next year and Cuba proposes to terminate it to the great loss of mail order exporters in this country unless tariff restrictions, preventing her own export of cigars and cigarettes, in small packages, are removed by congress. At the present time these restrictions prohibit the Cuban manufacturer from mailing his product to the United States except in lots of 3,000 or more. Packages of 3,000 or more Cuban cigars would weigh beyond the eleven-pound limit of the parcel post and the provision is therefore tantamount to an exclusion order.

It is significant that our own parcel post authorities endeavored to have congress modify the restrictions at its last sitting. Congress did nothing, obviously because of objections raised by American tobacco interests. Meanwhile, Cuba concedes to American exporters engaged in the mail order business an eleven-pound privilege which they used in the first six months of the postal convention, beginning Jan. 1, 1926, to the extent of nearly 140,000 packages, while Cuba sent but 9,193 packages to the United States. This year the American mail order business to Cuba will, it is estimated, reach a total of 400,000 packages. Commenting on the postal convention and this discrimination against Cuban trade, Warren I. Glover, second assistant postmaster general, says he considers Cuba has shown a "very generous sentiment in granting us an eleven-pound limit parcel post to Cuba in advance of the American congress doing the right thing." He does not believe that granting the Cubans a mutually reciprocal advantage will hurt the American cigar trade in the least.

If the Cuban worm completes the turning process now threatened, the great mail-order house in this country will be seriously affected. We build tariff walls to create monopolies for domestic interests regardless alike of our own consumers and foreign exporters. The consumers, not being organized, have no influence with a high protection congress. The foreign exporter has his redress in bringing pressure to bear upon his own government to exercise a measure of retaliation against American goods. There is a tendency in Europe to do this and the tendency will grow into definite action so long as our federal legislature proceeds on the assumption that the foreign exporter must be treated as an enemy to be kept without the gates. Little Cuba preparing to teach us a lesson in reciprocity, is merely reflecting a spirit now fairly prevalent in the outside world. Trade cannot always be a one-sided game in which we are permitted to play to our advantage.

EDITORIAL NOTES

One more is added to the exploded Kitchener myths.

FAMILY OPINIONS

"This young Kingspool, who seems so attentive to Mary," began the upand coming mother who didn't like old maids in the family, "this young Kingspool seems a splendid young man and, between you and me, just the one for her!"

"Huh!" snorted the cut-to-pattern father, who did not think that any young man on earth quite good enough for his daughter, "there isn't much to him! When I was starting out in the world I didn't have to tie on the world I didn't have ties and socks and handkerchiefs that were all the same color and that's all you can notice when he looms in sight! If he isn't a sky-blue symphony he's an orange and tan dream or else he's a maroon phantasy with a thin stripe of green! Why, that boy must spend hours matching up his costumes and I shudder to think of the devastating scene when he sets fastened into a yellow and black striped shirt and finds that his little brother has worn away the necktie that goes with it! Any girl who married him would—"

"You're just jealous because he always looks so nice," said the acute mother with deliberate cruelty. "If you'd pay a little attention to your own clothes I'd like it better—you just grab up any old thing in the way of covering and slap it on! The idea of judging a young man's ability adversely simply because he takes a proper pride in how he looks! And then, he is always so very nice to you and me!"

"My grief!" mourned the exasperated father literally throwing up his hands; "women are the original trusting marks!

"I can plainly see that he is a dangerous young man and presently he will be telling you that you don't look a day older than when you were twenty, and, what's more, you'll believe him! Any young man with the intelligence of a child or 6 is going to be nice to a girl's father and mother! What difference do you suppose it makes to him how I argue on politics or what your opinion is about the menu they had at the club lunch so long as we don't shut the door in his face? He'd say yess'r if I claimed that Abraham Lincoln abducted Charley Ross! Why, when I was coming to call on you I used to listen to your father by the hour and never heard a word he said! When he stopped to light a cigar or catch his breath I'd get in something to the effect that I thought he was entirely right, although his views were certainly novel and interesting and presented the matter in an absolutely different light to me—and then I could settle back and watch your eyelashes while he elaborated the subject still further. Once I was in rather a tight corner when he stopped abruptly and wanted to know what I thought about it myself—but I managed to say that while my interest in the subject was keen it presented so many angles that I was hesitating for and against it, but that now that he had explained it so clearly to me no doubt I should make up my mind very quickly. I had to pay attention to your mother, though—she asked questions just as you—"

"The idea!" protested the indignant mother: "I never pry into people's affairs, and all I ever asked Albert Kingspool last evening was how big his father's house in Albany was and if they entertained much! Absolutely conversational questions! He knows all about the new books and new plays and what's what—"

"I'd rather be sure he knew all about what balance his banktook showed," said the morse father firmly. "The bankbook is the only book which affords any comfort when an expensive doctor is about to operate on you for appendicitis or extract the twins' tonsils, let me tell you! The man I'd be willing for Mary to marry—"

"What's this?" broke in the young woman under discussion as she entered abrubtly. "You little rascal! I'll bet you are arguing over how you are going to like Albert Kingspool in the family just because he's been here once or twice! Well, I'm never going to marry anybody! I've decided to open a tea room or write a novel and become rich and famous! Why, Albert and I are just merely good friends!"

"When they talk that way," sighed the submarine father, "its all over but paying the dressmaking bills, the caterer and the minister! Doggone Don't try to look innocent, young lady, I know!"

"Well, Albert is sort of nice," admitted the young woman with a real blush. "You'll like him just awfully when you get to know him better, honest!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Pietro Mascagni, who is coming to New York next month to conduct in person the American premier of his latest opera Piccolo Marat, is Italy's most famous living composer. His fame, however, may be said to rest almost wholly on his great opera of Cavalleria Rusticana. Until the first public performance of this work the world knew nothing of Mascagni. From that moment his rise was cometlike. Few of his operas since Cavalleria Rusticana have added to his reputation, but that extraordinary work still maintains its wonderful popularity. Its revival year after year in London, New York and other centers, and the reception it receives, shows that it stands as high as ever in public favor. Mascagni is a native of Leghorn and is now in his 64th year. His origin is humble in the extreme, and he owes all his success to his own efforts and his own genius.

Stories That Recall Others

No Such Place

"Where did the car hit this man?" asked Lawyer Garner when questioning the attending physician at the rail.

"At the junction of the dorsal and cervical vertebrae," responded the doctor.

The foreman of the jury rose in his seat and remarked: "I've lived in this country for upwards of 50 years and I know every crossroad, but I never heard of any such place: I believe it's a made-up case."

Doctor Was Right

"Buy a car," said the doctor, "and get out more. You ought to take off pounds."

Speaking of the results obtained by this prescription, the patient says: "I got a car and got out more. I got out six times between London and Coventry and took off flesh in four different places. Once I got out through the windshield. That seemed to take off the most flesh."

YOUR HEALTH

The Value of Drinking Water

Few people take too much water, and many drink not half enough.

Water to drink is a daily need for which there is no substitute. It maintains the volume of blood in the body by making good the constant loss of water through lungs, skin and kidneys. Water is necessary for the removal of the waste products which result from muscular and mental activity. Lack of water leads to thirst and faintness and, if long continued, may cause fatigue, restlessness and general bodily discomfort. Such manifestations are promptly relieved by water.

To maintain vigorous health, an adult should drink, in every 24 hours, at least eight glasses of water of eight ounces each. For 16 waking hours, this would be an average of one-half glass an hour.

It is worth to establish a water-drinking habit. The hourly striking of a clock or some regularly recurring event of the day, may be made the call to drink. Water in a pitcher or in a thermos jug, sufficient for any chosen period of the day, may be made a constant reminder to take water. The fullness or emptiness of the veins on the back of the hand, or the volume of the pulse, may be made a gauge of the supply of fluids in the body.

Water may be taken at any agreeable temperature. Very cold drinks should be taken slowly, especially if one be overheated. Hot drinks should not be hotter than can be comfortably held in the mouth, for very hot fluids injure the lining of the stomach. A moderate amount of water at mealtime does no harm.

If the purity of the available drinking water is uncertain, it can be made safe by boiling, and be clarified by filtering. The juice of oranges, lemons or other fruits may be added to make the water more palatable.

IN DAY'S NEWS

LETTUCE ENTERS THE RANKS OF F. F. V.

The rise of lettuce to fourth place among the millionaire vegetable crops in the United States, announced by the department of agriculture, reads like an Horatio Alger story. Lettuce, with a United States crop worth $24,767,000 in 1925, four times its value in 1919, ranks close to the leaders, potatoes, sweet potatoes and tomatoes.

"There are many other Alger stories in the vegetable world," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"Fresh vegetables as a class are successful upstarts in American markets. Not so many years ago it was necessary to distinguish between grocers and green grocers. Omitting the staples, potatoes and sweet potatoes, the business in 17 vegetables came to $238,000,000 in 1925.

"What would a modern dietician think of the Pilgrim's first Thanksgiving dinner? Although there is no recorded bill of fare they probably ate: venison, partridge, turkey, fish, oysters, duck, geese, barley loaves and corn bread, pumpkins, squash and wild grapes.

"'Terrible,' would be the dietician's verdict. 'Too much protein. Important vitamins neglected. There ought to be four or five vegetables. Where is the salad course?'

"Pioneering, it seems, demands a red meat diet. While the Pilgrims were living on meat, it was not necessarily the custom in the homeland. By 1600 vegetables were widely used in England and were even more popular on the continent. Man has made some use of herbs since the dawn of history.

"On a stone of the Great Pyramid in ancient times was an inscription which showed that even Egyptians liked a dash of statistics now and then and that the laborers liked vegetables. 'For radishes, onions and garlic for the workmen,' the inscription recorded, 'the sum of 1,600 talents.' If we use the Hebrew gold talent mentioned in the Bible as the standard rate of exchange that sum would work out to approximately $51,20,0,000 for radishes, onions and garlic. The American radish an onion crop for two and a half years could be purchased for the settlement of the Pharaoh's green grocery bill.

"The little radish long ranked a First Family of the Vegetable World. So greatly did the Greeks prefer it over other articles of diet that they had the radish represented with a gold model placed in the Temple of Apollo at Delphi. They further showed their preference and elaborated their agricultural extension exhibit with a beet in silver and a turnip in lead.

"America has looked to Europe for vegetables, as well as population, to stock the country. Of 19 vegetables in which the trade is more than a million dollars a year, only six, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, sweet corn, green beans and peppers, are native to the Americans. In dollar value the worth of three All-Americans in the vegetable markets, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes and tomatoes, eclipses the total value of the other 16. Lettuce, celery, asparagus, and carrots, among the foreigners, are European. The onion, cabbage, green peas, cucumbers, cauliflower and eggplant are out of Asia. Watermelon and cantaloupe, it is supposed, bought their passage from North Africa.

"Ancestors of practically all fresh vegetables are living on their native heaths or here. Very few links are missing. A striking illustration of evolution as applied to plants can be given by preparing a dinner using these ancestors of the modern vegetables. Most of them are not difficult to obtain. They grow in American fields and beside American fences. Most everyone is familiar with wild lettuce as a field weed. This Cinderella weed has the same coat-of-arms as crisp, sweet Iceberg head lettuce!

"Gather some Queen Anne's lace for the evolution menu. That white midsummer spray is the flower of the wild carrot. Pull it up and see the laughably thin wedge of its root. The grandfather of all beets has a root about as big as a baby's little finger. Wild onions grow widely in America, reversions of some imported stock. They are larger than the onion's true ancestors which spring up in Persian deserts after the winter rains.

"Wild cabbage does not grow in the United States. It grows in England but only an experienced botanist can find it on the windy chalk cliffs. An amateur would look for a head of leaves. The ancestor of all cabbages, and that means cauliflower and Brussels sprouts, too, is a sprawling weed with tough leaves resembling the figure of oak leaves.

"But the bitter natures of the grandparents of our modern vegetables was their original recommendation to the human race. Back in the not-so-long-ago people put great trust in herbs as sovereign remedies for all sorts of ills. Innocent celery, a European ditchweed, for example, was listed in the 'Herbals' as an important drug. The phrase 'cut and dried' is a product of that period. When the custom went out 'herbs' became a 'drug on the market.' But trade in weeds as drugs had brought about their cultivation in gardens where they became larger and less bitter. People who had used common weeds as medicine began to buy them for food and when people insisted on sweeter and bigger weeds the weeds became vegetables.

"Bringing up the vegetables to suit public preferences is now a task for the expert. A dominant public preference in America is for red vegetables. The original tomatoes were yellow but few markets today will disclose a single yellow tomato. Watermelons that are naturally yellow are just as good as red ones, but only the latter go to market. South Europe, China and Japan favor white radishes which grow in the Orient to three and four feet in length but the United States likes little red ones. It is the same prejudice that makes a new white potato a sorry wanderer of the streets of New York in midwinter. For years New York has consumed by itself practically the entire export of all crops from Bermuda. Among these are Bermuda new potatoes which are always red. Georgia and Florida are now producing potatoes just as new and just as early but they are white and New York prefers the red ones.

"Prejudice may mold and color our vegetables, but to science and invention go the credit for their present honored position on the American table. Science found that mysterious substances called vitamins were vital to the nourishment of man. Then they found that vegetables were rich in vitamins. Home economics workers broadcast this news. They persuaded the housewives that man could not live by meat and wheat alone. Inventors created the refrigerator car which lengthens the season of most vegetables from one month to 12. Now a Chicago housewife an market in the Imperial Valley, California for lettuce in February; in May, she turns to Carolina; she buys at home in June; relies upon northern New York in September; and in December her market basket is filled by Florida."

Little Talks on Thrift

One of the great needs of this country is a more intensive educational campaign in the elimination of fires. A report just made public by the National Board of Fire Underwriters shows fire losses last year of more than $570,000,000. While these figures are an increase of more than $35,000,000 over the fire losses sustained in 1924, and $35,000,000 over the 1923 loss, they represent considerable progress in fire elimination when we bear in mind that our national building program has amounted to approximately $13,000,000,000 in the last three years.

While we have had a net increase of several hundred millions of dollars in buildings during the last year, the increase in destruction by fire has been comparatively negligible. The figures give proof that the various thrift and fire prevention campaigns going on during the past few years have not been without their beneficial affects.

The character of building also is changing. As the communities grow, there is a greater demand for buildings of the fire-proof or semi-fire-proof type, and the great increase in steel and concrete structures in the last five years has been a factor in eliminating fires.

Every agency for the dissemination of information should be made use of in showing the danger of carelessness. Most fires are the results of sheer oversight. The historic story of the origin of the great Chicago fire, which resulted from a candle being kicked over by a cow, is an illustration of how some insignificant event can lead to terrible destruction of life and property.

It is doubtful if there is any other phase of human activity wherein as much benefit is possible from as little effort.

The wanton destruction by fire of one building for each eleven that are erected, as was the case in the United States last year, to say nothing of the loss of life and personal injuries, offers a situation that should not continue under any circumstances.

SMALL BOY DROWNED IN THAMES RIVER

The body of Lyman Rondeau, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rondeau of No. 282 West Thames street was recovered from the Thames river about 11.30 o'clock Wednesday night by Officers Frank Gwiczdowski and Eugene Caulkins, who had dragged the river near the Tidewater Paper company plant for several hours. Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve was summoned and after viewing the body gave permission for its removal by Undertaker Charles A. Gager.

The boy, with a younger brother, ran on to the dock midway between the paper mill and the American Woolen mill about 6.30 o'clock Wednesday evening to watch a tug steaming down the river. In his haste to reach the pier the boy stumbled and fell into the water. His brother ran for help but before people could reach the spot the child had disappeared and did not return to the surface.

Word was immediately sent to police headquarters and Officers Gwiczdowski and Caulkins were sent to drag for the body. It was finally located about 10 feet out from the dock and about 40 up the river from the place where the boy fell into the water.

The boy was born in Willimantic, January 12, 1927, the son of George, and Louise Lavoie Rondeau. For some time the family lived in Willimantic and North Franklin, coming to Norwich about 6 weeks ago when Mr. Rondeau took a position with the Tidewater Paper company, moving into the house at No. 292 West Thames street only early this week.

Besides his parents the boy is survived by four brothers and four sisters: Eugene, Leon, Harold, Henry, Gertrude, Reitta and Barbara Rondeau of Norwich and Mildred Rondeau of New York.

The boy was bright and attractive and during his brief stay in Norwich had made many little friends. The stricken family has the sympathy of many friends in their sad bereavement.

WILLIAM I. DAVIS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF 18TH CONN. VOLS.

William L. Davies of New London was re-elected president of the 18th Regiment, Conn. Vols., at the regiment's annual reunion Wednesday at Buckingham Memorial.

Fourteen of the 53 living members of the regiment were present and responded to the roll call. Pres. Davies called the meeting to order at 11:30 o'clock and offered prayer. Secretary Arthur L. Peale of this city read the mortuary list as follows:

Lewis Brand, Co. A; Oct. 17, 1925, Fitchville, Conn.

Alexander Mossman, Co. A; June, 1925; Lee, Mass.

John W. Randall, Co. B; letter returned marked "deceased"; Shawmut, R. I.

Erskine F. Bickford, Co. D; Dec. 6, 1923, Malden, Mass.

Abel Burdick, Co. E; July 28, 1926; Hampton, Conn.

Charles Burrows, Co. G; June 28, 1926; Providence, R. I.

Frank A. Chase, Co. K; July 30, 1926; Killingly, Conn.

William A. Taylor, Co. K; Dec. 14, 1925; Fiskeville, R. I.

Thomas H. Eccleston, Co. I; Jan. 11, 1921; Glasgo, Conn.

Albert F. Shepardson, Co. K; Nov. 24, 1924; Moosup, Conn.

In his report as treasurer, Mr. Peale stressed the fact that the 18th Regiment was in "good financial condition." The last report showed that there was a balance on hand of $334.39 and contributions, etc., and dividends on the money had brought the amount up to $376.91. Deducted from this amount is an expense item of $19.50, which at the present time leaves a balance in the bank of $357.41.

By unanimous vote the officers were re-elected as follows:

President—William L. Davies, New London.

Vice presidents—Daniel D. Danielson, Danielson; A. A. Buchanan, Putnam; George W. Loomis, Dallas, Texas; James Haggerty, Willimantic; Henry W. Babson, Danielson.

Secretary and treasurer—Arthur L. Peale, Norwich.

A motion made by Capt. John E. Woodward that all sons and daughters of the members of the 18th regiment be automatically made honorary members of the organization was adopted

The meeting then adopted votes of thanks to Sedgwick Post No. 1, G. A. R., for the use of the rooms and many other courtesies; the Women's Relief corps for their hospitality; ex-Mayor Herbert L. Lerou and Sedgwick camp, Sons of Veterans for cigars; and the 26th Regiment for courtesies extended, and to all who in any way contributed to the pleasure of the day, was given by those present.

A vote of thanks was also given Secretary Arthur L. Peale for his services in behalf of the regiment.

Addressing the meeting Capt. Woodward stated that the regiment is growing fewer in number each year, as was the 26th regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, G. A. R., which met Tuesday. He stressed the fact that there ought to be a better fraternal feeling between the two organizations and that the 18th join with the 26th in holding a joint reunion next year. This would make it easier for the Women's Relief corps which attends to the dinner, etc. It was so voted.

A Willimantic veteran, James Haggerty, related some of his experiences in his travels through the various states of the union, enlivening his remarks with funny stories.

Honorary members voted in included Jabez R. Bowen of Woodstock, a member of the seventh regiment. Mr. Bowen is the son of the late Jabez L. Bowen of Woodstock. The elder Mr. Bowen, now deceased, was a member of the 18th regiment. Both father and son fought.

Secretary Peale read a number of letters of regret received from veterans unable to attend. They included the following:

From George H. Loomis, Co. F., Dallas, Texas: Received postal notifying me of the reunion of the 18th regiment. Sorry I cannot be with the boys on the occasion and hope it will be an enjoyable time to all. I haven't heard from Captain Woodward for some time, but I feel sure he will be there.

Charles E. Bates, Co. C, Elbridge, N. Y.: My best wishes for the boys and may they live long and be happy, thereby finding a touch of heaven before the final roll call.

James H. Sawyer, Co. B, Niles, Mich.: Your announcement of the 58th reunion of "Buckingham's Pets" at Norwich, 18th inst., has been received and placed on file, as they say.

I have to return the same old negative answer, much to my regret. I planned to be there last year but at the time of the reunion I was physically unable to make the journey. However, in September, I was better, and made the trip east to Putnam, where I have a nephew. I had in mind to go to Norwich to meet you, but one thing and another came up, and ere I was aware, it was time to go back to Michigan.

In that visit I met only four comrades of the 18th: Comrade D. D. Danielson (B), and a comrade of K at Danielson, Comrade W. L. Aldrich (B) at Attleboro, Mass., and Comrade Anson Buchanan (D) at Putnam.

We are brought face to face with the lonesome fact that there are not many comrades of the Civil war to meet anywhere, now.

Probably if every survivor of the long line that marched out of Camp Aiken in August, 1862, could be present at this reunion, the little squads that represent the companies would be still smaller this year, as no doubt some more have fallen since the last reunion.

Greetings to the comrades present, and to the esteemed secretary also, and may the occasion be a red-letter day to all.

James F. Miller, Co. D., Plainesville, Ohio: "Good luck to you all" at the 58th annual reunion. I regret that I cannot be with you.

Albert Hempstead, Co. C, Alhambra, Cal.: My best wishes to the boys that may be present at the annual reunion.

Samuel Armstrong, Co. B., Killingly, Conn.: I regret that I cannot attend the reunion. I would like to come, but my health is so bad that I cannot stand the journey.

John D. Brown, Co. D., Missouri Valley, Iowa: Would be happy to be with the few comrades of the old 18th but cannot, therefore send my kindest regards to all and wish them a good time as it is possible for them to have. We are not boys any longer and it will be but a short time when there will be none left for a reunion. I would enjoy meeting my old comrades once more as I will be 84 in two months and lost my dear wife last December, who was my dear pal for 56 years in the same house. Good luck and God bless you all.

George C. Bruck, Co. D, Milford, Mass.: My health will not permit me to be present. Kindly remember me to the boys.

George W. Wheeler, Co. C, Brooklyn, N. Y.: With regrets that I cannot attend the annual reunion of the 18th Regiment. Kind regards to all the boys.

William G. Ely, Schenectady, N. Y.: I regret very much that I will be unable to be present at the annual reunion of the 18th Regiment in Norwich on the 18th.

In view of the fact that the reunion was so kind as to elect me an honorary member last meeting I would like very much to attend the reunion to meet those of the veterans and their friends who will be present. Circumstances, however, make it practically impossible for me to do so.

Albert M. Lathrop, Co. E, Inland, Neb.: Please accept my greetings on our 58th anniversary. I wish I could be there. I've been thinking this morning of that long line in Blue that passed through Camp Aiken for the steamboat wharf for the front on that hot Friday afternoon of Aug. 22, 1862, and also of that short line that landed at the foot of State street in the early morning of one of the first days of July, 1865, and marched to the old capitol grounds in Hartford, Conn. What a change there had been! You all remember those strenuous campaigns in West Virginia, and some of us remember the hard campaign at Gettysburg and the pursuit of Lee's army.

I well remember when Lieut. Col. Peale returned, and also later the return of the 18th prisoners from Richmond. All these things are passing through my mind and can never be forgotten.

When the 18th regiment was mustered out I was a member of the color guard and I wonder how many others of that guard are now living. I do not know of any other comrades of the 18th regiment living in Nebraska. All the G. A. R. posts in Nebraska, except those in the larger places are extinct. Many thousands of these comrades helped to open up Nebraska.

I am living with my son on the farm which I redeemed from the naked prairies which had only been occupied by Indians and buffalo, 54 years ago. Now, thriving villages and cities are all about me and numerous lines of railroads and state auto roads traverse the state.

I am in fair general health but can only see a little out of one eye. I am now using an artificial leg and can get about fairly well on crutches, but could get about much better if I could see more clearly. I have to have all my reading and writing done.

The list of members on the regiment's books was read by Secretary Peale who stated that probably some of the names of those read were deceased as it was almost impossible to find the addresses of many of the members.

A color guard escorted the veterans and their guests to the dining room. The color bearers were: Mrs. Clara Burke, Mrs. Jennie Newberry, Mrs. Mary Austin and Mrs. Lillian Brewster, with Patriotic Instructor Mrs. Annie Turner. Mrs. Lena Pukallus ably presided at the piano and struck up a patriotic tune when the veterans came marching in. The room was appropriately decorated for the occasion. Flowers which decorated the tables were donated by Mrs. Jennie Newberry.

At the close of the dinner, President Davies requested Secretary Peale to act as toastmaster, and he in turn called upon the president, the latter interesting the members present by relating some of the experiences of the regiment.

Mayor Milo R. Waters was the next speaker and warmly welcomed the veterans to Norwich. He thought the idea a good one for the Eighteenth and Twenty-sixth regiments to meet on the same day next year. The toastmaster then called on ex-Mayor Herbert M. Lerou, who referred to the services of the veterans to the nation, and complimented the work of the patriotic societies. Capt. John E. Woodward, the only line officer present, interested all by reminiscenses of the Civil war, and was frequently applauded by his patriotic utterances.

Henry W. Babson of Danielson, speaking for the members from Windham county said that section of Connecticut stood second to none for patriotism during the dark days.

Commander Price of Sedgwick post extended a welcome to all of the comrades, and while not a member of this regiment, stated that during the campaign they were at one time quartered near the eighteenth.

George A. Keppler of this city responded for the sons of the regiment and his remarks kept the veterans in a humorous mood.

The meeting was brought to a close by Herbert E. Cary calling for three cheers for the members of the Eighteenth and they were given with a will.

Mrs. Peter Giroux whose late husband was a member of Co. G, was present with the members of family comprising ten members and were given a warm welcome by all present.

Thomas T. Bates of Killingly was active and informed many of those present that he was in his ninetieth year.

James Haggerty of Willimantic was here and there and was the youngest member of the regiment. He has the distinction of having served in the Civil war and also held an official position during the World war.

Many expressions of approval were heard in reference to the decoration and display of the flag by the local merchants. John Irish of this city was prevented from attending a meeting of his regiment was a guest of the regiment. Many said that it was one of the best reunions ever held and all are looking forward to the meeting next year.

Mrs. Florence Dean was chairman of the dinner committee and was assisted by Mrs. Maude Moody, Mrs. Grace Fowler, Mrs. Clara Burke, Mrs. Annie Turner, Mrs. D. EGG PRODUCTION SHOWS DECREASE IN STORRS CONTEST

Egg production dropped considerably in the torre egg laying contest during the 41st week, the 1400 pullets laying 4422 eggs, or slightly over 45 per cent. This is 395 eggs less than last week, and 234 eggs less than the corresponding week a year ago. The contest flock laid a grand total of 180,911 eggs in the first 41 weeks. This is an average of 127 eggs per bird.

The Rhode Island Red entry of Fabry Bros. from East McKeesport, Pa., made the best record for the week with a score of 58 eggs. The White Leghorns entered by George B. Ferris from Grand Rapids, Mich., and Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Ore., tied for second place with a score of 50 eggs each. Two more pens of the same breed owned by Dudley Poultry Farm from Webster, Mass., and Wilgerodt Bros. from Red Bank, N. J., tied for third place with a production of 48 eggs each. Six pens were tied for fourth place, each with a lay of 46 eggs. They are the Barred Rocks owned by R. W. Davis and Sons from Rockland, Me., and the Ramblers Farm from Monsey, N. Y.; Prospect Farm from Webster, Mass., and the White Wyandottes entered by Thomas H. Matteson from Daryille, R. I.; and the White Leghorns owned by W. S. Hannah and Son from Grand Rapids, Mich., Steelman Poultry Farm from Lansdale, Pa., and Toivonen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Pa. Eleven pens are represented on this week's honor roll.

White Leghorns made the best score for the week, based on production by varieties, with a lay of slightly over 50 per cent. Barred Rocks came in second with a score of almost 49 per cent, and the White Wyandottes were third with a production of slightly over 43 per cent. Rhode Island Reds with a lay of almost 39 per cent were fourth and "All Other Varieties" class wer elast with a lay of slightly over 34 per cent.

The Toivonen Farm Leghorns from Girard, Pa., continue to lead all pens entered and their score at the end of the 41st week was 1926 eggs. The only change that occurred among the leading pens was in the Rhode Island class, where the entry of Fabry Bros. from East McKeesport, Pa., went up into second position, displacing the pen owned by R. D. Sargent from East Ryegate, Vt.

POWERMEN GET FIRM HOLD ON TITLE IN LEAGUE BY NOSING OUT YANTIC

In a game by far the best of the present season, the Eastern Conn. Power company's team, won out from Yantic Wednesday evening by the score of two to one. As a result of their victory, the Power team, practically clinched this year's pennant, as they will have to win but one of their remaining games, even if either Yantic or St. Joseph's win all of their's, to come out ahead.

The largest crowd of the year was on hand to see the contest and they were well repaid by the exhibition put up by the rival nines. Both teams seemed to realize the importance of the contest, and played for all they were worth. Although the game was filled with sensational fielding plays, the outstanding feature of the contest was the pitching duel between Rabbit Gauthier and Gil Jones. Gauthier will be remembered as the leading hurler in last year's league, but he had not appeared in this year's league until last night, while Jones is probably this year's leading pitcher in all around worth.

Gauthier had decidedly the better of the argument. He allowed the heavy-hitting Yantic team but three hits, and struck out eight, while Gil was touched for seven hits and fanned only three. Gauthier rose to his greatest heights when he retired the side on the seventh with two men on the paths, by fanning E. Hoxie.

The power team scored first, when they pushed a run across in the second inning. Bill Barry led off with a long double to center, and when Lamphere dropped Murphy's fly to right, went to third, and Murphy was safe at first.

Hamel threw to second to catch Murphy stealing, and when Normandin dropped the throw, Barry scored, and Murphy got back to first in safety. Smith forced Murphy at second, and Greene forced Smith at the same bag. Gauthier closed the frame with a fly to Sweet.

There was no more scoring until the fifth when Yantic tied the score. Gauthier got himself into trouble when he walked Hamel, the first batter. Sweet sacrificed Hamel to second. Hamel stole third, and came home while Bill Barry was throwing out McCall at first. E. Hoxie then field to Smith for the third out.

The game went on at one run apiece until th first of the seventh when the Power team pushed across the winning tally. After Murphy had grounded out, Manager Holland brought his pinch hitters into the contest, in a last attempt to win. His judgment in so doing proved to be of the best, as Whitney, batting for Smith promptly dumped a perfect bunt down the third base line and made first easily. Goldblatt went out, Jones to Sweet, Whitney going to second. Whitney stole third, and with two out Gauthier came to bat. The "Rabbit" proceeded to win his own game with a sharp single to right, scoring Whitney with what proved to be the winning run. Joe Barry then filed to E. Hoxie.

In their half of the inning, Yantic made a strong bid for the game, but did not have quite the punch. With two out, Sweet was safe on a grounder to short. McCall singled on the ground to right, and Sweet went around to third.

With the tieing run on third, and the winning run on first, Gauthier settled down and pitched some great pinch pitching, and fanned Hoxie for the final out.

Left Dugas led the hitters with a double and single out of three trips to the plate, while the work of the rival shortstops, and second basemen the Barry Brothers for the E. C. P. and Normandin and H. Hoxie for Yantic featured in the field.

Bon Tons vs. East Ends

For the last two night's the Duvell field has been the scene of two of the best ball games of the present season. On Tuesday, the Warriors battled the Eastern Conn. Power team to a three to three tie, while last night, the Power team barely nosed out Yantic 2 to 1. With less than three more weeks to go, the teams are fighting for every game with the best that is in them, so tonight's game between the Bon Tons and the East Ends should be every bit as good, and either of the other games this week.

The Bon Tons have been steadily improving, and last Friday, put up a fine game against the strong Yantic team, losing 5 to 1. In that game, one bad inning was responsible for the Bon Tons defeat, as they settled down and played fine ball for the rest of the contest. Another thing in favor of the Bon Tons is that they have been practicing hard afternoons, during the week and Manager Wilbur says they will surprise the fans with their exhibition in tonight's game.

Harry Mills, the East Ends' leader, says he will stick to the same team that he has had all year, and goes further to say, that this outfit will be plenty good enough to win from the Bon Tons.

Robinson, will be Manager Jimmie Wilbur's probable choice for pitching honors while Dawkins will do the backstopping. For the East Ends, Mills will probable pitch and Allard will work behind the plate.

The game is scheduled to start at 6:30 P. M. sharp with Umpires Hank Morin, and John Oney handling the contest.

PACOS BLOW UP IN SECOND AND CLEAVERS WIN

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 18—After scoring enough runs in the first inning to win the ball game the Paco team went to pieces in the second and allowed the Cleavers to carry off the honors 6 to 4. The game was called at the end of the third because of darkness. Thomas pitching for Paco aurled fine ball but received poor support and in the second inning had to strike out five men in order to retire the side. The second, which was fatal for Paco, when Farrell, leading off for the Cleavers, got on on an error by Third baseman Taylor. Regnier struck out but got on when catcher Barlbeault dropped the ball. Deforest struck out; Laine walked, filling the bags; Ashley got hit by the pitcher, forcing a run and Levave got a double scoring two runs. Page was safe at first when Ashley was caught at home. Cleveland got on through Perreault's error, scoring Lafave. Nell struck out but was safe when the catcher dropped the ball and Page scored, and Cleveland scored when Farrell struck out and the catcher missed the ball. Regnier struck out, retiring the side.

Ashley hurling for the Cleavers struck out one man and walked two, while Thomas, pitching for Paco, passed but one man and struck out nine in the three innings. The score:

ERRORS BY WILSON GIVE GIANTS VICTORY

CHICAGO, Aug. 18—(AP)—Two errors by Hack Wilson, letting singles get away from him paved the way for New York to defeat Chicago 2 to 1 in a ten-inning pitching duel between Virgil Barnes and Charley Root. In the first inning, Wilson let Tyson's single get away from him and Frisch who had walked, went to third and scored on Jackson's fly. In the tenth Wilson let Synder's single get away and Mueller scored from first with the winning run. Singles by Wilson and Freigau with Grimm's sacrifice in between saved Chicago from a whitewash. BRAVES AND PITTSBURGH SPLIT IN DOUBLE BILL

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 18—(AP)—Boston and Pittsburgh split a twin bill today, the Pirates winning the first 4 to 1 and the Braves taking the nightcap affair, 4 to 3.

Kremer pitched a steady game against Smith and Mogridge in the opener and accounted for two of his team's runs when he hit a home run with a man on base.

The Braves collected four unearned runs to win the second game, errors having figured in all the tallies. Meadows was charged with the defeat, both Bush and Songer having held the visitors safe. Doldsmith was touched frequently until relieved but his team had a lead before Wertz went to the rescue. Score:

PUTS IN HARD DAY'S GRIND FOR BIG BOUT

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 18—(AP)—There was only one nose to count today when a total of Gene Tunney's sparring partners was made. Bug Gorman, the heavyweight, was called to New York by sickness in his family, leaving Osk Till, the long Rochester middleweight, to bear the burden alone.

Billy Vidabeck was expected to reach camp tomorrow, with others to follow. Gorman also is expected to return within a few days.

Tunney is concentrating on his road work. The daily marathon to Mud lake and return has placed his legs and wind in good shape.

He went at his work with a vim this afternoon, glad to get back to the ring after a two day layoff. Bag punching was followed by four fast rounds with Till. Till can box and the challenger was kept on his toes throughout.

DEMPSEY-TUNNEY FIGHT WILL BE HELD AT PHILADELPHIA ON SEPT. 23RD

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney will fight for the heavyweight championship of the world in a ten-round match to a decision at the gigantic Sesqui-Centennial stadium in Philadelphia on the night of Thursday, September 23.

Tex Rickard made this announcement tonight after weeks of fruitless efforts to stage the bout, first in Chicago and then in New York on September 16. In shifting his battleground again thep romoter abandoned contemplated court action, his last resort in an attempt to force the New York state license committee to issue a permit for the match at the Yankee stadium.

Rickard already has received the full backing of Pennsylvania authorities, including Governor Pinchot. Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia, Director E. L. Austin of the Sesqui-Centennial exposition and the Pennsylvanion boxing commission.

The promoter revealed, n fact, he had completed virtually all arrangements for the transfer of the bout to Philadelphia within the last two days while ostensibly moving to take court action here against the license committee, whose steadfast refusal to grant Dempsey a license until he fought Harry Wills, was the final stumbling block to holding the match in New York.

While he felt confident such court action would have been successful in forcing the issue, thep romoter decided it would be impractical, not only because of the prospect of delays and "red tape" but also because of the likelihood that such a step would further jeopardize the welfare of boxing in New York and widen the split between the governing powers of the game, the athletic commission and the license committee.

Rickard has posted $50,000 with the Pennsylvania boxing commission as a guarantee of good faith. His announcement tonight came after ironing out remaining essentials at a final conference with Frank Wiener, chairman, and Robert A. Young, secretary, of the Pennsylvania ring board.

The promoter expects to break all boxing records for attendance and receipts with the Sesqui-Centennial stadium capable of being arranged to accommodate 150,000 spectators. With prices from $5 to $30, the gate receipts, he believes, will approach $2,000,000.

The previous high marks were reached in the Dempsey-Carpentier fight at Boyle's Thirty Acres in 1921, when a crowd of 90,000 paid $1,600,000 to see the "Battle of the Century."

Under the arrangements Rickard has made, the match promises to draw a bigger "gate" in Philadelphia than it would have done in New York and, as a result, will bring the promoter larger profits. His financial agreement calls for ten per cent of the gross receipts to go to the Sesqui-Centennial exposition and five per cent to the Pennsylvania boxing commission, approximately $300,000 figured on the basis of a two-million dollar "house."

Dempsey and Tunney, already established in training camps upstate, were notified tonight by Rickard to prepare to shift their conditioning quarters to the vicinity of Philadelphia. Definite sites have not yet been selected, he said, but the shifts probably will be made within a week. The promoter will go to Philadelphia tomorrow to put his plans into effect.

The Sesqui-Centennial stadium, of concrete construction, is regarded by Rickard as the most suitable arena in the country for the bout. Built now to seat upwards of 75,000 in its horseshoe shaped stands, its capacity can be virtually doubled by additions and by utilizing the infield.

"I'm ready to pack up and start now," said Dempsey when notified he would have to change his training camp. "Gene (Gene Normile, his manager) will be down there tomorrow to look after things."

Tunney said he would move to a camp near Philadelphia within three or four days.

GOV. PINCHOT TO STAND BY COMMISSION'S DECISION

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 18—(AP)—Governor Pinchot tonight said that he would "stand by" the decision of the Pennsylvania State Athletic commission on the question of the holding of the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship in the stadium at Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial exposition Sept. 23.

"I was consulted by the state athletic commission about holding the Dempsey-Tunney match in Philadelphia," the governor said. "My answer to the commision was that the matter was in their hands under the law and that I would stand by their decision."

The commission, consisting of three members appointed by the governor, was created under legislative enactment of 1923 and has jurisdiction over all boxing and wrestling matches in Pennsylvania.

MAYOR KENDRICK APPROVES TUNNEY-DEMPSEY BOUT

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18—(AP)—The Dempsey-Tunney championship bout in the municipal stadium next month has the complete approval of Mayor Kendrick, provided the promoters will agree to "certain conditions."

The mayor so expressed himself tonight.

Just what the "certain conditions" are the mayor did not reveal.

"Everything is in the hands of Mr. Austin," he said, referring to E. L. Austin, director in chief of the exposition.

"I have left everything in his hands and I will be satisfied with whatever he does. He went to New York this morning for the purpose of making the necessary arrangements to bring the big fight here to the Sesqui-Centennial."

Askedw hether his present position in approving the Dempsey-Tunney battle did not contradict his previous stand in whic he opposed a Dempsey-Wills fight for the championship, the mayor said:

"I couldn't see a Dempsey-Wills fight, but I believe that a Dempsey-Tunney fight is O. K."

CAREY SAYS HE HAD NO HAND IN MEETING

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 18—(AP)—Max Carey, deposed captain of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today made known that he, Babe Adams and Carson Bigbee, all of whom were dismissed from the team last Friday, had nothing to do with the calling of the meeting at which a vote was taken on the question of Assistant Manager Fred Clarke's presence on the bench, which action resulted in the removal of the three veterans. Carey also said the trio did not bring up the matter of a vote, but that it was insisted upon by Clarke.

Carey shed his little shaft of light on the mysterious Pirate controversy while his former teammates were splitting a doubleheader with Boston and after Brooklyn had claimed his services by the waiver route. Adams and Bigbe were given unconditional releases.

A meeting, Carey said, was called by Manager William McKechnie "after several of the older players had gone to him not once but several times and advised him they thought something was holding the club back." This was followed the loss of a double header at Boston last week.

It was agreed by McKechnie that the meeting be held, the ex-captain said, but on the following day the manager let it be known the session had been called off.

Later, Max asserted, the players were advised that the meeting would be held, and he said it was at this gathering that Clarke insisted upon a vote. Carey also said the players were cautioned not to discuss the matter of the assistant manager's presence on the bench, but to express their opinion on paper.

TAFTVILLE A. A. AND POWER CO. TEAM CLASH SATURDAY

Keen interest of late has developed in the Eastern Conn. Power Co. team, leaders of the Norwich Twilight league, and is now centered on the game between this club and the Taftville A. A. on Saturday. In the twilight series the Powermen took three out of five games from Taftville and now the Taftville club is seeking revenge in a full regulation game.

Taftville will use Buckland or Lloyd Jarvis in Saturday's contest while Manager Holland of the E. C. P. club is remaining silent on his pitcher but it is almost certain that Lefty Dugas will do the work.

YOUNG COULON TO GET CRACK AT STATE TITLE IN BOUT AT TAFTVILLE

That the Army-Navy club of Taftville is going to jump into the limelight of boxing became known last night when Matchmaker Beauregard announced that the main bout of the show to be put on Sept. 1 would be for the state flyweight title.

In making the announcement Mr. Beauregard said that he had signed Dark Cloud Bradley, present holder of the Connecticut title and former holder of the New England title, to defend his title against Al Beauregard (Young Coulon) in the main 12 round bout. The matching of these two boys comes as the result of Kid Smoke Sylvia being unable to go through with the bout as first announced by the club. Several times has Beauregard been matched to meet the titleholder but something has gone wrong at the last minute to cause the match to fall through.

Ever since Beauregard lost the title to Pinky Silverberg he has been anxious to get another chance at the crown. Silverberg put an almost prohibitive price on his services which no promoter could meet. Then Silverberg lost the title when Dark Cloud rudely beat him in Hartford. Beauregard held the title only a short time, having won it from Happy Rollason in Norwich in one short round.

This bout should be an even better attraction bout than if Kid Smoke had been the Taftville boy's opponent. Dark Cloud is well known throughout the boxing circles in New England and has found on a number of cards in Hartford and Holyoke where the local fight followers have seen him. Bradley is a fast stepping colored boy who boxes cleverly and yet packs plenty of steam in his gloves.

Beauregard on the other hand is a natural slugger and one of the hardest hitting boys of his weight in the game today. He is not as clever a boxer as Bradley but will give the titleholder plenty to do to keep out of the way of his smashing rights and lefts. Beauregard has put in about six months with the Army and his boxing has been by no means neglected for he is constantly in training and from reports has picked up a lot of ring experience since joining the outfit. He is at present stationed at Camp Devens.

GREB IS READY FOR HIS BOUT WITH FLOWERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—Ten days of strenuous training at his Pompton lakes, N. J., camp have put Harry Greb into excellent condition for his 15-round middleweight title battle with Tiger Flowers, the Georgia "Deacon," at Madison Square garden Thursday night. The battle-scarred Pittsburgh veteran is confident of his ability to regain the 160-pound crown he lost to the negro in the same arena last February.

Flowers, who has established himself as a fighting champion in his six months' reign, also pronounced himself fit and ready to defend his laurels. The picturesque negro battler has done his training at a local gymnasium. He scaled 162 after a light workout today. Greb also is close to the class limit.

Westerly Highway Department Engineer A. L. Leon, will begin the work of laying the hot mix surface on Main street from the point where the operation ceased near the foot of Union street, as far south as the north line of the G. C. LIVES ON FARM IN OKLAHOMA

Happy Woman Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a houseful of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and tired.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 396, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?

AND . . there's only one way to get it!

ONCE you learn the refreshing goodness of natural tobacco taste in a cigarette, nothing else will satisfy you.

And the only way to get it is from the tobaccos themselves. It calls for the finest qualities of leaf, both Turkish and Domestic, and the rarest skill in blending them, but—man, the result does speak for itself! Look at Chesterfield's record—and "draw your own conclusions!"

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Prickly Porky of the Sea

The Prickly Porky of the Sea
Says, "When you find me, let me be."
—Old Mother Nature.

He doesn't say it in words. Goodness, no! But he does say it just as the Prickly Porky of the land says it, and a chestnut burr says it. It is said without words. You have merely to look at Prickly Porky of the Sea to know that it is best to leave him alone.

"That," said he, "is the Prickly Porky of the Sea

Who is the Prickly Porky of the Sea? Ask Jimmy Skunk. Jimmy found out by being careless. He was poking around under some rocks to see what he could find there. "Ouch!" he cried, and jumped back, holding up one little black paw. He had pricked that little black paw on something sharp. Very cautiously he had looked to see what it was. There, just under that rock, was something that looked very much like a big green chestnut burr. It was covered all over with little, sharp-pointed spines. They pointed in all directions. It was all very curious. Jimmy didn't have the least idea what he was looking at. He didn't know whether it was a plant, or some kind of a sea animal. Certainly, it didn't look as if it could move about.

"What are you staring at?" inquired Reddy Fox, coming up behind him.

"You tell," replied Jimmy, pointing to the queer thing under the rock.

"Let's get it out where we can see it better," said Reddy.

Jimmy turned his head aside to hide a grin. "That's a good idea," said he, "you pull it out."

So Reddy reached in a black paw to pull the thing out. "Ouch!" cried Reddy, and the queer thing remained right where it was.

"What's the trouble?" inquired Graywing the Gull, coming along just at that moment.

"There isn't any trouble," replied Reddy crossly. "We are just wondering what this thing is here."

"Pull it out and let's look at it," said Graywing.

"Pull it out yourself," retorted Reddy.

"Oh, if that's the way you feel about it, I will," replied Graywing, and, reaching under the rock with his stout bill, he pulled the queer-looking thing out. It looked more than ever like a great, big chestnut burr.

Jimmy Skunk remembered to be polite. "If you please, Neighbor Gull," said he, "we should like to know what this thing is. Is it alive? We have never seen anything like it before excepting away back on land where the chestnut trees grow. There every fall when the nuts drop they are in coverings that look a whole lot like this thing."

Graywing's eyes twinkled. "This," said he, "is the Prickly Porky of the Sea. It is a Sea Urchin, a Green Sea Urchin and it is very much alive. It is sometimes called a Sea Egg, but there's no real sense in such a name as that. You'll find that underneath all those spines is a shell, and the owner of that shell lives inside. He doesn't want to be meddled with, so Old Mother Nature has given him all of those spines. Do you see that thing over yonder?"

Reddy and Jimmy looked. There was a curious pin-cushion shaped shell, but without any spines on it, and covered with tiny knobs. When Jimmy turned it over, he discovered a good-sized opening in the bottom. The shell was empty. "That," said Graywing, "is the shell of a Sea Urchin."

"Oh!" said Jimmy. "Thank you very much, Neighbor Gull."

"Don't mention it," replied Graywing.

LIDDELL AND GINGAS GIRL MARRIED BY C. G. CHAPLIN AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 18—David Hugh Liddell, sailor, first class, aboard the United States Coast Guard destroyer Ericsson, state pier, and Alice Gingas, 21, former Pawtucket, R. I., girl where she had been employed in a mill as a weaver, who were arrested yesterday by Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged upon information furnished by the Gingas girl's sister with being lascivious persons, were presented on that charge in the police court this morning. They were not prosecuted, however, for Liddell expressed a willingness to marry the girl and to permit such a plan to be followed. Judge Prince ordered the case continued until tomorrow morning. Immediately following the adjournment of court Liddell and the girl, accompanied by Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, went to the municipal building where the couple were given a marriage license. Liddell and the girl then went to the state pier where they were married by the United States Coast Guard chaplain.

ALL QUIET WEDNESDAY AT BERNSTEIN FACTORY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 18—The anticipated trouble at the plant of the New London Coat company, Armstrong building, which opened its doors for business this morning, did not occur, although Morris Bernstein, proprietor of the manufacturing establishment was firm in his belief that his help would be molested when they appeared for work. Following the request of Bernstein last night that his help be given police protection this morning several patrolmen were on duty at the building when the 20 men and women appeared for work. There were no signs of labor agitators present and the help approached the building without molestation.

A couple of colored men became possessed of an idea that they must have a motor ride, but their manner of getting their desires was not of the sort approved by autoists generally so this morning found both the men under arrest and waiting for the police court to assemble. There they were accused of defrauding taxicab drivers. Ross and a companion hired Charles Johnson to take them to Narragansett Pier and agreed to pay the driver $20. It was a sort of stage agreement and didn't last longer than to get the colored sports to the pier. There some talked the senseless sort occurred, only to enable the companion of Ross to slip away without settling. Ross, however, desired to return to New London. He was brought back here and handed over to the police. He told his story to Judge Crandall, and that led to a fine of $20 being imposed with a sentence of twenty days in jail. Ross seems to lack ordinary intelligence. He has before been in court and has been warned, but he does not learn from experience. Frank Wilson, colored, hired Gerald Fisher to drive him to 25 Union street. The journey was made, but Wilson was too drunk to know whether he was in one street or another. He didn't have any money to pay so he was arrested as a beat. He drew a fine of $5 for intoxication and the same $20 for defrauding a taxicabman.

John McKenna, charged with intoxication [illegible] he was rightly charged. He asked for leniency, saying that he made a mistake that he would not offend. He formally he made a resolution to cut out the booze, so he was allowed to get out of town.

Israel Goldstein, a store keeper on Main street undertook to break some glass into a receptacle this morning, but broke part of the glass in the street so that when A. F. Peckham of Groton drove up in an auto he ran upon theb roken glass, some of which punctured the tires on the same. This made Peckham lose his patience and he complained to a policeman. Goldstein represented that he held up his hand as Peckham approached and warned him not to run his car where the broken glass was to be found. Peckham didn't heed the warning. Goldstein was taken to the police court but there met refusal to prosecute. Peckham was told that he had a chance to prosecute Goldstein for damages, but a criminal process would not lie against him.

Owen Murtha, 90, well known New London resident, is critically ill at the residence of his daughter, Miss Nora Murtha, on Squire street. Mr. Murtha had been in good health until about a week ago when he became ill.

Mrs. Curtis Tilley, of Essex; Mrs. Joseph Bailey, 238 Colman street; Bolden Sozarko, Oakdale and Miss Elsie Hartlung and infant daughter, East Ferry, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed.

Mrs. Mary E. Bishop, 87, widow of David Bishop died yesterday afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Degnes J. McEwen, 53 Washington street. Mrs. Bishop had been ill for several weeks. She was a member of the Second Congregational church.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B Stoeckel today ordered suspended the drivers' licenses of [illegible] Rashack and Bernard O'Brien, piper, and Michael Barca, 8 [illegible] street. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Those who saw Jackie Coogan in The Rag Man will recall the plucky fight of the firm of Kelly and Ginsberg to regain a fortune which had been stolen by unscrupulous promoters. The funny situations which led to, and followed, their sudden ascension to wealth will be remembered by all lovers of wholesome comedy. Now Kelly and Ginsberg have returned to their poverty in Old Clothes, and once again they start the heart-treaking battle for wealth. In this picture, Jackies director Eddie Cline, has included a strong love story, which together with the comedy situations, developed around the little star, provides an unbeatable combination for genuine entertainment. Old Clothes is Jackie's first picture on his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract and comes to the Breed theater Friday.

Willard Mack wrote the tale especially for Jackie. The players supporting Jackie are Max Davidson, Lillian Elliott, Joan Crawford, Alan Forrest, James Mason and Stanton Heck. Jack Coogan, Sr., supervised the production which was photographed by Frank B. Good.

The last chapter of the Radio detective and an our Gang Comedy will be shown with The Rag Man.

Broadway Theater

A mighty entertaining program opens at the Broadway theater today to continue for three days, bringing joy to all who see it.

There are five exceptionally fine Keith-Albee acts scheduled that run the entire gamut of variety.

While his wife mourned him as dead, there lay on a hospital cot a man swathed in bandages in whom a spark of life still lingered, but who identity was completely lost. With his face blown away, he was beyond the recognition of his friends; with his memory groping in darkness he was unknown even to himself. Then surgeons, like sculptors, fashioned a face from living clay. He was a man remade by the miracle of modern surgery—a man destined to walk the earth unrecognized—a man doomed to be a stranger even to his wife!

This man's strange story is told in Back to Life!, showing now at the Broadway theater with Patsy Ruth Miller in the role of a woman who, twice married, is strangely attracted to a man who reminds her of her first husband, reported killed in battle. David Powell plays the role of the husband who returns from the dead with a new face—and the old love for a woman who has wed another.

What are the complications when he comes back from the dead—unrecognized?

DOG SHOW TO BE BIG FEATURE OF NORWICH FAIR

When the American Kennel club sanctioned the holding of a Dog show in Connecticut with the Norwich fair on September 6, 7 and 8th, few people realized that the show was to become one of the principal attractions of the fair. Now over a hundred special prizes are to be awarded in this show.

The fair association this year has planned many fine attractions, securing the best of vaudeville and something different that has been seen at a Norwich fair, at the same time reducing the gate admission to 50 cents for adults and 25 for children.

The Better Baby contest, such a success last year, seems destined to become a big attraction this year and this with other features is to make the 1926 fair a leader.

Racing, the balloon ascension, special concert programs by St. Joseph's Champion Boy Scout band of Willimantic, the flower show, automobile show, mercantile and manufacturers show, cattle and poultry show and many midway rides and shows will provide all kinds of amusement for every member of the family.

The fair has become an eastern Connecticut institution and with the dates brought back to Labor day and the two days following it is expected that thousands will avail themselves of the opportunity of enjoying the clean and wholesome entertainment planned for them.

Public Health Nursing

Among the fields for which training is given at the Backus hospital, where a new class for nurses is received in September, is that of public health nursing. From her experience in this field the following is written by Kate M. MacKenzie of this city.

To the high school graduate who may be considering nursing as a profession, the public health nursing field offers splendid opportunities.

District nursing or public health nursing as known today dates back to the middle of the nineteenth century. At that time, Florence Nightingale, with her all embracing knowledge of health matters, caused the attitude of the world towards nurses to be changed and raised the ancient art of nursing to the dignity of a profession. As a direct result of her work together with that of her farsighted co-workers the public health nurse is abroad in the land today. The number of these nurses increases yearly, but not until such time as our young women realize the importance of adequate preparation for this branch of nursing will the supply equal the demand.

A public health nurse is a graduate registered nurse, who has had special post graduate training in public health nursing. She serves the health of the community, "with an eye to the social as well as the medical aspects of her function." She does this by giving skilled bedside care, by teaching and demonstrating the laws of health and personal hygiene and by carrying out modern scientific ways to prevent disease. She is a keen observer of symptoms that she may advise early medical care. The law does not allow a nurse to prescribe treatment or medicine for any person, but it requires her to report to the health officer, any suspected case of communicable disease that is not under a physician's care. By this cooperation she assists in preventing the spread of these diseases.

The public health nurse has two functions. She helps sick people to get well and she teaches well people to keep well. In performance of the first function she makes daily visits to acute cases and obstetrical patients, gives the necessary nursing care and teaches a member of the family what to do until the next visit is made. She gives treatments and does surgical dressings under the physician's orders. Possibly she makes more than one visit a day to a patient, but she does not stay at any one patient's house all the time. She visits the homes of tubercuious patients and instructs the family as to carrying out the doctor's orders. When there are enough public health nurses in a town the acute communicable diseases of childhood are given nursing care if this is thought wise by the local health officer and physicians. Of the greatest importance is her function as a teacher of preventive measures. Expectant mothers are visited and the need of medical care is urged. Advice is given as to clothing, diet and exercise. She teaches the mother how to make the clothes and the bed for the baby. When the baby is born the public health nurse visits the mother and demonstrates bathing and dressing the baby, the value of breast feeding and of regular hours.

Well baby conferences where mothers may come for medical advice have the assistance of the public health nurse. She measures and weighs the baby and aids the mother in following the doctor's advice. The public health nurse may devote all of her time to school children. If this is the case it is her duty to assist the school physician with physical examinations, to visit in the homes and advise parents in regard to physical conditions needing correction. She teaches the value of a periodic medical examination and of all known measures for control of disease.

In order to be self sustaining every nurse must consider the question of material well being. The weekly wage of the public health nurse may appear small, until it is realized that she is employed every week in the year. It is customary to allow at least one month with pay for a vacation period.

Janet Geister in her survey of the private duty nurse advances this argument for public health work: "Our visiting nurse associations are strengthened immeasurably through their supervision. Through this supervision the nurse receives continuous education, continuous stimulation and continuous opportunity to develop her own ability, and she is able to render nursing service to six or eight patients every day."

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—Extensive readjustment of speculative accounts, with a rather widespread tendency to switch from the industrials to the rails, imparted considerable irregularity to today's stock market. Selling pressure was quite pronounced during the morning, due to a renewal of bear attacks and heavy liquidation by small traders who followed the advice of some of the large commission houses to lighten long commitments and to restrict purchases to high grade issues which had not shared extensively in the recent advance. Early declines ran from one to four points in scores of popular issues, but these were reduced or converted into moderate gains during the rally which started in the early afternoon and continued to the close.

Although call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent. and held at that figure all day, with a plentiful supply of funds available, Wall street continued to express concern over the credit situation. The day's business news was mixed in character. The weekly steel trade review was reported that mill operations were being continued at a high rate with no appreciable falling off in new business, although attention was called to the growing imports of foreign steel products. The weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute showed another large increase in the daily average of gross crude oil production last week. The Cuban-American Sugar company cuts its quarterly dividend from 50 to 25 cents.

Heavy liquidation was again apparent in United States Steel common, presumably in further reflection of unofficial intimations that no stock dividend would be declared this year. The stock broke more than 7 points below the high record established yesterday to 152 1-2 but later rallied to 154 3-4, off 1 3-8 net. General Motors, which has shared the leadership of recent markets with steel, sold as low as 201 1-4, but closed at 205 3-4 for a net gain of 1 1-4 points.

Mack Trucks was one of the outstanding industrial strong spots, closing five points higher at 134. Pierce Arrow preferred jumped 7 1-2 points to a new record price at 126 and the common closed 2½ points higher at 32. With early business coming up to expectations, good buying also developed in several of the other motors and accessories, particularly American Bosch Magneto, Electric Storage Battery, Hudson, Dodge Brothers A and White.

The announcement of several large orders for railroad equipment brought fresh buying into that group, with special strength being shown by Air Reduction, General Railway Signal and Westinghouse Air Brake. The traditional "selling on the good news" which followed the recent announcement that Shubert Theatres had been placed on a $5 annual basis, was checked by reports that a higher rate might be expected because of large current earnings. Cuban American Sugar touched a new low for the year at 21 5-8. National Tea broke 12 1-2 points to 144¾ on a couple of sales.

Buying of the rails was stimulated by the publication of a report of the bureau of railway economics showing that earnings and traffic of class one roads broke all records in the first six months of the year, and by unconfirmed reports that the Van Sweringens were attempting to come to terms with minority stockholders before resubmitting their revised "Nickel Plate" plan. Union Pacific touched 153 1-2, the highest price since 1914, and Chesapeake and Ohio, Rock Island and Pere Marquette attained their highest prices in a year, or longer.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity prices were mixed. Active wheat futures rallied about a cent a bushel on reports of adverse weather. Cotton closed 6 to 11 points net higher, with a better demand noted from trade sources. Raw Sugar was unchanged but futures were slightly easier. Coffee prices closed 7 points lower to 8 points higher.

A sharp rally of over 10 points in French francs, which ruled around 2¾ cents, featured the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly firmer around $4.85. Japanese yen yielded slightly on profit taking by speculators.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—Buying of semi-speculative railroad liens and a few selected industrial issues failed to bolster up the bond market today and prices generally sagged to lower levels. Trading was extremely dull, duplicating the performances of the past few days.

The broader demand for rail bonds was linked up with the exhibition of strength given by leading carrier stocks Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s jumped 4 points to 95 following the stock into new high ground, on buying inspired by reports that negotiations were under way for a settlement of the differences between minority shareholders and the Van Sweringens over the revised Nickel Plate merger terms. Nickel Plate issues also were strong and substantial gains were recorded by International Great Northern adjustment 6s and Delaware & Hudson 5 1-2s. These advanced were partially offset by the heaviness of Illinois Central 6 1-2s and Norfolk Southern refunding 5s.

Oils gave the best demonstration of group strength in the industrial list, being aided by the better demand for petroleum stocks. Skelly 6 1-2s sold at 143, within 5 points of their high record, while General Asphalt 6s climbed to a new top at 107. Virginia Carolina Chemical 7s also reached a new high level.

Reduction of the Cuban-American Sugar common dividend caused some liquidation of producing company securities but Warner Sugar Refining

ASKS ORDER DISSOLVING DAVIS-WARNER ARMS CORPORATION

Asking the appointment of a receiver and a decree dissolving the Davis Warner Arms corporation of Norwich, Franklyn B. Warner of Norwich has started action against the corporation in the superior court for this county. The papers in the action were filed Wednesday with the clerk of the court in this city.

Plaintiff sets forth in his complaint that the corporation is organized under the laws of New York with principal office in Norwich. That it has an authorized capital stock of $200,000 divided into 2,000 shares of a par value of $100 of which 873 have been issued and are now outstanding.

The plaintiff is the owner of 500 shares.

The defendant has issued trade acceptances aggregating $511.83 which were due Aug. 15, 1926, which have not been paid, acceptances aggregating $623.45 will be due August 20, 1926 and the payroll of upwards of $1700 for the week ending August 14, 1926, is unpaid.

Suits have been threatened by numerous creditors.

Plaintiff is informed that there are orders recorded and unfilled aggregating $23,392, which can be filled with the present force and with the materials now on hand, without the expenditure of more than a few hundred dollars for supplies. The materials in their present condition are practically worthless.

The defendant is solvent but its assets are in danger of waste through attachment and litigation.

SHELTERING ARMS FAMILY MOVES TO NEW HOME

The Sheltering Arms family is now at home in the handsome new building on Rockwell street, having moved into the new home Wednesday afternoon, from the old home off Washington street. Automobiles supplied by Mrs. George W. Carroll, Mrs. Charles B. Lee and Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, were used by the committee to transport the family to the new residence where they were shown to their rooms.

The family expressed themselves as delighted with the new residence, it being the first time any of them had seen the building.

Within a few days the new Sheltering Arms building is to be opened for public inspection, the date for the opening to be announced by the committee.

Through the courtesy of the Backus hospital authorities, the ambulance was made available to carry one of the members of the household to the new home, cars being loaned to convey the others.

Visitors so early are a hindrance to the management of the home and it will make the work and confusion of transfer much easier if the public waits for the regularly announced visiting day, to inspect the fine new building.

STRAW RIDE AND OUTING HELD AT BEACH POND

The Taftville Maennerchor turning section held a straw ride and outing recently at Beach pond. Thirty members made the trip and there was a programme of athletic and acquatic sports. During the afternoon there was a frankfurter roast, with marshmallows and soda water. Around the campfire there were songs with ukelelle accompaniment and at the close of the evening there was a display of fire works.

The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Herbert Renard, Walter Hoeffer and the Misses Mildred Kloss and Anna Retkovske.

Nurses Pass Examinations

Miss Mary Fitzgerald of Norwich was among those who passed the state board examinations for nurses. Miss Fitzgerald was one of 12 to graduate in May from St. Joseph's hospital training school of Willimantic. Miss Mary Ottenheimer of Willimantic, another graduate of St. Joseph's hospital, also passed her examinations.

GAVE TALK ON ROTARY EMBLEM AND ITS USE

The educational committee of the Norwich Rotary club had charge of the programme for the weekly meeting of the club held on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, chairman of the educational committee conducted the programme which included an interesting talk on "The Rotary Emblem and its Uses", by R. LaRue Bliven and another talk on "Rotary in Relation to Political, Trade and Commercial Organizations."

Mr. Bliven in his talk emphasized the fact that the Rotary emblem was not to be used as a trade mark, for advertizing purposes or on the letter heads of business firms. He described the emblem and its history.

Speaking of Rotary as to relations in politics Dr. Campbell said that Rotary could not adopt resolutions on political questions or in fact enter into any political controversy as a club. He also spoke of the necessity of not becoming affiliated as a club with any trade or commercial organization but urged that all Rotarians support the local chamber of commerce as individuals only.

At the business session, President E. A. Haris presided, and Flint Brayton acted as song-leader with Henry J. LaFontaine at the piano. One of the musical features of the meeting was the delightful solo by William G. Park who also had the moral, but not vocal, support of Lucius Briggs.

Secretary Edward W. Jewett read a letter from George Falconer, former pro at the Norwich Golf club in which George complimented the club on its successful one day tournament held recently. Mention of the fall conclave which is to be held Sept. 28-29 at Lennox, Mass., was made by President Harris.

Sea Captain Buys Local Dogs

It will interest Norwich dog fanciers to know that Captain Harvey A. Parks, a shepherd dog fancier and captain of the hundred and one ton yacht "Tried Avon," has bought Alph of Chase Cliff and Audrey of Chase Cliff. Both dogs are to be shipped to Baltimore, Maryland, where they will take part in many of the southern dog shows. Captain Parks, who is very well known on all seas, was aboard the "Peter M. Crowell" when she made her memorable trip as the first boat through the Panama canal on Aug. 16, 1914.

SEEKS FORECLOSURE ON PREMISES IN COLCHESTER

A foreclosure action was filed Wednesday with the superior court clerk by the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Co., Hartford, trustee of the estate of Norris W. Rathbun, late of East Haddam, Conn., against Kalman Berman of Norwich, Frank Falk, The Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid society and Joseph W. Pincus, all of New York city; Brackett Shaw and Lunt of Somersworth, N. H., Paramount Radio Corp., of St. Louis, Mo., Lucy A. Dawley and Thomas Tornowski of Colchester; and the town of Colchester and Walter D. Brockett, now or formerly of New Haven.

It is claimed that April 1, 1911, Berman and Falk owed Walter D. Brockett, then of New Haven, $3,500. They gave a note for that amount, payable to Brockett in annual payments of $500 each with interest. To secure the note they mortgaged land in Colchester.

Plaintiff owns the note which is unpaid except that the principal has been reduced to $1,950 and interest paid to Feb. 1, 1925.

The Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid society claims to have a mortage for $1,000 on the premises. Joseph W. Pincus claims a mortgage for $132.41.

Other claims, as shown by the writ follow: Brackett, Shaw and Lunt, $400; Paramount Radio Corp., $500; Lucy A. Dawley, $1,000; Thomas Tornowski, $373; town of Colchester, tax lien, $283.38 and an attachment lien for $1,100.

Kalman Berman and Frank Falk are now in possession of the premises.

Plaintiff claims foreclosure and possession of the premises and a judgment against Walter D. Brockett for any deficiency judgment found to be due the plaintiff.

CASE AGAINST MANUAL SANTOS IS NOLLED

The case of Manual Santos, colored, of 172 Whipple avenue presented rather strange appearances in police court Wednesday morning. Judge Arthur F. Libby first entering a nolle on a charge of breach of the peace on payment of costs of $5, then having the case reopened and charging Santos with resisting an officer. The final disposal of the case was a complete nolle, allowing Santos to go free.

Santos got into trouble when he saw a Polish man beating a child on Thames street. Santos told the man to stop and was told to mind his business or take a beating himself. Santos complained to the police and Officer Gwiczdowski was sent to investigate the compaint. He questioned the Polish man but Santos became aroused and pushed the officer. Santos was then arrested.

After hearing the evidence, Judge Libby stated that he could see no case for an arrest and that he would enter an absolute nolle.

The cases against the two Baltic boys, charged with ransacking the camp of Grosvenor Ely, near Baltic, were continued for one year, the boys to make good for the damage they had caused at the Ely camp.

NORWICH C. E. UNION PICNIC PLANNED AT VERSAILLES

The picnic lunch will be provided by the entertaining society. Rev. George R. Atha of Groton will be the speaker at the picnic.

The fad for growing gladioli has spread like wildfire in and about Norwich this season.

HELD FOR DRIVING WITHOUT A LICENSE

Walking into the local police station to report an accident John Niewierowski, 41, of R. D. 5, Preston, was found to be without a driver's license and he was booked on the charge of operating a motor vehicle without a license. His Dodge truck had struck a Star sedan Wednesday morning at the Eighth street crossing, the Star car being owned by Albert Hayden, and damaged it to the extent of a dented body, sprung axle, broken glass and damaged tire.

Niewierowski informed the police that he had tried several times to obtain an operator's license but each time had been told that he needed more practice before he could obtain one. Evidently he decided to drive just the same.

MAYOR WATERS ANNOUNCES WINNERS IN CHILDRENS BICYCLE PARADE

The succes of the bicycle, scooter and tricycle parade, the first ever held by the playgrounds of Norwich, will undoubtedly make this feature of the playground season one of the leading events of the season. Hundreds of people lined Main street and east Main street Wednesday evening, while automobiles were lined three deep across the street, all there to watch the gaily decorated vehicles of boyhood and girlhood pleasure pass slowly by.

The parade formed at Preston bridge shortly before seven o'clock and headed by the East Side Drum crops, "Billy" Galligan, drum major, marched down Main street to Franklin square, then countermarched through Main and East Main streets to the Duwell Athetlic field. The owners of the bicycles, tricycles and scooters had gone to great lengths to decorate their entries, many of the decorations meriting applause. There was everything from the heavily decorated bicycle to the smallest of scooters and the designs showed careful work by the nearly 200 boys and girls in line.

After the return to Duwell field the paraders marched once around the field, then gathered in front of the grandstand to hear the names of the winners in their respective divisions.

Several hundred people remained at Duwell field to listen to the announcement of the winners and as the names were called the children of the winning playground cheered their playmates.

The announcement of the prize winners was made by His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, these being as follows.

Bicycles. First Prize—Bicycle donated by Jack's Sport shop, won by John Ryan, East Side playgrounds. This bicycle was decorated to represent a sailboat and the announcement of the judges met instant approval.

Second prize—Two bicycle tires donated by Jack's Sport shop, won by John Gasciwicz of the Falls playground. This entry was decorated in national colors and its rider to represent Uncle Sam.

Third Prize—Bicycle light donated by Jack's Sport shop, won by Nick Tarrant of the Falls playground. His bicycle was decorated in streamers of orange and black and the rider to represent a pirate.

Fourth prize—Bicycle saddle donated by Donovan's Motorcycle and Bicycle shop, won by Gilbert Adams of the Hobart avenue playgrounds. The bicycle was decorated with red and white crepe paper and a windmill was mounted on the handlebars.

Fifth prize—Pair of handlebars and grips, donated by the Alling Rubber Co. won by Richard Williamson of the East Side playground. A streamer effect made this entry most attractive.

Sixth prize—Bicycle bell donated by Supt. Earle Brigham, won by Charles Jaskiewicz of the Elizabeth street playground. This bicycle was decorated in red and white, with a huge paper umbrella on the handlebars.

Scooters. First prize, girls—Scooters donated by the Alling Rubber Co., won by Ruth Harris of the Jail Hill playground. Her entry was decorated in yellow and black crepe paper.

Second prize, girls—Prize to be donated by the Recreation commission, won by Gertrude Galligan of the East Side playground. This scooter was also prettily decorated in colors and a doll was standing to propel the scooter.

First prize, boys—Scooter donated by Hub Cycle Co., of Boston, Jack's Sport shop local agents, won by Walter Lamb of the East Side playground. This scooter was prettily decorated with wisteria.

Tricycles, first prize—A tricycle donated by Norwich Recreation commission, won by Mildred Murray of the East Side playground. Her tricycle was beautifully decorated with roses and streamers.

The judges were John M. Lee, member of the Recreation commission, chairman; Mayor Milo R. Waters, Edwin A. Haris, president of the Norwich Rotary club, William A. Anderson, president of the Norwich Lions club, John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Annie B. Turner, senior vice president of the Daughters of Union Veterans and Mrs. Joseph E. Burns, of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women.

In the awarding of prizes the name of Gertrude Galligan was announced in the tricycle division instead of that of Mildred Murray and this correction has been noted in the list of prize winners above. The prize for the tricycle division therefore goes to Mildred Murray and the second prize in the Scooter division goes to Gertrude Galligan.

All prize winners were informed that they may obtain their prizes by calling at the office of Earle E. Brigham, superintendent of playgrounds on Monday next. The office of Superintendent Brigham is in the town building.

Special mention should be made of the East Side Drum corps as the playing of this corps added much to the appearance of the parade, and also tended to hold the crowd at the Duwell field after the parade had disbanded.

POETRY

A Nasturtium Bowl

There's a bowl of nasturtiums in my room,
A lovely bit of color and bloom,
Lifting my thoughts, for awhile, away
From the seemingly endless tasks of the day.

They whisper to me of the out of doors,
They lead me from gardens to woods and shores.
My hands keep on working, because they must,
But my mind is filled with a wanderlust.

And far out beyond my grim kitchen walls,
I'm beholding forests and waterfalls.
I'm seeing the blue of a cloudless sky,
I'm hearing the breezes softly sigh.

How what seems the work I wanted to shun;
The unpleasant tasks—how quickly they're done.
And all this refreshment of mind and soul
Because of my vivid nasturtium bowl.
—Ida M. Thomas in The New York Sun.

The Harvest Field

Such life was in the harvest field
As nowhere else the earth could yield;
With fair-time sports did all abound,
Music and mirth were all around.

The crickets chirped at break of day
Inviting all good company:
"Come, hither come, we have good cheer,
Bright dew and honey sweets are here."

The chafer came his mate to woo,
And drank her health in cooling dew.
The wandering bees stopped by the way
Wherever a floweret bade them stay.

The flies they reveled all day long
And hummed full many a cheerful song.
The gnats danced up and down, the more
The sunny rays sent forth their store.

With song and dance the mirth did blend
As though the feast would never end.
The guests went in and out apace,
And joy was seen on every face.

But now the world to time must yield.
Reapers today have cleared the field.
This pretty house is all undone.
And dance and fair-time joys are gone.

IMMUNITY FOR RUM SHIPS 12 MILES OFF MASS. COAST

Decision Handed Down by United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston—Ruling is at Variance With Decision Handed Down in New York—Three Former Chiefs of Police Are Among Ten New Prohibition Agents Appointed to the Enforcement Unit in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—American rum runners can come with immunity to twelve miles off the New England coast but they have no legal protection against seizure at any distance from the New York coast, the United States circuit Court of Appeal has decided. The decision handed down in Boston today is at variance with one handed down in New York some time ago.

Apparently, until the supreme court overcomes this inconsistency with a higher ruling or congress by definitive legislation sets forth more precisely the nation's police powers this situation will exist.

The decision here today was by majority, two judges holding that under the present law the twelve mile limit is fixed and can only be extended by legislative action. The third judge held, with the New York court, that police jurisdiction extends to whatever part of the ocean the American flag is flown in.

The circuit court reversed the decision in the case of James M. Lee of Gloucester, convicted in the district court of conspiracy to smuggle liquor after he was seized with his boat on February 15, 1925, about 24 miles off Boston light after contact with the French schooner L'Homme.

The district attorney's office here also raised the question whether under the Lee decision, the anti-smuggling treaty with Great Britain can be operative. Under this treaty the effective limit is one hour's sailing or steamship distance from the coast, which is often more than 12 miles. The New York circuit court has held that these treaties are not self-executive and cannot exceed legislative action while the Boston court in holding the jurisdiction over American ships to 12 miles appears also to hold this as the limit of action under the treaties.

TEN NEW DRY ENFORCEMENT AGENTS FOR MASSACHUSETTS

Finnegan, in charge of rum smuggling prevention here. They are expected to relieve him of a large amount of the investigation and prosecution and to serve as liasions between the coast guard and the enforcement badquarters in Boston. They will be paid $1,800 a year, equipped with automobiles and allowed the use of coast guard boats.

The three former chiefs are Colonel John E. Parker of Glouchester; John G. Mansfield or Ipswich; and Daniel Crowley of Walpole. The others are Dennis F. BRITISH COAL MINERS AND OWNERS ARE FAR APART

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—When the representatives of the miners and coal owners met today to continue the negotiations which it was hoped might bring a settlement to the long standing controversy, it was found that the parties to the dispute were as far from agreement as in the early days of the truggle.

New Arrest Imminent For Hall-Mills Murder

Pistol Believed to Have Been Used Found in a West Philadelphia House.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19—(AP)—Police tonight said an important arrest here in the Hall-Mills murder mystery was imminent. The statement was made after the finding in a West Philadelphia house of the pistol believed to have been used in the slaying of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer at New Brunswick, N. J., four years ago.

The pistol, a blue barreled, automatic weapon of Spanish make, was discovered by Lieutenant William Belshaw of the police murder squad, on a clue furnished by H. Stanley Trego, of this city. In a statement to New Jersey authorities, Trego named William A. Winter a Philadelphia chauffeur, as the professor of the pistol.

Belshaw, however, declined to say whether the weapon had been found at Winter's home.

"I can't tell you now who the owner is," said Belshaw. "All I can say is if the man who had this gun tells all he knows, he's going to startle every one connected with the case. If you knew what I know about this pistol, you would be morally certain that it is the weapon which the New Jersey authorities want. I know how it got here and where it came from, just a few days after the murder. The man who has it in his possession knows what he is talking about. He knows things about the case no one else knows and has seen things that very few persons have seen."

The imminence of another arrest was revealed by Director of Public Safety George Elliott after a conference with Belshaw. "There probably will be an arrest tonight," said the director.

Defense counsel offered to put Carpender, wealthy broker cousin, and Stevens, eccentric brother of Mrs. Hall on the stand to testify under oath, but Judge Clears ruled that the defense could not call witnesses and that Carpender and Stevens could not be sworn. He said they would be permitted to testify unsworn, but defense counsel would not permit this.

Coventry to Have Nathan Hale Pageant

State Probably Will Combine With Tolland County in Celebration.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Upon recommendation of Governor Trumbull, the Nathan Hale celebration scheduled to take place in the hall of the house of representatives at the state capitol on Wednesday evening, Sept. 22, with Senator Hiram Bingham as the eulogist, is expected to be transferred to South Coventry, Hale's birthplace, in order that the state might combine its program with the exercises planned by the Tolland county Nathan Hale celebration committee. The state's committee, headed by George D. Seymour, of New Haven, will act on the governor's suggestion at a meeting in the former's home tonight.

The Tolland county committee, in fact, is proceeding with its arrangements for a celebration in South Coventry on the strength of the governor's recommendation, and has already cancelled an elaborate pageant in order to make room for the state's program. A transferral of the state's exercises will mean that Senator Bingham will speak in the Congregational church at South Coventry and that the program there will probably be broadcast by the radio station of the Travelers Insurance company, WTIC.

Mr. Seymour declared today that President Coolidge will pay tribute to Hale in the form of a written statement which will be read and broadcast at the exercises. Mr. Seymour said the president has a special interest in the significance of Nathan Hale day, and that as soon as he returns to Washington from his summer lodge in the Adirondacks, he will prepare his message. Mr. Seymour also has succeeded in having printed by the government a special Nathan Hale stamp which he said was made possible because of the president's interest in Nathan Hale.

The state's committee will probably complete its program at tonight's session. It is expected that 350,000 school children throughout the state will observe the day by special exercises at their schools and that 13,000 Boy Scouts in all sections of Connecticut will have their programs in memory of the Revolutionary war hero. Only the program inside the church will be broadcast.

BELIEVE DEAD MAN WAS RUN DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Aug. 19.—(AP)—The theory that Ladell Wilder, wealthy Wilmington farmer whose battered body was found early today in his cow stable, was killed by an automobile was advanced tonight by Sheriff Frank L. Wellman, after an autopsy had been performed on the body. The police at first believed that the farmer was killed by a robber.

Dr. Fred Kent of the State Laboratory at Burlington, who performed the autopsy, found, in addition to wounds on the head, a cut below the knee on one leg what had almost severed the member. This cut, the physician said, would have been sufficient to cause death.

The sheriff said it was known that an automobile had been in the vicinity of the Wilder farm, which is difficult of access, on Tuesday, the day the farmer was last seen alive. He expressed the opinion that somebody who had run Wilder down on the road placed the body in the stable and escaped. Attorney General J. Ward Carver of Barre will attend an inquest tomorrow.

WOMAN NEARLY CHOKED TO DEATH BY PIECE OF STEAK

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 19—(AP)—Unable to resist the temptation of a nice juicy piece of steak after she had prepared it for her husband's dinner this nobn, although she was on a diet, Mrs. Mary Vasko, 65, of 649 Hallett street, snatched a piece of the steak from a platter while her husband's back was turned and attempted to swallow it before she was detected by him.

The steak, not properly masticated, lodged in the woman's throat and she nearly choked to death. The husband seeing his wife in distress, although not knowing what was her trouble, summoned the ambulance, which arrived with Dr. Davis S. Greenspun, who found the woman in the last throes of strangulation.

Dr. Greenspun extracted the obstruction and left the woman to recover at her home.

MEX. DEPUTIES BATTLE IN STREET IN MEXICO CITY

Two Deputies Were Mortally Wounded—Colonel Andres Garcia Was Killed—Fighting Was the Outcome of Bitter Rivalry Between Political Factions in Congress—People in the Street Were Panic Stricken—A Woman Passing in an Automobile Was Wounded.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Two deputies were mortally wounded, Colonel Andres Garcia was killed and Tomas Garrido, former governor of the state of Tabasco was shot in the face, in a street battle in the business section of Mexico City today.

Deputies Marcos Diaz and Santiago Caparrosa, both from Tabasco, were shot several times through the body. They were at first believed to have been killed, but they showed signs of life when transferred to the hospital. Their death is expected momentarily.

The newspaper and lottery ticket vendor who was believed to have been killed is still living, though his death also is a matter of hours.

The fighting was the outcome of bitter rivalry between political factions in congress. The partisans met about 1:30 this afternoon in front of the Iturbide hotel in Madero avenue, and without preliminaries began shooting.

It is estimated that from seven to twenty deputies participated in the battle, the factions standing on opposite sidewalks and shooting across the street, which was crowded with automobiles and pedestrians. A woman, not identified, passing in an automobile was wounded.

The fighting took place next door to one of the fashionable American tea rooms. There were American women in the place at the time and others were entering, and bullets whizzed around them.

The people in the streets were panic stricken and women rushed screaming into a place of shelter. Many shots were exchanged, and the outstretched bodies of the wounded deputies afforded a gruesome sight.

SITUATION OF RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSY IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—(AP)—President Calles has not replied to the petition of the Roman Catholic episcopate, signed by Archbishop Morey Del Rio in behalf of all the archbishops, bishops, priests and Catholics in Mexico, seeking a revision of the new religious regulations.

At the same time prominent Mexican business men have proposed that the government and episcopate enter into negotiations for a settlement of the controversy.

The police, though admitting that the alleged conspiracy led by a few Catholic women in Mexico city and suburbs for armed risings are less serious when they first believed, continue their investigations into the affair. The economic boycott is having an increasingly depressing effect on business, and the capital is anxiously awaiting some definite action by the government in response to the church authorities and the proposals of the businessmen.

Circles close to the presidency are still of the opinion, although unofficially, that President Calles will probably maintain his original stand that the only solution is obedience to the laws by Catholics as well as all others.

DISORDERS AT STRIKE AT MANVILLE COTTON MILL

MANVILLE, R. I., Aug. 19—(AP)—The arrival of Sheriff Andrews and six additional deputies this afternoon put an end to a series of disorders which marked the first day of the general strike at the Manville cotton mill of the Manville-Jenckes company, called by union leaders last night.

Before the arrival of reinforcements, three deputy sheriffs, who reported for duty at six o'clock this morning and a lone state trooper were kept busy, maintaining order as a crowd of several hundred men and women congregated about the mill gates.

Bert Reed, a mill overseer, who attempted to escort two girls to the mill in the morning and who was beaten by two women, was the target for a mob of fifty infuriated women when he returned to the plant after the lunch hour. He was showered with eggs, stones and potatoes but escaped serious injury. A deputy sheriff and a state policeman went to his rescue.

Immediately afterward an operative who tried to force his way through a crowd of women instead of passing through the lane kept open in front of the gate, was set upon and badly beaten by women. He was carried into the mill only after sheriffs came to his rescue.

Strike leaders issued a statement late in the afternoon disclaiming any responsibility for the disorders. They addressed a meeting of striking union members and urged them to cooperate with the authorities in trying to prevent further acts of violence.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 19—(AP)—David Demaio, 33, of New Rochelle, N. Y., convicted of murder in connection with the killing of two Mount Vernon trolley employes in a hold-up last year, and William Hoyer, 25, New York city ngero, who killed his wife and eight-year-old daughter, were electrocuted in Sing Sing prison tonight.

While Hoyer went calmly, Demaio, who was denied a new trial this morning, protested innocence to the last and pleaded to live for the sake of his wife and six children.

He had been convicted of plotting the robbery in which Inspector Jacob Schumacker and Motorman Ragian Nicoll were killed in Mount Vernon, July 20, 1925, a crime for which Frank Daly, of New York city, went to the chair on June 24. John Marino, charged with complicity in the holdup, is awaiting trial for murder in the third degree.

Demaio, who was on the verge of collapse after being informed that he had been denied a new trial was visited by his wife and some of his children earlier in the day.

Hoyer had constantly refused to seek escape from the choir by appealing his sentence.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—(AP)—The Chicago Daily News today published a story quoting Julius Rosenwald as advocating the resignation of Col. Frank L. Smith as the Illinois republican senatorial nominee, or the election of a "protest" candidate by republican voters. The Daily News said the statement of the mail order merchant was made before his departure for Paul Smith's, N. Y., to confer with President Coolidge.

The big contributions to the Smith campaign funds by public utilities chiefs as disclosed before the senate campaign expenditures committee, were referred to by Mr. Rosenwald.

DELVING IN CANTON UNDER WORLD FOR MELLETT SLAYER

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Persons acquainted with Canton vice conditions, some already under arrest and others on the verge of being named in warrants were questioned today as District Attorney A. E. Bernsteen continued the hunt for the slayers of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher.

Mutually incriminating testimony was given by Norman E. Clark, former police prosecutor at Canton, and Louis Mazer, charged formally with the Mellett murder, while Karl Studer, Mazer's confederate, and Ben Rudner, Canton bootleg leader, were pressed for information which might be instrumental in issuance of federal prohibition conspiracy warrants.

Clark pleaded not guilty to a charge of conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law when arraigned before United States Commissioner Monahan. The bond was fixed at $15,000, which he gave. He was released.

Rudner, appearing voluntarily but within imminent danger of arrest, according to Canton reports, was closeted with Bernsteen during most of the afternoon, but the nature of his testimony was not made public.

Aroused by Mazer's accusation that white prosecutor he accepted bribes, both money and whiskey, and was an important cog in the Mazer-Studer bootleg machine in the role of "fixer," Clark was quoted as declaring that he "could say a lot but did not care to talk now."

But through contact with Bernsteen later he was reported to have "told a lot" concerning connection of official "higher ups" and prominent citizens with Canton's vice ring. Just who he implicated the district attorney did not say, but it was intimated that additional warrants would be forthcoming soon.

SHOT MAN WITH WHOM HE SUPPOSEDLY WAS FRIENDLY

MAYNARD, Mass., Aug. 19—(AP)—Walking up to an automobile in which was seated at the gate of the Assabet mill, and with whom he was supposed to be on the friendliest of terms, Charles Slyvert, according to a version given the police, shot and killed Arthur Jeffries about 1 o'clock this afternoon, and then countered through 1,500 employes of the mill to the smoke shop on Main street where he was apprehended by Sergeant Nicholas Driscoll of the Maynard police. Both men are about 2 years old. The motive for the shooting is a mystery.

According to a report given the police, Slyvert walked from the smoke shop directly to the mill gate and, seeing Jeffries seated in a car with his uncle, Michael Lesage, said "Hello, Jeff, old kid," pulled a revolver from his pocket and shot Jeffries through the chest.

The police found on Slyvert a small vial and a bottle partly filled with [illegible]

BANK ROBBER WAS EASY PREY FOR CHORUS GIRL

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—George W Ford had the hardihood to hold up a bank with only a pencil for a "weapon." But he lacked the mettle to outwit the schemes of two burlesque chorus girls.

Tonight he was locked behind bars in Tombs prison, reflecting on his part in a sordid part of the jazz age, while police had in their possession two letters in which he admitted the robbery of the Peninsula State bank of Highland park, Mich., last July, when he obtained $8,000 in loot. He was once employed in the bank.

Ford, who has a flare for melodramatics, seemed more determined to have revenge against the chorus girls than to avoid being caught for the robbery. One of his letters read:

"I deserted a wife who never loved me, and two children who did, robbed a bank and became an outcast on the face of the earth for the chorus girl who lived with me in this love nest for three days, then left for parts unknown, with the cash from the bank I robbed.

"Henceforth and hereafter I declare war on all women until I am either hung, shot or electrocuted."

The chorus girl mentioned in the letter had a partner, "a peroxide blonde given to much lipstick," whom Ford also accused of being implicated in the taking of $1,300 of the unspent bank loot.

The "love nest" referred to by Ford was in an apartment house in West Forty-Eighth street.

In the second letter Ford said that in addition to the $8,000 he also took two pistols from the bank.

"Your Detroit newspapers said I was armed with an automatic," he wrote, "but the truth is that I knew Frank Felton, the manager, had been held up twice before inside of six months and was gunshy, so that automatic I pointed at him was only a pencil, with the cap and eraser pulled out."

It was this letter, in which he asked the police to search for the two chorus girls, that led to his arrest. Ford signed his real name, as well as his aliases, "Moses Murphy" and "Roy C. Jones," to both letters.

MARKSMANSHIP RECORDS MADE BY TWO MARINES

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Aug. 19—(AP)—Two marines shooting in a national rifle match here today chalked up three world's records for marksmanship. Sergeant Ladislas Lach of Paris Island, S. C., ran up four perfect scores of 50 at 200 yards rapid fire. Sergeant A. S. French, Quantico, made two possible scores of 50 at 300 yards rapid fire. With a perfect score of 100 for the two distances French set the third new record.

The scores were made at the annual tournament of the United Services of New England.

In the 200 yard event six men were tied in the first string with perfect scores of 50. On the second string three made the perfect score. On the third Lach shot 50 and French his nearest competitor, dropped to 49. Lach kept on shooting and a fourth perfect score resulted.

In the 300 yard event French made two perfect scores of 50 while Lach dropped to 45. The previous record was 50-49 made at Camp Perry last year. The aggregate scores of the 200 yards and 300 yards events were combined to give French his second victory and record.

MARSALA WELL FAILS TO GIVE UP RAITANO BODY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 19.—The bottom of the refilled well on the premises of Frank Marsala, South Windham road, near the city line, was reached late Thursday forenoon without giving up any evidence that the body of Joseph Raitano had been secreted there, following his disappearance from the city February 28, 1925. The work of redigging the well is not considered a total loss, however, as it serves to bring great satisfaction to relatives and many friends of the missing man who were obsessed by the conviction that the man had met foul play. Actuated by the pleas of these people and considerable evidence, County Detective William E. Jackson secured a contractor to redig the well. Work was started Friday morning. The ledge, which Marsala said had caused him to give up digging and refill the well, was encountered at a depth of over 27 feet. County Detective Jackson was assisted by Captain of Police Frank McLean in conducting the work and the investigation which attended it.

First Selectman William E. Palmer and Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover are still pushing their investigation to determine whether or not Roscoe Post Talbot of that town had his operators license suspended Monday, August 9, by the state motor vehicle department. The officials allege that Talbot continued to drive his car following suspension. He was brought to task for this supposed violation and displayed his license which, he claimed, had been returned to him August 12. Two communications with the state motor vehicle department on that date, however, failed to reveal any record or file showing that Talbot's license had been restored. Last Monday the selectman and sheriff appeared personally at the motor vehicle department headquarters in Hartford and again verified the fact that there is no record of the restoration of the suspended license. Notwithstanding TaBot has a license in his possession and so the situation remains a tangle.

The accident took place Saturday when a Ford car driven by Douda was in collision with a Nash car driven by Thomas Jackson of Rockville, and in which also were Jackson's wife and son. Douda said that he gave the other the proper signal that he was about to drive across the highway. State Policeman Clifford Willis testified that in his investigation of the accident he found marks showing that the Nash had slid for about 30 feet from the time the brakes were applied to the point of collision. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson and son testified for the state. Grand Juror Carleton P. King prosecuted.

The new DIETZ BREAD baked with the old Dietz skill -

Fresh from the oven twice a day!

WHEN Mr. Walter Dietz purchased the Dolly Madison bakery, he at once set about reorganizing it and equipping it to supply the fine bread which, for forty years, has been associated with the Dietz name.

This new Dietz Bread Mr. Dietz honestly believes is the best he has ever baked.

He used to consider his old loaf perfect—with the perfection only years of experience, the finest ingredients and a wonderful recipe could give. But new experience has brought him even further skill—taught him the secret of new improvement which he has used in making the new Dietz Bread.

He has installed in the Dolly Madison bakery a wonderful new type of oven. It insures a new uniformity and dependability in baking which give added tenderness to the firm loaves, greater crispness to the evenly browned crust. With this new oven two bakings a day are possible, so that the delicious loaves reach your grocer twice a day—fresher than ever before!

Your own choice of ingredients

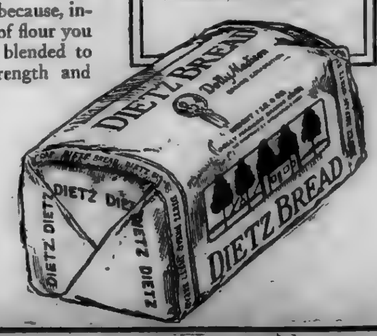
Dietz Bread is made of the same quality of ingredients you would use at home. But the flavor and texture of the loaf are even better because, instead of just the one kind of flour you use, several fine flours are blended to insure uniform gluten strength and rich wheat nourishment.

Get Dietz Bread in its homey red and green wrapper from your grocer today. It has the wholesomeness and honest goodness you require for your family. Dolly Madison Baking Corporation, Springfield, Mass.

FORTY years ago some of the best bread makers in New England began buying Dietz Bread.

Because they recognized in the loaf made by Dietz the same choice of ingredients, the same honest care, which they gave to their own baking. Dietz Bread was at home with the other well-cooked foods on their tables.

Father and son, the Dietz family, has carried on the tradition of making fine bread. Always they have had before them an ideal—a loaf perfect in appearance, in nutriment, in texture and in flavor.



DANIELSON

ATTAWAUGAN MILL TO BE TAKEN OVER BY PACO MFG. CO.

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 19.—Announcement has been given out here that the Powderell & Alexander company, an organization closely connected with the Paco Manufacturing company, has made arrangements to take over the Attawaugan mill and will close down its plant in Putnam. It is at present planned to open the mill about October 1. This is welcome news to the residents of Attawaugan. This mill has been running on short time for over a year and the reopening will prove a boon to the village as well as to the town. The Paco mills have run very steadily during the recent dull time in the textile industry.

Herbert H. Pepler, agent for the Paco concern, stated Thursday morning that the concern has not definitely decided just what work will be carried on in the Attawaugan mill and is uncertain at present as to the number that will be employed at this new branch. The Attawaugan mills made fancy curtain cloth and such, but it is thought at present that the yarn manufacture of the Putnam mill will be carried on here and, possibly, a certain amount of weaving. The Putnam mill employs at present 200 hands.

There is a rumor that a curtain mill owned near Boston is to be closed and its equipment moved to his village but Mr. Pepler said Thursday that this story is unfounded.

In addition to the taking over of the Attawaugan property by Powdrell & Alexander, the Paco company is expanding its plant here in Danielson by the construction of a new unit. This expansion is taking place in the form of a one-story structure being constructed near the northeast corner of the new weave shed located on Furnace street. This building is being made of concrete, brick and steel, 100x50 and is to be occupied by the printing works in which cretonnes and other materials are to be stamped.

The Paco company came to Danielson in 1920 taking over a small two story building on Furnace street, formerly used as a garage. A number of small looms were set up and the mill was used to weave marquisette, which was finished and made into curtains in the Boston branch of the manufacturing plant.

There was a steady increase in the demand for the company's products and in the spring of 1922 an addition was built on the rear of the mills in which the weaving was done and the front part of the building was used for the finishing of the cloth. The demand for draperies and curtains increased to such an extent that the company took over the Danielson Cotton company mill which had been idle since the war, when it was operated for a time and then abandoned by Connecticut mills. The looms were moved to this mill and more added. The amount of machinery and the number of employes steadily increased. The mill on Furnace street is now entirely devoted to the curtain and sales department. The cloth is now woven, finished and the curtains are made in the local mills and at present there are about 500 hands on the payroll.

The print works will add another link to the chain and enable the company to increase the number and variety of the lines.

Borough friends were sorry to read Thursday's Bulletin that Harold Walther of School street and Dr. H. Jeffrey, New London, were in the Westerly hospital Wednesday night as injuries received when the Essex coach owned by Philip Keech, also of Danielson was badly smashed in Westerly, R. I., Wednesday evening. Walther had no license, Keech being the only one of the three who had a license. The two were held and Walther will probably be charged with reckless driving.

Henry W. Babson is planning to issue a set of albums to Day Kimball Hospital in memory of his sister, Mrs. Lucy Colvin. The set consists of two books and contains over 1200 post cards collected by Mrs. Colvins. This represents a good many years' painstaking effort and the collection includes cards from all parts of the world. The books contain some very fine etching and historic views.

The Thursday half holiday was spent at various summer resorts by many local clerks.

Mrs. George Keech is away on a two weeks' vacation trip in Maine.

Mrs. Alfred Seymour is a patient at St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Miss May Franklin has returned from a visit with relatives in New London.

Miss Helen Young called on friends in North Sterling Wednesday.

Misses Isabelle McNeil and Miss Edith Ewing of Boston have been spending seven days at "The Laurel."

PUTNAM

MR. AND MRS. E. L. ROBINSON ARE TO NOTE SILVER WEDDING

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Robinson are to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary at their home on Church street, Saturday, August 28. There is to be a reception in the afternoon from 3 to 5.

In the city court, John Rucki of South Meadow street pleaded guilty of liquor sales on three counts, and was fined $200 on each count, in addition to the costs and 15 days in Brooklyn jail. The cases against Stanley O'Claire of School street and Joseph Bassinette of Pomfret street were postponed a week. All of these cases grew out of liquor raids made two weeks ago by the state police.

The churches of Woodstock, including two in North Woodstock, and one each in South Woodstock, East Woodstock and Woodstock Hill are to join in a union picnic to be held at Roseland Park, August 25, at noon. Rev. David P. Hatch, Arthur G. Morse and Phillip R. Dean are the committee in charge.

Two non-commissioned officers are in Putnam, recruiting for men to join the United States army. Their headquarters for the next week will be in an army tent on Main street, opposite the Victory theatre.

Miss Harriet Sampson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Sampson, of Woodstock, is at the MacDowell colony at Peterboro, N. H. This colony is under the direction of Mrs. MacDowell, widow of Edward A. MacDowell one of America's most noted composers and musicians, and it had become a widely known institution. Miss Sampson went there first as a guest of Mrs MacDowell but has now taken charge of the book store and may decide to remain there permanently. She has given up teaching in New York.

A Ku Klux Klan meeting that was to have been held this week at the Woodstock fair grounds was postponed until next Monday evening, August 23. The postponement is assumed was because of weather conditions. Five automobiles, all bearing Massachusetts license numbers appeared on the grounds and shortly after 8 o'clock a sign was posted at the fair grounds entrance announcing the date for the meeting. Neither those who put up the sign or as far as could be seen were the occupants of the cars masked. By whom the grounds were leased was not disclosed, nor were any of those who seemed to be in authority inclined to be communicative. Stand signs announcing the date and place of the meeting that was to have been held were distributed along the highways in all directions from Putnam. It is no known how many members there are in Putnam and vicinity, but it is generally understood that what enthusiasm prevailed among the local adherents had been dying out for the past two years because of the rumor that the heavy cost of initiation and yearly dues had gone into the pockets of a few officers who were not needed so that the money has disappeared.

Herbert E. Grosvenor, 55, died early Thursday morning at his home in Pomfret, after a lingering illness. He underwent an unusual operation about a year ago for an abscess of the groin but it proved unavailing. He had never married but made his home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Grosvenor at Pomfret. He is survived by his parents and two sisters, Miss Josie Grosvenor and Mrs. Omer Milot of this city and by three brothers, Walter Grosvenor, well known contractor of Boston, Thomas Grosvenor and Frank Grosvenor, also of Boston.

Albert A. Scott, a 14 year old boy of Pomfret died at his home Wednesday. He has been an invalid nearly all his life.

Miss Leona Dupre, who has been at Ponca City, Oklahoma for the past two years is at home for a visit. Her brother-in-law and sister Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Allenberg of this city, accompanied her home. They made the trip by automobile.

Arthur Macdonald, assistant editor of the Putnam Patriot, and Mrs. Macdonald and little daughter, Kay, have returned from a month's vacation in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Kent and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis T. Champlin and little son, Dana, left Wednesday for a motor trip to Alton Falls, N. H.

Frank Tourtelotte and daughter, Madeline, and Charles Tourtelotte are at Nantasket Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brousseau have been spending a vacation at Onset Beach, Mass., on Cape Cod.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Kent and two children of Meriden are guests of Mrs. Mary B. Bishop of Grove street. Mr. Kent is manager of the telephone exchange at Meriden and was formerly manager of the Putnam exchange.

Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Blanchette of Lowell, Mass., formerly of Putnam, are guests of relatives in the city.

Edgar Rhoades has been appointed by Judge Davis Elagg administrator of the estate of Emma Rhoades, late of Putnam.

CAMP MEETING SPEAKERS TREAT PRACTICAL THEMES

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, Aug. 19—The morning watch service at 8 o'clock was well attended and in charge of Dr. Spaulding, it broke out in a testimony meeting of praise and thanksgiving which is unusual.

At the church school period, 8:30 to 9:15, Rev. F. W. Gray of Burnside spoke on his experience in holding a weekday religious school. He advocated that each church have a school building with desks and other equipment for religious education which would command the respect of the pupils. He would value the possibilities of a well equipped school of this kind with graded text books and trained teachers as of greater value than that of the church school usually held on Sunday.

Dr. Gornall's period, 9:20 to 10:05, was occupied with another of this gifted man's characteristic address, "Stewardship of Money." There is no wealth except as God and man cooperate and a man's possession of money is not proof that he is a success. Money can be helpful but it can also be very destructive. It is true, however, that we are not interested where money is not involved. He referred to several well known men who had become prominent in the fact of their use of money in support of God's cause. He advocated tithing as the logical method in providing financial support for God's cause. He had no words in opposition to church suppers but said these are useful to promote sociability while impractical for financial support. "I feel this" said he, "sometimes when I attend one of these and with others eat a 35c supper for which we pay 25c each."

Dr. Frick's period, 10:10 to 11, produced another of his thoughtful and captivating addresses on Psychological Interpretations of Religious Facts. Today he gave attention to "Complexes and the Power of Religion." Every one of us is in touch with many influences. Of all these it is the one that gets your attention which gets you. By the law of association things are grouped and built together in our lives with certain of these becoming paramount. He showed how a series of complexities may combine in a person to produce a solicitation to do evil and how these may be combatted with another series of complexities of a higher quality.

Dr. Rees gave another heart-searching address on the art of soul winning during his periods, 11:10 to 12. A large and interested audience was present. Dr. Rees is growing in favor with the camp meeting.

The service at Stafford Springs house at 1 p. m. was well attended. The speaker was Rev. Clinton E. Bromley of Brockton, Mass. His remarks were based upon I John 3: 1-5. Several participated in the testimony service which followed among them Rev. Orrin E. Tourtelotte and Rev. John Squires, who were on the grounds for a brief time today having motored from East Hartford.

The service at 2 p. m. was held in the tabernacle rather than in the outdoor auditorium because the speaker preferred to preach indoors.

District Superintendent Genter, being called away in the afternoon, the service was in charge of Rev. Dr. Spaulding. Scripture were read by J. E. Duxbury of Manchester. Prayer was offered by Rev. Jerome Green of Thomsonville. The speaker was Dr. Rees and his subject was announced as the Fourfold Conviction Needed. His eloquent and impressive discourse was based upon the words of Luke 15: 4. He said we must be convicted that certain facts are really such as follows: (1) Those living in sin are lost. We must get to see the tragedy of sin before we get to the tragedy of the cross. (2) These may be saved. (3) The gospel is the power of God unto salvation. (4) Each of us has a responsibility in the matter. "Every church member is either a channel or a hindrance."

A prominent manufacturer, as a church member, became conscious, in facing this fact, that he had been a hindrance After lying awake all night he resolved to be a hindrance no longer. He went to work for God the next morning and led the superintendent of the factory to Christ the first thing he did. This young man whom he led to Christ that morning became a most effective worker for Christ and later became prominent in Y. M. C. A. work. The sermon which made a profound impression, was followed with a very touching prayer offered by Dr. Spaulding. The hymn, "Rescue the Perishing" was sung by the congregation. Rev. N. B. Burton pronounced the benediction.

The children's meeting at 9 a. m. in charge of Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens was held in the New London house.

Rev. H. A. Coolidge was away last Sunday and Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay of Columbia university occupied the pulpit. After the opening exercises he called upon Mrs. Lindsay and she gave a most interesting and stirring address on mission work in South America. While Dr. and Mrs. Lindsay were in South America attending three conferences (each in a different country) she made a close study of mission work and spoke from her own observation. Some of the facts which she presented were exceedingly interesting.

Although there are many missions scattered over parts of South America, there is a wide field untouched and a need for many more workers

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Potter, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Ruth, of New Britain were guests at the home of George Thayer Sunday.

ADD 15 POUNDS IN FEW WEEKS

Miss Rogers Uses New Way to Take Time-Tried Flesh Builder.

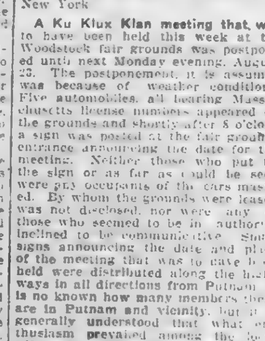
One of the principal reasons why people are thin and scrawny and unattractive—why they are weak and lacking ambition and "pep" and nerve force is simply this: The food they eat is lacking in the vital elements needed to put on solid, healthy flesh.

If you would gain weight—not merely flabby fat, but fine, firm flesh that fills up hollows in the neck and face and rounds out graceful arms, do as Miss Rogers did. Read what she says in grateful testimony:

After my attack of Flu I was thin, run down and weak. I had a sallow complexion, my cheeks were sunk in and I was continually troubled with gas on my stomach. I felt stuffy and had lost my appetite. I had read about McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets and decided to give them a trial. At once, I began to pick up an appetite, my cheeks filled out and my complexion became healthy looking and I gained 15 pounds in six weeks and am very thankful for what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for me.

And there's good reason for her joy in her return to good health and normal weight. Everybody knows that Cod Liver Extract contains all the vital elements that make solid flesh and sturdy nerves. But many people cannot take it because of its fishy taste and odor.

Now with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets all disadvantages are removed. They are pleasant, easy-to-take tablets containing all the vital elements of Cod Livers together with other ingredients recognized by physicians everywhere, that build strength and health. They quickly put on healthy stay-there flesh. In fact, you can get McCoy's Tablets from Lee & Osgood Co. or your favorite druggist with a specific guarantee that if you do not add at least 5 pounds after 30 days' use, your money is to be instantly refunded. Start yourself on the road to health by beginning to take McCoy's Tablets today. 60 for 60 cents.



All I do is "soak and rinse" on washday

—yet I get whiter clothes than ever

I NEVER used a soap that rinses out so quickly, and so completely, as Rinso does.

Best of all, the dirt and stains float off in the rinsing. I don't need to do the least bit of hard rubbing—or even boil the clothes, because Rinso not only whitens, but sterilizes, too!

My clothes last much longer this easy "soak and rinse" way because now I never have to scrub them threadbare over a washboard. Yet they are whiter, brighter than ever!

Rinso is all I need on washday. No bar soaps, chips or powders. It makes the water so soft and sudsy. Just ask your grocer for

Rinso

The granulated soap that soaks clothes whiter—no scrubbing.

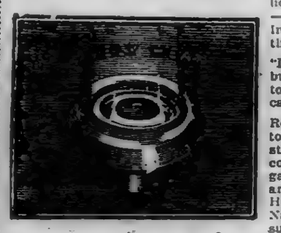
Learn About the Marvelous LIVELY HEAT Burner and Get a Set of Dishes FREE

The "Lively Heat" Burner



"LIVELY HEAT" is the dancing, vigorous, active heat above a bed of red-hot coals—above a modern gas burner—above the glowing electric burner. In each case it is the same heat. Only the fuel is different.

"LIVELY HEAT" is produced by burning vapors or gases. Contrasted to it is the languid, lifeless heat of a candle flame.

Red Star engineers have found a way to produce "LIVELY HEAT" in an OIL stove. The Red Star Burner converts common kerosene or gasoline into a gaseous vapor which is then burned and produces the same "LIVELY HEAT" as coal, gas or electricity. Naturally there are no wicks or wick substitutes.

THE CURTAIN-RAISER

With the control of the seventieth congress at stake, the republicans are getting ready for a stiff fight in the "off-year" campaign this fall. Of the thirty-four senate places to be filled in November twenty-seven are now held by republicans. The democrats are not worrying about the senate places now theirs. If one democrat does not fill them, another will.

The democrats are preparing to carry the battle to the republicans all along the line and particularly in the west and through the border states. Of the two headquarters established in mid-August by the republicans, that at Chicago is likely to be the busier. A New York headquarters will watch everything east of the Ohio; but the Chicago territory lies in what is expected to be the real battleground.

Indiana will see some stiff fighting and likewise Missouri. There is a reviving democracy in Iowa that may take some watching. Ohio, with a democratic ticket headed by Atlee Pomerene for senator and Vic Donahey for governor, will claim considerable attention. There is a place for considerable effective campaigning in Kentucky as well as in Oklahoma. If the republicans are to meet the democratic opposition there successfully.

Another month will see the primaries out of the way, and the stage will be set for the biennial show. As a curtain-raiser for 1926, the drama that will reach its climax in a little more than two months promises to be as strenuous as any "off-year" election in a generation by the time it ends.

TWO CRIME PROBES

Some progress is apparently being made in the solution of the two murder cases that are now holding public interest, one in New Jersey four years old and the other in Ohio of more recent happening. In the New Jersey case witnesses are being brought forward who are relating a fairly consecutive story which points to the presence at the scene of the murder of the three persons accused of killing the minister and the choir singer. Furthermore, evidence is being adduced to indicate that the examination four years ago was slighted and thwarted by the exercise of influence and possibly through bribery. The case has arrived near the point of grand jury inquiry, for the judge before whom the hearing was held has found the two accused men over for the grand jury. The proceedings have been enlivened by the appearance on the witness stand of picturesque characters and by the testimony of witnesses who four years ago refrained from making an appearance.

In the Ohio case an arrest has finally been made on a direct charge of participation in the murder of Don R. Mellett, editor of a Canton newspaper, who was slain on July 16. The accused is described as an "underworld leader" of Canton. Extraordinary efforts have been made to identify the participants in the assassination, which was obviously inspired by Mellett's persistent attacks upon the vice and crime conditions in the city and upon the lawless and the corruptions of the municipal police and the organized vice. It appears that the day after the killing a man was arrested who is regarded as the key of the case. He has turned informer and has named several people, including one McDermott, for whom a search has been conducted for more than a fortnight throughout the country. The arrest of the alleged underworld leader at Canton is apparently due to the disclosures of this witness.

Determination to run to earth the slayers of Mellet has been expressed by the Ohio authorities. The state is really on trial in this case. Conditions at Canton were unspeakably bad and Mellet attacked them. The municipal government had become corrupt to the extent where vice and crime reigned rather than law and order. His crusade had no help from the public authorities. He challenged them and was definitely warned that his fight would lead to his death, but he persisted in spite of the threat. Whether the assassins were men hired for the purpose or were those who were themselves implicated in the charges of graft and corruption which Mellet had made is of secondary importance. Now that a specific charge has been brought the truth may be learned.

A DULL SUMMER

The groups of high-powered correspondents assigned by their newspapers and press associations to report the activities of President Coolidge in the Adirondacks find time hanging heavily on their hands. A high-powered man is expected by his employer to produce high-powered material. But with the President insisting on taking a real vacation, the correspondents are hard put to it to turn out the sort of dispatches they conceive it their obligation to deliver. Mr. Coolidge is performing only those official duties which are requisite and necessary to keep the national government functioning in the even tenor of its way. Not much of a thrill is to be had from that, nor can you expect a first-rank correspondent to stoop to reporting the President's fishing exploits. And so we are being regaled in those journals which run to that class of matter with a variety of imagined sensations from the Coolidge camp.

A short time ago it was alarm at the political situation, because a couple of senators had been defeated. The President was pictured as sending out hurry calls for republican leaders for "a secret conference" to do something about it. Visits from Harvey Firestone and from Edsel Ford were made the foundation for speculation that the President was about to do something sensational about the foreign rubber monopoly or was prepared to inaugurate some gigantic commercial airway project or other. The latest flights of fancy have to do with Mexico. The President, if we believe some of the dispatches, is all wrought up over it. The fact of the matter is indubitably that the President, in his official capacity, is little concerned with the Mexican religious situation. It is an internal question for Mexico alone to decide, and it is none of our business as a nation how she decides it as long as American rights are not infringed. That is what Mr. Coolidge plainly stated a few days ago and three years' eperience with him has given no grounds for belief that when he says one thing he means another.

One cheering thought in the circumstances is that the summer is nearly over. Then possibly the high-powered correspondents will have something worthy of their steel to do.

AMERICAN SALES ABROAD

World markets for manufactured goods were penetrated on a growing scale by the United States in the fiscal year ending June 30. Exports of finished articles, it is announced by the department of commerce, exceeded in value those of the preceeding twelve months by 16 percent. There has been an increase ever since the 1921-1922 period, but the 1920-1921 sales abroad were greater than those of any twelve months since. The record is one that supports the statement of Dr. Julius Klein, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, concerning the "ever rising efficiency of American industry."

The gains achieved are in many lines. An increase in exports in the year recently ended compared with that of 1924-1925 included such groups as leather, rubber manufacturers, lumber and related products, refined mineral oils, heavy iron and steel, lighter steel such as hardware, cutlery and tools; electrical machinery, industrial machinery, agricultural machinery, automobiles, automobile parts and accessories, chemicals, paints, toilet articles, silk manufactures, furniture and other wood manufactures. In a compilation of forty-five classes of factory-made products only five showed a smaller exportation than in the preceding year and only four were less than in 1920-1921. Some of the increases over a five-year period were from 300 to 500 per cent.

Semi-manufactures were sold to other countries on a slightly reduced scale in the last twelve months dealt with, and, because less American wheat was available for export and because of other agricultural factors, the value of farm exports also was down. In this connection an analysis of foreign sales in manufactures indicates that the trade has been largely in articles based on our predominance in raw materials and also on certain types of goods different, Dr. Klein says, "from those that could be shipped abroad in any quantity even by a restored Europe." There is warrant, then for expecting, as department of commerce officials do, a further expansion in American exports of manufactures. Many consuming markets are underdeveloped.

Another noticeable feature of our ascendency in world markets as a salesman of factory commodities is the fact that the export predominance is not concentrated in the New England and middle Atlantic states. Most of the agricultural implements going abroad are made in the middle west and considerable of the textile and steel commodities in the south. Both the south and the northwest are prominent in the shipment of wool manufactures. This means a wide distribution of the benefits from foreign commerce in manufactures. If a considerable degree of the same increase in trade could be brought about in agriculture the American economic fabric would be more adequately balanced.

ENTERTAINING BILLIE

Billie's real name is Wilhelmina. And she is six. Now, as a general rule, Billie does not move in the company of Mrs. Jarring. Indeed, there is but little love between them, ever since the day that Billie, spying some woolen skeins in the lobby of the Fern Family hotel, used them to play ball with, to the undoing of the woolen sweater that Mrs. Jarring had almost completed. But that has nothing to do with our story.

For Billie's mother and Billie's aunt, who occupy opposite suites in the hotel, have quarreled, and it behooves Mrs. Jarring, as champion newsgetter of the Fern hotel, to learn the why thereof. Wherefore she calls invitingly to Billie as the little girl runs past her door.

"Come in, dear. My, what a pretty dress. I bought some nice cookies—" smiles Mrs. Jarring, serpentlike.

"Choclut?" temporizes Billie, one fat leg still poised for flight.

"Of course. Do you like chocolate cookies, Billie?"

"Uh-huh." The little lady steps inside Mrs. Jarring's room, and her hostess closes the door.

"Sit down, child," smiles Mrs. Jarring, making light conversation. "How many dolls have you got now?"

"Four," answers Billie, glancing cookyward.

"Four! My! My! Just think of that! A little girl like you having four dolls—"

"Uh-huh. Have you got the cookies here?"

Mrs. Jarring rises immediately. She can be very hospitable, can Mrs. Jarring. She selects the biggest cooky and offers it to her guest, who eyes it with fine discrimination.

"Well, well, child, and how is your mother?"

Billie finishes her first cooky before replying to her hostess' kindly inquiry.

"Aw right. How're you?" asks Billie politely.

"I'm very well, thank you, dear. And how's your aunt?"

There is a few moments' silence while cooky number two goes the way of cooky number one. Clearly the little lady is enjoying herself. Chocolate has always been her favorite dish.

"I got four aunts," announces Billie at last. "There's my Aunt Lilina. She lives in the country. Her little boy—"

"Yes, yes. But I don't know your Aunt Lilina. I mean—"

"My Aunt Minnie? She ain't got no boys er girls. She ain't even married yet. Like you—"

"I am married, child," responds Mrs. Jarring with dignity.

"Where's your husband then?" accuses Billie, pausing in the midst of her third cookie.

Mrs. Jarring heaves a sigh. After all, Henry had been a good old soul, although she ought never to have married him.

"What'cha do to him, huh?" pursues Billie. "My daddy says he bets your husbund is happy even if he is dead. I wouldn't like to be dead, would'chu?"

"I—of course not! But tell me how your other aunt is, child. The one—"

Billie hastens to partake of another cooky. "You mean my Aunt Wilhelmina? The one mamma named me after? Mamma says she's my great-aunt. She's old. I guess she's most as old as you. I bet she's most a hundred—"

"I'm not—" begins Mrs. Jarring, watching her fourth cooky disappear with annoyance.

"Ooh, I know how old you are!" Billie shakes a plump little finger at her hostess. "You're most as old as the hull world, ain't you? Daddy says you come over in the ark—"

"The impudence!"

"I know all about the ark. My Aunt Mildred told me all about it."

"Your Aunt Mildred is the one who lives across the hall from you, isn't she?" grasps Mrs. Jarring eagerly.

"Uh-huh. She ain't gonna live there long, though. My mamma says—Gee, kin I have another one? They're awfully good, honest!"

"Your mamma says?" suggests Mrs. Jarring, satisfying the insatiable appetite of her visitor.

"My mamma says we're gonna move soon an' Aunt Mildred is coming to live with us. Gee, I'm glad. I think I hear my mamma now. Good-by."

And Billie scampers out with Mrs. Jarring's last chocolate cooky safely in her hand.

Children are very bright today. Even brighter than they were when Mrs. Jarring was six.—Chicago News.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Urchin That Was Different

Be not content with what you know;
Add to it; make your knowledge grow.
—Old Mother Nature

If the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows and the Seashore didn't do this, they wouldn't live long. Every day each one of them learns something new. They are never satisfied with the knowledge they have. They want to add to it. So it was that Jimmy Skunk and Reddy Fox were continually finding out things on the seashore.

They had discovered the Green Sea Urchin, a Prickly Porky of the sea. They had discovered that it was a sort of shellfish, although it didn't look in the least like anything they had ever seen before. Graywing the Gull was very good about explaining. He told them that there was another Sea Urchin called the Purple Sea Urchin, which has longer spines and isn't quite so big as the Green Sea Urchin. And he told them that there is another member of the family called the Stinging Urchin, larger than the other two and black. Some of the spines are quite as long as those of Prickly Porky the Porcupine and if they prick any one they sting.

"Follow me and I'll show you a live one."

But it was Reddy Fox himself who found another member of the family. He didn't know it was a member of the family when he found it. In fact, what he first found was not a live member of the family, but was simply the skeleton of one, and it didn't look at all like a Sea Urchin. He found it on the sand. It was round and flat, quite thin, and on the upper side was rounded ever so little. On this upper side was a pretty pattern in the shape of a star. What it was Reddy didn't have the least idea. At first he was minded to leave it and forget it; but this was no way to do, and he knew it. So he looked about for Graywing the Gull. He felt sure that Graywing would tell him what this thing was, for Graywing seemed to know all about the things on the beach.

Graywing was sitting on a rock a little way out in the water. Reddy barked sharply. Graywing heard him and came flying over to see what was the trouble. Reddy showed him what he had found. "That's a queer thing," said Reddy.

"Is it?" inquired Graywing. "I don't see anything queer about it. It's nothing but a Sea Urchin."

"A what?" cried Reddy. For a minute he didn't think he had heard right.

"A Sea Urchin," replied Graywing. "At least, it used to be a Sea Urchin. That is what is left of it. Follow me and I'll show you a live one."

Graywing flew slowly along, looking down. Presently he alighted on a rock on the edge of a little pool. "Here's one," said he.

Reddy went over and looked down in the water. This didn't look any more like a Sea Urchin than the other thing had; but he could see that it was alive. It was covered with spines, but these spines were so tiny and fine that they were almost like silk. This one was moving along, for it had sucker-like feet. As a matter of fact, it was what is called a Sand Dollar. Some folks call it a Cake Urchin. It is a real Sea Urchin and a close cousin to the other Urchin Reddy had seen.

Not even Graywing, wise as he is in ways of the beach, knows everything about it. Graywing didn't know that an indelible ink may be made by pounding up a Sand Dollar in water. So now you know somethir that neither Graywing nor Reddy Fox have yet learned.

The next story: "The Shell With Legs."

COMMON COUNCIL INSPECTS WORK AT RESERVOIR

At the invitation of Mayor Milo R. Waters, members of the court of common council and representatives of several city departments made an inspection tour at the Deep River reservoir Thursday afternoon, for the purpose of viewing the work which has already been completed and to gain first hand knowledge of the vast amount of work which still remains to be done.

The party left the office of Mayor Waters shortly after 3 o'clock and on the way several stops were made to watch the work of laying pipe, or to inspect places where this work had already been completed.

Upon arriving at the Deep River site the party first inspected the site of the dam. At first glance to one not accustomed to building reservoirs, it would seem that little progress had been made. After a more thorough examination one readily noticed that the work was well forward and that considering the nature of the soil, the workmen were making rapid progress in the erection of the core wall.

The first thing noticed at the site was the excavation for the core wall. At the easterly end of the dam the work is practically done as far as excavating was concerned, the core wall being completed for about one third of its length. At the center and westerly end of the dam the workmen ran against a bedding similar to macadam. There they had to dig by use of pick and shovel, sometimes aided by a steam drill, and making very slow headway.

Engineers at the work state that if this type of bedrock prevails for many feet it will be a wonderful foundation. Iron piling driven from 8 to 15 feet into the ground, forms the bedding for the easterly side of the dam, but it has been impossible to drive the piling along the center and west end of the site of the dam.

The excavating is now nearly half completed and when done will extend for 750 feet and reach nearly 20 feet beneath ground level. Within this "ditch" or excavation, is being laid a cement core wall, some 25 feet deep and three feet in thickness. The core wall will run approximately 20 feet underground and 25 feet above ground, forming the backbone to the huge earth and stone dam which will be thrown up around it and reach a thickness of nearly 250 feet at its base.

The gate house has also been started and the bottom and second gates are now nearly completed. Back from the dam the steam shovel and carts are at work carrying mud and refuse from what will be the basin of the new city reservoir. This work is now well underway and Louis Petrossi, contractor, is rushing it to completion, although numbers of springs make the work difficult.

Following the inspection of the dam and reservoir site the council was invited to the "mess hall", the dining house of the men employed at the reservoir. Here a delightful banquet had been prepared by Mr. Petrossi, the menu being as follows:

Antipasto Assorted
Consume a la Deep River
Spaghetti a la Norwich
Roast Italian Style
Dessert

Following the delightful banquet the members were taken to various points in the reservoir site and the work which was being done there explained to them.

The trip proved most enlightening to the council members and afforded them an opportunity to gain first hand knowledge of the work which has already been completed there. It is likely that the council will make several more trips to the reservoir before cold weather sets in and watch the progress of the core wall, which, in fact, really represents the hardest problem before the contractor in raising the dam.

SEE NO INCREASE IN PRICE OF COAL

Anthracite coal which is selling around $15 a ton at the present time, is unlikely to be increased in price during the coming winter months, dealers predict. The price may fluctuate from $15 to $15.50 about the first of October, but there is a possibility that there will be no increase. Soft coal will sell for $11 to $12, the present price. Inasmuch as many householders laid in their supplies during the summer, the local dealers have been able to estimate the needs for the winter and the prospect is that there will be sufficient on hand to care for all needs.

Attorney William J. Larkin of Waterford, special counsel for the public utilities commission, recently declared that Connecticut and other New England states will doubtless get relief from high priced coal in the near future. This to be brought about by through rates and joint rates for smokeless coal from New River and Pocahontas fields. A motion has been filed with the interstate commerce commission at Washington to lose the hearing made for the purpose of preventing discriminatory action by anthracite producers in Pennsylvania.

The Virginia smokeless coal, which was burned as a substitute last year, because of the strike which made anthracite coal scarce, will be used very little during the coming winter months.

Norwich Produce Market

(Furnished by the Commissioner of Agriculture of Connecticut)

Owing to the half holiday Thursday small stocks of vegetables were offered and buying was slow. Few berries are seen on the market and peaches are not nearly so abundant as a week ago and show a stronger tone while native apples are becoming more plentiful daily.

Sweet corn, squash and tomatoes are abundant and cheap and lima beans are also somewhat lower. Excellent native celery and potatoes are offered quite liberally at moderate prices.

The poultry market is steady, eggs and butter are firm and live calves getting more scarce.

Dressed meats and grain continue to hold steady.

Heavy supplies and lower prices featured trading on farmers markets for native vegetables. The principal seasonal products reached lower price ranges without exception. Corn, lima beans, potatoes and tomatoes were lower than earlier in the week. Heavy supplies of native yellow sweet corn reached large markets. The best stock sold mostly at 20c. per dozen in Waterbury and New Haven. High quality tomatoes were offered on all markets. Trading at a $1.00 per basket was limited to light sales of extra fancy fruit. Lima bean prices were lower in Hartford, New Haven, Waterbury and New London. Offerings of potatoes were heavier and trading confined mostly to native stock.

Native apple receipts are heavier and trading confined mostly to native stock.

Native apple receipts are heavier and the percentage of No. 1 and fancy grades increasing. Fancy Red Astrachan apples brought from 75c. to $1.10 per 14-quart basket in Hartford. Lower prices ruled in New Haven and Waterbury. Demand for Yellow Transparent apples was moderate, and stock sold from 50-75c. per 14-quart basket. Light offerings of Williams in Hartford brought $2.00 per bushel.

Supplies of native peaches were heavier and stock in moderate demand. Greensboro peaches brought 60-75c. per 14-quarts in Hartford, Waterbury and New Haven. Blue and huckleberries were the leaders among small fruit. Light offerings of blackberries arrived and red raspberries were practically off the markets. Lower prices ruled on blueberries, but demand was good for large-sized blackberries.

Live fowl and broiler markets were weaker, especially for leghorns. Dressed poultry prices were steady for colored heavy stock. Egg markets were firm and higher prices were recorded in New London, Norwich and New Haven. Live calves were higher in Bridgeport and markets very firm in New London and Norwich. Other markets were steady and prices unchanged. Western dressed meats were steady excepting for lambs. Lamb prices were slightly lower in Hartford and New Haven.

BINGHAM TO SPEAK AT NATHAN HALE ANNIVERSARY

United States Senator Hiram Bingham will be the eulogist at exercises in observance of the 150th anniversary of the death of Nathan Hale, Connecticut's martyr patriot, Sept. 12 at the Capitol, Hartford, under the auspices of the state committee appointed by the governor, which includes State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers of New London.

His speech, with others including that of Governor Trumbull and members of the committee, will be broadcast by station WTIC to make the ceremonies at Hartford the center of statewide and national observances by communities, schools and patriotic groups.

Nathan Hale has become a national hero, N. Searle Light, director of rural education, said in announcing the plans recently for Commissioner of Education Albert E. Meredith, a member of the committee. Fully as many organizations outside of the state as in it, he said, will observe the anniversary and the committee had this in mind in arranging the state's official program.

While the date of the observance comes a short time after the opening of the school year, he added, the committee feels that each school will have an opportunity to plan ceremonies. The program at the Capitol has been set for 1:30 p. m., and it is expected that this time will not interfere with arrangements made by various localities in the state for special programs, he said.

The governor's committee includes Congressman Schuyler Merritt of Stamford, State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers of New London, Commissioner Meredith, Dr. George Dudley Seymour and Carl Northrup of New Haven.

Gas in the Stomach is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR BATTLE BETWEEN DEMPSEY AND TUNNEY

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—Arrangements for the world's heavyweight title bout between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney at the Sesqui-Centennial stadium on September 23 were completed today at a conference between Tex Rickard, New York promoter; Jules Aronson, his Philadelphia associate; Mayor Kendrick, officials of the sesqui-centennial exposition, and members of the Pennsylvania athletic commission.

Under the law, it will be ten rounds to a decision, two judges and a referee are authorized to give decisions. In the event that the bout goes the limit and the decision is against Dempsey, he would lose the championship. According to the rules of the athletic commission, the referee must first hand in his decision. The decision of the judges is then received and if they fail to agree the verdict of the referee decides the issue.

Rickard said the fight would draw a crowd of more than 130,000 and that the gate receipts would be in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. He said the prices for seats would range from $3 to $27.50 and that the tickets would be placed on sale next Monday. The New York promoter said he had already posted $100,000 in two checks of $50,000 each, one with the boxing commission and the other with the sesqui-centennial management, to guarantee the holding of the fight.

"Chicago had a chance at this fight," Rickard said, "New York had a chance at it. Philadelphia took it away from both of them because the sesqui-centennial management was far-seeing. The fight is an absolute sell-out, with standing room only signs hanging on the door. I had thousands of applications for tickets to the fight in New York before the question of Dempsey's permit to box had been settled.

"The stadium is an ideal place for an event of this kind, but I hated to take the fight from New York, where I owe so much to boxing. However, this won't exactly be a Philadelphia fight. New York will furnish at least a third of the crowd."

After a tour of inspection of the stadium and a luncheon with Mayor Kendrick and others, Mr. Rickard returned to New York.

E. L. Austin, director general of the sesqui-centennial, said the exposition would receive ten per cent. of the gross receipts after taxes had been paid and that the sesqui management had a minimum guarantee of $100,000. Mr. Austin said the sesqui bowl seated 85,000 persons and that there would be room for 40,000 more in the arena surrounding the ring.

Approval of the proposed bout was given by the state athletic commission by a vote of 2 to 1. Charles Fred White, negro member refusing to give his sanction, asserting that Dempsey should first be compelled to defend his title against Harry Wills.

Chairman Frank Wiener, of the commission, said he wished it understood that he had refused all suggestions to bring the Dempsey-Tunney fight here until it was certain that it could not be held in New York. "We have a working agreement with the New York commission," added Mr. Wiener, "and we live up to it to the letter."

Indications tonight were that the proposed bout would meet vigorous opposition from church organizations and other religious bodies, although no formal statements were issued.

DEMPSEY TELLS MULLINS TO PUT UP HIS MONEY

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug 19—(AP)—The assertion of Paddy Mullins, manager for Harry Wills in New York today, that he believed Jack Dempsey was "bluffing" in the posting of $150,000 for a match with the negro, brought an indignant challenge from the training camp of the champion tonight. "If Mullins thinks we're bluffing," said a statement authorized by Dempsey, "Let him bring his money to Thomas J. Shaw, the New York broker with whom our money was placed. Shaw wouldn't be a party to any frame-up. Our money consisted of six certified New York city drafts, each for $25,000.

SAINTS AND YANTIC BATTLE FOR SECOND PLACE TONIGHT

At Duwell field tonight one of the most important games of the Twilight league season will be staged when Yantic and the St. Joseph teams battle for second place. The winner of tonights game will clinch the second place position and will have a chance at winning out provided the Eastern Connecticut Power team drops its two remaining games.

Both Yantic and the Saints will throw their strongest lineup into the game and a good battle is expected. It is sincerely hoped that the Saints will be on the field at 6.30 so that a seven-inning game may be played.

WHAT'S A NAME MEANS TO SOME PEOPLE

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Municipal Judge William D. Alexander today invited Manager Dave Bancroft of the Boston Braves to act as associate judge in the case of Harry Kelly, 40, charges with drunkenness. Bancroft was the guest of Prosecutor Harry J. Wernke in court.

"Let's see," Bancroft said, "There was King Kelly, Joe Kelly and last, but not the least, the might George Kelly of the Giants. All good Kellys. All good Kellys. Let this Kelly go."

"Dismissed," Judge Alexander said.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Chicago made it two out of three from New York today by taking the final game of the series, 2 to 1. TIGER FLOWERS WINS VERDICT OVER GREB IN SLASHING FIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Tiger Flowers, Georgia's sensational negro battler, tonight beat back the attempt of Hary Greb to regain the world's middleweight championship in a fifteen round match packed with thrills.

A crowd of 15,000 spectators in Madison Square garden were in almost continual uproar as the dusky southern fighter successfully defended his crown against a savage assault and carried off the decision after a slashing struggle that bristled with rough and tumble action from start to finish.

Greb, withstanding a terrific body attack most of the way, flashed a sensational finish that had the garden in a frenzy in the last two rounds but this desperate rally was not sufficient to offset the big margin which the rugged negro had piled up previously.

Although a majority of ringside critics gave Flowers a decisive margin on points, the official verdict was not unanimous. It was announced that both judges gave the decision to the champion but that the referee, Jimmy Crowley, cast his ballot in Greb's favor.

In the newspaper concensus, however, the Tiger was credited with winning eight of the fifteen rounds, with six going to Greb and one regarded as even.

Maxie Rosenbloom, New York middleweight, punched his way to the decision over Chuck Burns, of San Antonio, Texas, in the semi-final, a slashing ten round battle that bristled with action from start to finish.

K. O. Phil Kaplan, hard hitting New York middleweight, knocked out Dick Evans, of Philadelphia, in the second round of a 10-round match, preliminary to the Greb-Flowers title battle at Madison Square garden.

In a four-round preliminary, Tommy Simms, negro lightweight from Sacramento, Calif., gained a four-round decision over Joe Lockhart, of Evansville, Ind. Simms weighed 137 and Lockhart 136 1-2.

ATHLETICS IN TIE FOR SECOND BY BEATING TIGERS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Athletics hopped into a tie with Cleveland for second place by trimming Detroit 9 to 1, here today in the first game of the series. The Tigers were held to four hits by Sam Gray and Lefty Willis. The latter relieved Gray after he had walked three to load the bases with one out in the fifth inning and kept Detroit away from the plate thereafter. Alex Metzler, Rookie outfielder from Witchita falls, Texas, knocked in three of the Athletic's runs with three singles.

WHERE COST GOES INTO FARM PRODUCTS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"The workman is worthy of his hire." And, by crackey, he's getting it, in my part of the country, anyway.

Only a few years ago, Jake Sonntag, the jobbing teamster, was looking eagerly for almost any sort of work at $3 a day or $4 in "hay 'nd harvest."

Nor was he a bit pernickety about hours. Ten, as a matter of course; 11 or 12 if circumstances seemed to demand them.

Now, Jake waits comfortably on his own back porch for work to come to him. He doesn't have to hunt it up. Instead of there being three teamsters chasing the same job, at least three jobs are now chasing Jake. Where he used to have to "bid down" to get the work, now the work has to "bid up" to get his consideration. Nor does he even consider the bid unless it amounts to $15 a day of eight hours. Moreover, the eight hours commences not when he actually begins on the job, but when he starts out of his stable, perhaps two miles from his work, to harness up his team. The going and coming and getting ready to begin to prepare to make a start —all these come out of the eight hours.

The last time I hired my small haying done by Jake, he arrived at my place about 8:45, having left his own home at 8. Then he had to "fetch up" the mower knives a bit, usually substitute a new section for one damaged the day before, and make various other repairs. I don't think he really got to work in the field as early as 9 o'clock any single day. He "knocked off" at half-past eleven, in order to get his team back to the barn, stable them, and make sure they had a full hour to eat. He ate his own dinner, smoked his after-dinner pipe and, usually, took a short nap "while the horses wuz restin'." Then he had to oil up the tedder, fix a broken board on the hay-rigging, get the horses out, hitch up and drive out to the field. He was often there by 1:30, though not by any means always as prompt at that. About 4:30 he was ready to "call it a day" and start for home.

For which his bill was, as I have said, $15. If I didn't want to pay it, why bless your soul, I didn't have to. There were plenty of others who would, in order to save their crops.

As a matter of fact, Jake not only expected me to pay it, but also to thank him for doing me the favor of taking it from me instead of from Old Man Waterhouse or Neighbor Sherman, both of whom were after him to do their haying.

Oh, no; it isn't only in the shops and on the railroads and in the mines that the workmen are getting all the hire they're worthy of,—and then some,—but out on the farms. Jake Sonntag's hire has gone up at least 375 per cent in the last 15 years. And he lives in a little house in a back road in the remotest kind of country.

The farmer who has to pay this increase has to get a similar increase in the prices of his products, or lose money.

Does he get that increase?

You answer it, reader and fellow farmer. Perhaps, last spring, you got a comparable increase in the price of the potatoes you had to sell,—if you were lucky enough to have any. And you can't fail to remember two things about that flurry. First, the glad surprise which irradiated your soul when you found you could actually get enough for your spuds to pay the labor cost of producing. Second, the howl of rage which rose from all the city consumers when they found they had to pay prices for their potatoes, somewhere near on a par with those they paid for their boots and their shirts and their neckties.

Why, your gratification in finding that you had, at last, one crop which paid its own way, was almost nullified by the howls of "Skylock" and "extortioner" which your customers roared against you.

And yet, three and a half or four dollars a bushel for good potatoes, last spring, was not a bit higher, in proportion, than the prices which consumers were paying for practically all manufactured goods.

Mr. B. F. Yoakum, who is widely read throughout the west, where he has been regarded for 40 years as an authority on agricultural problems, in one of his latest discussions of farm prices, states that it costs, on the average of the five-year period, and including all expenses of producing, preparing and delivering the crop, $1.65 a bushel to market wheat. "Allowing the current wages to the farmer and the working members of his family that other labor receives for similar service, the wheat must sell at $3 a bushel to return a 20 per cent profit on investment and labor."

Wheat is actually selling, on the farm, for somewhere around $1.35.

On the same basis of computation cotton must sell for at least 20 cents a pound to give reasonable profit to its grower.

Cotton is quoted on the New York exchange around 16 cents. Of course it is selling for much less on the plantation.

Similar figures could be cited about practically every other crop the farmer raises.

While his costs for producing have gone up by leaps and bounds his returns from production have risen very slowly and to nowhere near any comparable degree.

Yet, if the laborer who hires out by the day, the month or the year to help work a farm is worthy of his hire, isn't the laborer who happens to own the farm worthy of his? As a rule he works longer hours, works harder, does all the worrying and takes all the risks.

He ought to get even bigger pay. As a cold matter of fact, he gets less. Indeed, he is lucky if he gets anything but his board and lodging.

Once, when I was in college,—several 100 years ago, as it seems, now,—the professor suddenly fired a question at us. "What is the most valuable metal in the world?" he asked. One boy guessed "Gold." Another, somewhat shrewder, hazarded "Platinum." The professor shook his head at both. "The most valuable and costly metal in the world," said he, slowly and distinctly, so that his words might sink in, "is common iron, —when manufactured into watch-screws. Worth perhaps 25 cents a ton at the mine, it is worth much more than its weight in pure gold when made into the tiny screws which the watchmaker has to use a magnifying glass to see when putting the watch together. And all this increment of value is due to labor."

Personally I don't profess to know whether he was exactly and scientifically right or not. I tell the tale as he told it to me and the others. Anyway, it's a long road that iron has to travel from the ore-bed to the finished watch. The miner gets his wages; the transporters get theirs; the smelters get theirs; the ignot-makers get theirs; the roller-men get theirs; the wire-drawers get theirs; the annealers get theirs; the screw-cutters get theirs. Why shouldn't they? They have earned them and the workman is worthy of his hire. But, when they're all added together, they've increased the cost and therefore the value of that iron to a point above that of so-called precious metals.

It is well worth noting and remembering that virtually all the value of everything we use is given to it by the labor which has been put forth in preparing it.

The products of the soil are no exception. Blueberries and blackberries grow wild. They are usually "free plunder" to any picker. Yet you city consumers pay 25 or 30 cents a quart for them. Do you stop to think that you're not paying one cent of this for the berries themselves, but all of it as wages to the pickers and profits to the handlers? That's no reason why you shouldn't pay it. If you climbed the hills to the berry patches and picked the things yourselves, you'd be the first to admit that the picker, like any other laborer, was worthy of his hire and had earned it.

But most farm products are not free gifts of lavish wild nature. They are wrung by the hardest kind of hard work from a reluctant soil and in the face of all sorts of opposition from droughts and weeds and bugs and blights and inclement weather and both-ends-of-the-season frosts.

If you, Mr. potato-eater, had drawn out the manure for your potato land, and plowed the stubborn sward, and harrowed it into decent tilth, and marked it, and furrowed it, and got out, cut, dropped and covered the seed, and cultivated it, and horse-hoed it and hand-hoed it, and shoveel-plowed it, and sprayed it for flea-beetles and sprayed it for potato bugs, and sprayed it against blights, early and late, and sorted them and binned them,—you'd think you'd done some work which was worth wages!

Yet you don't act as if you thought the farmer, who did all this, had any right to charge anything for his time and labor. At least, you grouch and growl when, by some accident, the market price of potatoes goes up to a point where John Farmer can get his money back and decent wages for his work.

It's about the same with everything you eat. It all comes to you from the farm, originally.

Honestly, now, don't you think the farmer has a really inexpugnable right to as fair wages for his work as the railroad engineer or the coal-miner or the mechanic?

Yet, if he get such prices for his wheat and for his potatoes and for his cabbages and for his eggs and for his butter and for the scores of other products which he alone supplies, he would get—and consumers would have to pay, at least double what they do now for such edibles.

One can't very violently blame the consumer for wanting to get his supplies as cheaply as he can. That's perfectly natural.

On the other hand, one can't blame the farmer for wanting to get at least current rates of wages for his work, and current rates of profit on his investment.

There is here a manifest collision of interests. Is it a case of the irresistible force meeting the immovable body? When the small boy was asked what would happen on such a collision, he responded that "suthin'd get smashed." Which answer showed that he didn't fully comprehend the terms of the proposition. As no grown-up does, either.

It might be better to regard the farmer as not absolutely "irresistible," and the consumer as not totally "immovable." It would seem as if some sort of "modus vivendi" might be agreed upon, some "give-and-take" policy accepted which should be reasonably fair to both sides.

If not, then the farmer will simply be compelled, by the demand for self-preservation, to resort to harsher measures.

If he can't bring down the lads who are stealing his apples by soft words and easy-hitting sods, he will have to try what sticks and stones will do.

And that means bruises and sore heads, all 'round.

THE FARMER.

Price—Quality—Service

You can have price without quality. You can have quality regardless of price.

But you can't have value without both.

It takes team work to make value, just as it takes two to make a bargain! No price can be trusted unless quality goes along as a chaperone!

Quality in this store is secured by working, first, to a standard, and then to a price.

We do not believe in devoting all our attention to price and letting quality take care of itself.

Both must be considered for either to be right.

A reasonable price doesn't mean anything unless it insures a reasonable period of service.

And talk about service doesn't mean anything unless the merchandise can prove it.

In this store price is the beginning of Economy—not the end.

The merchandise takes up the story where the price leaves off!

NOVELIST'S MEMORIAL AIDID BY SMALL FUNDS

INDIANAPOLIS, August—(AP) — A child's ten cents and a rich woman's $100 check recently fell into the contribution box containing the money being raised to make a permanent memorial of the late Gene Straten Porter's Limberlost Cabin estate in northern Indiana, near Kendallville.

Mrs. Porter, the noted novelist, was killed two years ago in an automobile accident. It was at Limberlost Cabin, hidden far away from the noises of the world, that she wrote, Laddie, The Harvester, Michael O'Halleran, and other widely read works.

The Women's Federation of Clubs is sponsoring the movement to purchase the 120 acres of wilderness, whihc skirts Sylvian lake for a half mile. While $50,000 is the price placed on the estate by her husband, he will contribute $10,000, provided $40,000 is raised from private sources.

Hundreds of persons have contributed, a majority of them in small denominations.

Native timber surrounds the log cabin, which contains 13 rooms. Mrs. Porter, always a very active woman, supervised the construction of the cabin herself. During her 12 years at Limberlost, she also planted about 17,000 shrubs and owers.

Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, tells of a conversation Mrs. Porter had with a woman tourist who had slipped into the grounds.

Mrs. Porter, clad in rough clothing and looking every bit like one of the servants, was approached and confidentially asked for some information as to Mrs. Porter's activities when she was not writing.

"Does she work you hard?" the woman inquired.

"I think she works me very hard," Mrs. Porter replied.

Does she make you put in long hours?"

"Lots of times she makes me work far into the night," sighed Mrs. Porter.

The visitor then wanted to know if the novelist paid the help well.

"She pays me very well, I believe," the novelist said with a smile, "Although she is hard on ..e.

MISS OF 15 YEAHS RANKS HIGH IN SOUTHERN TENNIS

ST. GABRIEL, La., August—(AP)—At 15 years of age Doris LeBlanc is one of the promising women tennis players of the south.

Miss LeBlanc went to the Southern tournament in New Orleans where she entered both the senior women's singles and the mixed doubles. In the former she went to the finals without losing a set, only to boy to Miss Murphy, of New Orleans, who became southern women's tennis champion for the seventh consecutive time.

In mixed doubles Miss LeBlanc played with the veteran Mills Newton. With him she again went into the finals only to lose the championship in this class to Miss Murphy and Maurice Bayon, of New Orleans.

Having just completed her junior year in high school, Miss LeBlanc began playing tennis when she was 11 years old. She learned the game on the single court this village boasts.

DESIGNS AIRPLANE MORE DIFFICULT TO "CRACK UP"

DAYTON, O., August—(AP)—An airplane that will be harder to "crack up" than most of those now flying has been designed by D. E. Dunlap, aeronautical engineer, and soon will be ready for test flights.

Two of the fruitful causes of trouble when an airplane goes into a nose-dive are the propeller and heavy power plant, which often are forced back upon the pilot, injuring or killing him. Dunlap's ship will have two motors placed between the wings and at the sides and back of the pilot and his companion. They are "pushers" with the propellers in the rear. This eliminates dirt from the engine, and the terrific noise, and gives passengers a clear view directly ahead.

Of more importance. It permits the ship to be built with a blunt metal nose, it will simply "nose over," Dunlap says.

The ship will be amphibian with both land and water landing gears, which in later models will be arranged so that they may be switched by the pilot from his cockpit while flying. The landing gear also will be equipped with a brake, and will be able to land and take off in twice its own length.

Following the trial flights it will be put into commercial production.

LOYALTY TO COLLEGE INJURED FALK'S ARM

AUSTIN, Tex., August—(AP)—Loyalty to his alma mater blasted his brilliant major league twirling prospects, but the compensation afforded "Bib" Falk the opportunity of stamping himself one of the hardest hitting outfielders now in baseball.

The Chicago White Sox mauler, who is no batting for the peak of the American League batting average column, was the outstanding baseball and football player of Texas university here in 1918, 1919, and 1920. He is yet rated as the greatest southpaw hurler produced by any Texas college or university.

During the three years he toiled on the hillock for the Longhorns he lost not a single game, and was the biggest factor in the winning of three Southwest Conference championships. In diamond parlance "Bib" had everything—control, speed, curves, change of pace, a mystifying knuckle ball, endurance, pitching sense. When not on the mound, Falk played first base. He fielded the initial sack well and hit hard; but Texas university fans thought of him as a pitcher, not as a hitter.

Falk was an All-Southwestern tackle on the football elevens of 1917 and 1918.

In the summer of 1919, Falk signed with the White Sox, with the understanding he was to receive a substantial bonus if he refrained from playing football in 1919. He was to report after the 1920 college baseball season.

The Longhorns got away to a dismal start in the fall of 1919. Falk tossed away the bonus that would have been his and donned his football togs. Inspired in large measure by Falk's stirring play, the Longhorns "came back" with several brilliant victories.

NOANK

The party given by St. Joseph's church on Mrs. Ellis' lawn on Pearl street, Wednesday evening was attended by a large crowd, many coming from out of town. The Stonington band gave a fine concert during the evening. A tango game provided fun, every one taking part. Amos Banks was the leader, with Ken Steele aide in the game. A cake sale was held in the afternoon and proved a success, as was the whole affair. The committee worked hard to arrange an attractive program and the pastor, Rev. Thomas P. Mooney, as well as all attending was greatly pleased with the results.

Capt. George Main of the boat Alice was off the shore of New London fishing Wednesday and was pulling up his net when it started to tear. He thought he had a big fish in it. The boat started to list to one side. When he got the object on top of water it was a torpedo about 18 feet long and 35 inches around, having two little propellers on the end it has been in the water for 4 or 5 years for it was all rusty. Its weight was about 18,000 lbs. The captain thinks it was lost from a boat which was practicing off New London. The boat Flip towed the Alice with the torpedo to the town dock where it was on exhibition and viewed by over one hundred people from the village. Government men were notified about the odd find.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 19—The Forty-third annual convention of the Connecticut State Firemen's association opened its two day session in New London this morning and was attended by over 300 delegates from all parts of the state. The convention is being held in Elks' home, Washington street and today's session opened at 9 o'clock, daylight saving time. Charles H. Rose chief of the New London fire department, president of the State association, called the meeting to order. The report of the convention of last year was presented after which the treasurer's report was read and approved.

The principal business transacted today was the election of officers, the choice of the delegates being as follows: President, Edward J. Foley, Bridgeport; first vice president, James J. McCarthy, Waterbury; secretary, D. W. Harford, South Norwalk; treasurer, N. T. Souney, New Britain; chaplain, Rev. M. J. Ryan, South Meriden; vice presidents, George S. Fitts, Middletown; George M. Following the adjournment of today's meeting the delegates assembled in the rear of the municipal building and witnessed a fire drill by members of the New London department, the exhibition being enthusiastically received by the visitors. At the conclusion of the exhibition the delegates boarded special trolley cars at the State street terminal and with the United States Coast Guard band to provide the music, Ocean Beach was visited and chowder and a clam bake were provided. During the evening the gathering was addressed by several prominent speakers.

Tomorrow will bring the convention to a close after a big street parade and field day are the features of the day. At 11 o'clock, (daylight saving time), the parade with about 5,000 firemen in line and 25 bands and drum corps, will form on Broad street, proceeding to Parker, to Vauxhall, to Connecticut avenue, to Broad street to Bank streets, to Montauk, to Willetts avenue, and there disband. Busses and trolley cars will convey the firemen to Ocean Beach where the feast will be provided, after which the athletic events will be held on Bentley avenue, which thorough fare, will be closed to traffic during the holding of that period.

The parade will be reviewed from a stand erected in front of the municipal building by members of the city council and a committee of prominent citizens, who will act as a committee to determine the best appearing company in line and award a prize.

At Ocean Beach a band concert will be provided and at 8 o'clock and elaborate display of fireworks will be given.

Major General Morris B. Payne will be grand marshal and will have as his aides, Captain Allan Lambdin and Captain Alfred Ligourie, Connecticut National Guard infantry. Captain David Connor will have charge of the first division, Captain Archie McDonald, second division, Captain Samuel Wilson, third divison, Captain Robert Curley, fourth division, Captain Thomas Roche, Fifth division and Captain Lawrence J. Grimes, sixth division.

Danielson Sullivan and family, New Britain, formerly of New London, are spending a fortnight with relatives in this city.

The condition of Mrs. James McVeigh, of Briggs street, who has been critically ill following a major operation at Lawrence hospital, is reported considerably improved today, although Mrs. McVeigh is not out of danger.

Joseph Burbine, of Noank employed by James Hislop & Co., made complaint to the police this evening that his bicycle had been stolen. Burbine left the wheel in the rear of the store, Masonic street, when he returned from lunch and when he went to where he had left it at 6 o'clock he discovered the theft.

ILLBRED SAILOR INSULTS COLORED MAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 19.—Sailors from the United States Ship Camden at the beach last night saw a colored man on the front seat of a trolley car, just as it was ready to leave for the city proper. The sailors were all from the southern section of the country and have not gotten rid of the notion that the negro is not on equal plane with the white man, so far as his privileges are to be considered. The sailors disregarded the provisions of the fifteenth amendment, so when they saw Clarence S. Hamilton on the front of the car one of the sailors yelled at him, using language that was offensive, even when it was repeated in court this morning. Mr. Hamilton told Judge Prince that he left the trolley car and went to the sailors to have them explain the use of such language but he got no satisfaction, so he presented his case to Officer Denis Murphy. The latter arrested William S. Aunen and Hamilton appeared against him when the court session opened, relating the indignity he was obliged to accept from the man accused. The accused man denied that he used the language attributed to him, but the court decided to the contrary and he was fined $10.

COLCHESTER AGITATOR AND NEW YORK MAN ARRESTED

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 19.—The police were called to 664 Bank street this morning when they were told over the wire that the business of garment making was being interfered with by disturbers who had no right in the shop and who were not wanted there and would not be tolerated. Of late agitators have been dreaded by the management of the garment shops in New London. They have been agitating for a strike and for an increase in wages and a reduction in the hours of labor. This morning Bessie King, who said her home is in Colchester, and Tony Coralchuk, claiming New York as his home, were found at the garment shop where the woman was haranguing from a chair advocating the resistence of such conditions as the workers were experiencing. She pleaded that the workers demand an increase in wages and that they should be obliged to work fewer hours. Tony circulated among the workers at the time Bessie was doing her stunt from a stool and urged them to secure better conditions and to demand higher wages. He pointed out that wages of $14 a week was not acceptable anywhere. Then Sergeant Nelson Smith showed up at the door in response to the call for police and the argument as to wages, hours and working conditions was at an end. He arrested the pair and presented them in court where they were told what they might expect if they continued to annoy the people at the garment shop. Their cases were continued to the 18th of September.

Antone Foster died this summer at his home, 38 Squire street, after an illness of many weeks due to infirmities caused by age. He is survived by several children.

The funeral of Mary E. widow of David Bishop, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her residence, 52 Washington street. The service was private and was conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were Chesley Johnson, Joseph Bishop, Lawrence McEwen and Edward Johnson. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. L. W. Lewis, of Poquonnoc bridge, complaint to the New London police this morning that a spare tire was stolen from her automobile last night, while it was parked on Main street.

A telephone message was received at the police station this morning and according to the police records, was received from the Brockton, Mass., police, stating that a fellow was under arrest in the Massachusetts city charged with the theft of an automobile from Waterford owned by Miss Ruth Dyer, of Cromwell, Conn. The matter was turned over to the state police, Groton barracks, but when an officer of that department communicated by telephone with the Brockton police it was stated that the latter authorities knew nothing of the New London message for it had not been forwarded by the Brockton police. Neither did the Brockton police have any record of the arrest of anyone for the theft of the Dyer auto. The message undoubtedly was received from a police department other than Brockton.

John Foley stopped here on his way from Fishers Island to Norwich and Yantic where he declares he expects to go to work in a mill, but he became drunk and was arrested. Today he paid the penalty in a fine of $5.

David Dixon of Torrington was fined $10 for speeding his car at the beach so that other autoists and their machines were in danger. Dixon was declared to have hit a pace of 40 miles an hour in whirling along Bentley avenue. An autoist coming out of Staart avenue was obliged to stop in an instant to avert a collision. Dixon had been playing in the orchestra at the Oswegatchie house and brought some of his speed with him.

A. P. Carmier went to Block Island this morning and this afternoon he missed the boat on the return trip to New London. Carmier's automobile had been parked at the parking stand, State street, throughout the day and Carmier telephoned to the police requesting that the car be taken to a garage for the night. Carmier's request was granted.

ELKS ARE TO ENTERTAIN LOCAL AND GROTON CHILDREN

NEW LONDON, Aug. 19—The lodge of Elks in this city is to provide liberally for the children of New London and Groton as a wind-up of the vacation season. On the 2d of September the lodge will be host at Ocean Beach for all the kiddies in this city and across the river between the ages of 6 and 14. Last evening a committee of twenty-five was appointed to solicit among the members of the order for funds to secure the best obtainable for the little ones and their parents if the latter desire to participate. It is believed that some $800 will be raised by subscription and that the voluntary contributions from other sources will add a few hundred dollars to that amount. The Coast Guard band will furnish music at the beach and there will be a program of sports that will attract both boys and girls.

COAST GUARD ACADEMY TRANSFER TO NEW BEDFORD

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 19—This city is to be deprived of the Coast Guard Academy, according to Washington advices today. The closing of the academy here will be a positive loss to the city's merchants and to others who had dealings with the academy and the men located there. For a long time there have been rumors that what has now happened was to come about. It has been claimed that the acommodations were not such as the academy and the increased number of men needed and that the cadets and sailors did not have the facilities for recreation here that they would have at New Bedford, which being situated comparatively close to Boston and to Providence would afford the Coast Guard men the opportunity to visit these cities. It is claimed that the streets approaching the academy were not of the morally healthy sort the officers would have them be, but that objection to the New London site for the academy has been eliminated by the cleaning out of the places where liquor was sold. As a site for the academy New Bedford does not compare as to natural facilities with the New London site. The Coast Guard officials have been at Newport and New Bedford of late and it is believed that it was decided while they were there that the treasury department would be asked to make the transfer. It is understood that the Coast Guard expended several hundred thousands each month to the personnel of the academy and for the support of the ships. A good portion of that money went into local trade.

Herbert Maynard, 23, of 22 Vista street, employed by the J. N. LaPointe company, is still a prisoner at the police station, awaiting trial in the Waterford town court on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. Maynard was arrested Monday afternoon by Officer Johnson of the state police, Groton barracks, the car that Maynard was driving colliding with three telephone poles and crashing through a fence in Waterford. The occupants were thrown out seriously injuring Mrs. Grace Murphy, 17 Gilbert street, East Hartford. Inquiry at the Groton barracks as to the reason for the delay in giving Maynard a hearing brought the information that the police were ready to have the case tried, but that they were awaiting action by the Waterford authorities.

The annual summer outing of St. John's Literary society is to be held next Sunday afternoon at the Ninigret house, Crescent Beach. Feasting and athletic events will comprise the day's program.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cos, married in Norwich yesterday afternoon have taken an apartment at 29 Cottage street.

In spite of the warning sign "Danger" recently placed on the beach at Weekapaug west of the breach by Westerly Chapter of the Red Cross, it is reported that a number of bathers have been seen to go out a considerable distance into the surf.

Matunuck Point Beach

ON RHODE ISLAND'S BROAD, OPEN OCEAN

A New, High Grade Restricted Summer Colony in a Class by Itself.

Elevated, green lawns, on the ocean front. No Marshes. Fine Sandy Bathing Beaches. The COOLEST development on the entire coast, practically surrounded by water. All breezes water cooled. The great expanse of green lawns does not radiate heat like sand, but cools the air by evaporation. No hills to cut off the breeze. Matunuck Point Beach air has that health-giving tang in its breath, which only old ocean can give. The noted six-mile salt pond skirts its shore, providing shell fish in abundance. A paradise of safe water sports for the children. All roads built on winding curves. The scarcity of ocean front property with restrictions that make for safety and increased values, calls for immediate action. Your pick of lots now at opening prices. Come to Matunuck Point and come again. The more you see this jewel of the Atlantic coast the more you will like it. Talk with a friendly agent who will gladly show you how easy it is to buy now at reasonable prices, where the long days spent in boating, fishing and swimming will make you fit for the arduous duties of winter. Easy walking distance to churches, library, stores and dancing pavilions. Fine running water, electric lights and telephones now installed. Hard roads all the way to the property and through it. Take the old Post Road, route No. 1, at Westerly and follow the signs. Thirty-six miles of fine roads.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theater, New London

Garry Owen, who in the past has been headlining in vaudeville, appearing in all of the theaters from coast to coast, is a well known figure in the theatrical firmament. He is purely a comic, inimitable in every way. He has a peculiar method in delivering his comedy lines, which finds favor among his audiences. In Miss Manhattan he is the principal fun maker. Not only does he appear as the master of ceremonies but you will also find him playing important roles in the many comedy skits at the Lyceum theater, New London, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee.

Breed Theater

Jackie Coogan will never make more than two films per year, according to a recent statement issued by Jack Coogan, Sr., producer of his famous son's pictures.

Thousands of fans write to the Coogan offices in Hollywood asking why they can't have more of Jackie's pictures. The older Coogan established the policy of two a year because he considered his son's education above everything. In making but two films per season, about two months of Jackie's time is consumed in production. This is about the vacation period of the average school boy. The balance of the year Jackie attends to his schooling like all lads of his own age. When he goes to New York or away from home, his tutor is constantly by his side. School boards take no heed of film fame and each year Jackie must take the examination provided in the state of California. When the juvenile star went to Europe last year, he was absent from home for four months, and on his return he took his examinations and made a junior high school grade at the age of ten.

Old Clothes is the first picture Jackie made during the year of 1926, and it will be seen at the Breed theater, today and Saturday. He will start on his second production in about two months, title of which will be announced later.

Old Clothes is a story by Willard Mack written especially for Jackie Coogan.

Broadway Theater

One of the most entertaining and enjoyable programs of the summer, played yesterday to capacity and enthusiastic crowds.

The Keith-Albee vaudeville contained enough variety for several good bills. The five acts made their appearance as follows:

Billy Reed and Lew Duthers, in Feets of Feet showed some excellent eccentric dancing steps to good returns.

Marie Realto in Diversification consisted of laughing lyrics and lilting lays to the delight of all.

Stacy and James offered a comedy skit that was as funny as it was good.

Harry Duncan and Joe Fields in Chills and Fever, have a novel blackface comedy offering that was one much after another.

The closing offering was as good as those preceding. When you see the Burns Bros. in society gymnasts you'll get as many laughs as thrills.

An exquisitely touching, and at the same time a virile, romantic and dramatic story of how fate sometimes works to tangle the lives of the innocent, is told in Back to Life! the Whitman Bennett-Encore picture shown yesterday at the Broadway theater, where it remains until Saturday. Patsy Ruth Miller's emotional talents are given full play as the young wife who, when her husband is reported killed in battle, is forced into marriage with a man she has always loathed. The first husband, however, was not killed, but the new face given him by plastic surgery is so different from the old that he is unrecognized by his wife until after many exciting and interesting things have happened. David Powell, Mary Thurman, Lawford Davidson and other splendid artists, complete the cast.

WEEKLY LUNCHEON SESSION OF NORWICH LIONS CLUB

The Norwich Lions club held its weekly luncheon meeting Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President William A. Anderson presided at the meeting which opened with the singing of America. Rev. E. C. Dunbar said grace and William R. Frisbie acted as song leader, Lionel Ethier presiding at the piano.

An enthusiastic welcome was given George Madedn who was present at the club after an absence of some time due to illness. There were group and club songs and vocal solos by Tyler Stanton, Edward Rich and George Madden. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

MARKET WAS WEAK

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—(AP)—Acute weakness developed in today's stock market when large blocks of high grade industrials were pressed for sale. The reaction, which reached its climax in the last few minutes of trading, carried scores of issues down one to four points below last night's closing quotations. Although standard industrials were in supply during most of the session, a good buying movement had developed early in the trading for several of the rails and specialties, but this died down as selling pressure increased in other sections of the list.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the selling movement, which was widely attributed to the cumulative effects of the uneasiness over the money and loan situation, speculative disappointment over unofficial intimations that no stock dividend would be declared on United States Steel common this year, and the rather general disposition of professional traders to lighten commitments until the trend of fall business became more clearly defined.

Call money was in plentiful supply at 4½ per cent., and finds rather general disposition of professional leaders to lighten commitments until the trend of fall business became more clearly defined.

Call money was in plentiful supply at 4 1-2 per cent. and funds were reported to be available in the "outside market" as low as 4 1-4 per cent. The New York federal reserve bank announced no change in the four per cent rediscount rate established last week. Operators on the long side derived some encouragement from the optimistic report of business conditions given President Coolidge by the head of one of the largest mail order houses in the country, and the statement of Arthur Reynolds, leading Chicago banker, who was quoted as saying that he could see no clouds on the business horizon.

Steel common was hammered down four points to 150 3-4, or nearly nine points below the record high established earlier in the week. Other steels reacted in sympathy. Sloss-Sheffield being four points. Railroad equipment shares likewise lost ground. Westinghouse Air Brake dropped 3 1-4 points and Baldwin Locomotive 2 1-4.

General Motors, which has been rather sluggish since the announcement of the fifty per cent stock dividend, closed 2 3-4 points lower at 262. Mack Trucks, which recorded a sharp advance of five points yesterday, touched a new top on the current movement today at 136½, broke to 131 and closed at 131½, off 2¼ net. Rumors that Mack was to be taken over by General Motors were denied. Net losses of 2 points or more were recorded by American Smelting, DuPont, National Lead, United Cigar and Woolworth.

Rails fell back with the industrials, although the losses were not as large. Kansas City Southern, the first road to publish its July earnings report, showed net operating income of $564,-047, an increase of $117,133 over the same month last year. Buying of Chesapeake and Ohio, which established a new record top at 154 3-8, was associated with reports that minority stockholders who are opposing the revised "Nickel Plate" merger plan are asking over $200 for their holdings, or a dividend guarantee of 12 per cent lending their claim on the road's high earnings, which are expected to exceed $25 per share this year. Missouri Pacific common touched a new top on buying influenced by expectations that a dope would shortly be taken to clear up accumulations on the preferred.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity prices moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Cotton closed ten to 13 points lower but wheat futures showed changes of only a fraction of a cent a bushel. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices advanced slightly.

Foreign exchanges were easier. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.85 ½ and French francs around 3.82 cents. Moderate recessions took place in most of the other European rates.

STARTS FORECLOSURE ACTION AGAINST SOUND VIEW HOTEL

Harry Brilliant of Long Island City, N. Y., has brought a foreclosure action on the New London county superior court against Samuel Vorm, New York, Barnet Segal, New York, Moses Stein and Sophia Richman of Hartford. A note for $2,350 and mortgaged property in Old Lyme are involved in the action, according to the complaint. On Oct. 3, 1921, Mollie Rosen of Hartford owed the plaintiff $3,350 on her note of that date, of which $1,400 is now due and payable.

The note was secured by a mortgage of two certain pieces of land with buildings thereon, including the hotel property known as the "Hotel Harvey," located at Sound View Beach, Old Lyme, leading from Blackhall to South Lyme.

Barnett Segal claims to have two mortgages; one for $400 and another for $1,950; Moses Stein and Sophie Richman also claim to have a mortgage; Savings Bank of New London, $2,000; John L. Wright, mortgage $150; tax lien of $61.83 on the list of 1920; tax lien of 1921, $79.20.

Vollin is the owner of equity and now is in possession.

NATIONAL MASTER LOUIS J. TABOR ADDRESSES COUNTY POMONIA MEETING

Louis J. Tabor of Canton, Ohio, national master of the Patrons of Husbandry, addressed 400 Grangers Thursday afternoon at the Grange fairgrounds in North Stonington. The occasion was the annual field day of New London County Pomona grange, No. 6, and there were Grangers present from eastern Connecticut and western Rhode Island.

The national master, who is on a tour of New England, arrived in Westerly, R. I., on the 11:57 a. m. train, Thursday and was met at the railroad station by Minor Ives of Meriden, master of the Connecticut State grange. State Master Ives escorted National Master Tabor to the fairgrounds at North Stonington.

The New London county and visiting Grangers were served dinner at one o'clock by the members of North Stonington grange. At the afternoon session Rev. G. F. Goodenough of Ledyard, in the absence of the Connecticut state lecturer, Mrs. Whittemore, introduced National Master Tabor. The national master spoke on agriculture in general and made reference to observations he made on a recent trip through Europe.

Other speakers included Mrs. C. Palmer Chapman, Avondale, R. I., national Pomona; C. Palmer Chapman, Avondale, R. I., master of the Rhode Island Grange and Ord Welding, gate keeper of the Connecticut grange.

The meeting came to a close about 4:15 o'clock and at 5 o'clock, s. t., National Master Tabor, accompanied by Connecticut State Master Ives, left by automobile for Meriden, where the national master was scheduled to speak at a meeting of Meriden grange.

The committee in charge of the field day arangements comprised J. P. Hollowell, Preston City, Charles Adams of Groton, and Merton Bartlett of Griswold. Mr. Bartlett is master of New London County Pomona.

GARDNER LAKE BOYS' CAMP TO CLOSE TODAY

After enjoying the most successful season in its history, the New London Boy Scout camp Wakenah at Gardner lake will close this (Friday) afternoon after a camping period of six weeks. Under the personal direction of Scout Executive F. E. Burdick, assisted by Hubert Ryan, together with the leadership of five young men besides the time to time aid of 37 different scout officials, the camp program has been carried out to the letter and has proven more attractive than ever before. This was evidenced by the fact that during this season more boys have remained at camp longer than their original registration than ever before.

The new sleeping quarters at the camp have been found vastly superior to the old army tents formerly used. The new quarters consist of rustic affairs with a board floor, open sides, and board roof tar-papered. Each lodge, as the quarters are called, is equipped with eight bunks and canvas sides that roll up or down as desired. At present there are six of these lodges at the camp, more being planned for next year.

One of the most important features of the camp is the menu and careful study and preparation was made this year to give the boys at Wakenah the best balanced menu possible. That there was no sickness at camp is an indication that the ravenous appetites of the campers was treated with consideration.

With a larger camp staff than ever before, the camp program, which includes the giving of scout tests and instruction in woodcraft, swimming, boating and handicraft, was carried out with much success. A total of 166 scout tests were successfully passed. Twenty boys were taught to swim, an increase of 16 over last year. Camp emblems were awarded to 25 boys who passed the requirements which embodied an active interest in all phases of the camp program. Through the cooperation of John Jarvis, member of the Red Cross Life Saving Corps, 15 boys passed the American Red Cross Junior Life Saving test and four young men passed the senior life saving test. Three were advanced in rank by a court of honor conducted at the camp.

Statistics of the camp this season show that there were 283 boy weeks; one boy at camp one week representing one boy week, and one boy at camp two weeks representing two boy weeks, etc. This is compared with 258 boy weeks last summer. The number of scout officials, including scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters, and committeemen, was the largest of the camp history. There men, of whom there were 37, spent on an average of one week each at camp, aiding in carrying out the camp program.

The number of scouts at camp each week was better balanced this year than ever before, resulting in the camp being operated more conservatively and more efficiently. The boys in camp averaged about 50 each week, varying slightly. Eight of the camping boys stayed at camp the entire six weeks.

New England Regional Inspector Harold Severance visited the camp as the official representative and inspector of the national organization and expressed pleasure in the camp routine. In an address to the campers he stated he had visited 20 camps previously to visiting Wakenah and found Wakenah to be one of the best of those he had visited.

Cook Joseph Dallas completed his fourth year as camp chef and the efficient manner in which he supervised the culinary department has already caused the camp committee to approach Mr. Dallas for next summer. The various functions of the camp program were carried out with the assistance of Camp Leaders Joseph Silva, Jr., Arthur Shurts and George Crawford.

An outstanding feature of the camp was the number of visitors attracted there Sunday. Nearly every Sunday hundreds visited the camp.

Each Sunday services were conducted at camp, while the Catholic boys were conveyed to Montville for services. The services were available through the courtesy of ministers in this section.

WESTERN FARMERS STRONG FOR PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Senator Capper of Kansas So Informs President Coolidge—Asserted That in the New Congress to be Elected This Fall the Agricultural West Will Demand a Revision Upward on Some Products—Julius Rosenwald of Sears, Roebuck & Co. Reported Excellent Business Conditions Generally.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 20—(AP)—The agricultural west stands for a protective tariff and in the new congress to be elected this fall will demand a revision upward on some farm products, Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, long a leader of the farm bloc in the senate declared at the summer white house today.

The Kansas senator also predicted that as a result of the congressional elections in the west there would be a stronger demand than ever in the new congress for agricultural legislation along the price stabilization lines of the McNary-Haugen bill that was defeated in the recent session.

The views of Mr. Capper were set forth during a visit to President Coolidge and in picturing a generally prosperous condition in the west he was joined by another summer white house guest, Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Sears, Roebuck and Company, who reported to the president on business on economic conditions generally.

The Kansas and Illinois men, however differed as to what measures should be adopted by the government in its future program for aiding the agricultural industry, the latter opposing the price stabilization views of farm organizers.

Other views of the agricultural situation, are to be received by Mr. Coolidge from Secretary Jardine of the department of agriculture tomorrow and Louis J. Taber of Ohio, master of the National Grange, on Monday. The secretary is touring this region while Mr. Taber is coming in response to an invitation given several months ago.

Asserting there was no great demand for a lower tariff on any specific manufactured goods, Mr. Capper recalled that the tariff rates on aluminum products had been opposed by farmers when the Fordney-McCumber tariff was enacted and he contended subsequent events had justified that position.

The senator explained without amplification that in suggesting the tariff on those goods be increased or replaced, he did so only to illustrate a principle of tariff making dear to the farmers. He did not mention he name Secretary Mellon of the treasury department who is a stockholder in the Aluminum company of America and who opposed vigorously the McNary-Haugen bill at the recent session of congress.

The republicans in the opinion of Mr. Capper will suffer a serious setback in the fall elections while in Kansas he predicted they would re-elect both Senator Curtis and Governor Paulsen and probably gain at least one seat in the house, that for the second congressional district.

President Coolidge, the senator added, was "still strong in the west" particularly because of his economy program, although he added, there is some disappointment that the president did not support the price stabilization idea of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Asserting that Kansas was a greatly favored state in crops this year, Senator Capper nevertheless declared for a "long-view" of the agricultural question in advocating the price stabilization plan for crops. The aim of the administration to give extensive assistance to the co-operative marketing program in the country he approved as important.

In opposing the price stabilization plan Mr. Rosenwald contended if it were attempted it would only "end in a vicious circle."

The co-operative marketing movement he endorsed as sound and practical, explaining that the prices now paid for farm products by the consumer and those obtained by the producer for the commodities were too far apart. As for credit facilities, he added, through the farm loan banks and other agencies, and with the money condition as it now is, ample facilities exist in this direction for the farmer.

While declaring he did not wish to discuss politics, Mr. Rosenwald said the economic views of Mr. Coolidge were entirely justified and he believed "the agitation against the president," in some sections of the country had been "exaggerated." The farmers, he added, now "feel differently" toward the president and with the people generally he has gained in strength a great deal.

Senator Capper said the second largest wheat crop on record had just been harvested in Kansas, aggregating 150,000,000 bushels of the best quality and selling for 120. All crops combined, he added, are estimated to be worth $420,000,000 this year, the best record in the history of the state.

Mr. Rosenwald described an excellent business conditions generally as judged from the mail order sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. which since July 1, when its last figures were published, have exceeded expectations. Except for Iowa, the Dakotas and Minnesota, he explained, gains in business have been reported everywhere with the territory tributary to Kansas City reporting the biggest gains

FATE OF SLAYERS OF INDIAN UP TO THE JURY

GUTHRIE Okla., Aug. 21—(AP)—The case of W. K. Hale, ranchman, and Lyle Ramsey, cowboy farmer, charged with murdering Henry Roan, Osage Indian, that Hale might collect a life insurance policy, went to the jury in federal court here late today. The jury may give the penalty of life imprisonment or acquittal. The trial has been in progress for nearly a month.

Hale, baron of the Osage cattle country, and Ramsey, are charged by the government with having been the principles in a series of killings that threw the Osage tribe into a state of panic a few years ago.

They have been on trial nearly four weeks in connection with the death of Roan, whose life insurance was held by Hale.

Acquittal would not end the troubles of Hale and Ramsey, who have been in jail since last January. They are scheduled to go to trial in state court at Pawhuska Sept. 12 for the murder of W. E. Smith. Fairfax Indian, who was fatally injured in an explosion in 1920 that killed his Indian wife and a white servant girl.

SOCIAL MILL WORKERS TO CONFER WITH MANAGEMENT

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Aug. 20—(AP)—Workers at the social mill of the Manville-Jenckes company, in this city named a committee tonight to confer with the mill management on wages and working conditions. The workers held a meeting to discuss possible action in connection with a general strike which began yesterday at the company's mills in Manville.

A committee of ten, made up of three union officials and seven workers, who instructed to meet the mill heads and report back to another meeting of workers next Tuesday. In the meantime, it was intimated, there would be no question of a walkout at the Woonsocket plant in sympathy with the Manville operatives. The union officials of the committee will be Thomas F. MacMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America; State Senator John H. Powers, a member of the executive committee of the textile union, and Horace A. Riviere, local organizer.

FRACAS OF THEATRICAL STAR AND PRODUCER

STAMFORD, Aug. 20—(AP)—The star and the producer of a new musical revue "headed for Broadway" were in jail here early today as the result of a fracas in a local hotel.

The star, Garry Owen of New York city, was charged with assault and breach of the peace. The producer, Walter Kenny, of Brooklyn, was drunk and disorderly, police alleged. Authorities did not know what caused the disturbance.

The revue was to move on to New London today for a one night stand. It was given here last night only.

TO ASK RELEASE ON BAIL OF STEVENS AND CARPENDER

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 20—(AP)—Search for a cow missing since the original investigation in 1922 of the murders of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills today put an end to the interval of quiet expected after the commitment without bail yesterday of Henry Carpender and Willie Stevens, who with the dead minister's widow are charged with the murders.

The clue was in the form of a gold brooch which Edward Tierse, roadhouse proprietor of Piscataway, near New Brunswick, declared he turned over to Middlesex County Detective Fred David in 1922. The pin is not among the exhibits and grand jury records now in the possession of State Senator Simpson, special prosecutor.

At 10 o'clock Monday morning the prosecution and defense will appear before Chief Gunmere in Newark. Robert H. McCarter, chief counsel for the defense, will ask that Stevens, brother of Mrs. Hall and Carpender, her cousin, be admitted to bail. It was indicated Senator Simpson will not ask that Mrs. Hall, now free in $15,000 be remanded to jail, in view of the fact Justice Gunmere has admitted her to bail.

SCHOONER VANITE WON THE KING'S CUP RACE

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20—(AP)—Harry Payne Whitney's schooner Vanitie won the historic King's cup race off this port today, coasting home with three minutes to spare over the Sloop Carolina, owned by Commodore Geo. Nichols of the New York yacht club. E. W. Clark's schooner Resolute finished third, three minutes back of the Carolina. Eight vessels started.

The race was sailed over a 38 mile triangular course beginning and ending off Brenton's reef lightship. A fair southeast breeze held most of the day, giving a beat to the first mark off Sakonnet Point, a reach to the second mark off Block Island, and another reach home. Vanitie led all the way.

George Smithers' Typhoon won the cup offered by Captain James E. Hayes for New York 40 footers and the club trophy for sloops.

The corrected time of the leaders in the King's cup event:

BOY BANDIT WAS SHOT WHILE DRAWING REVOLVER

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 20—(AP)—Leslie Gonce, 14 year old boy bandit, was shot and probably fatally wounded just before noon today when he attempted to draw a revolver when ordered to surrender by Deputy Sheriff Charles Fiscus. The child, whose older brother Forrest was captured yesterday, was shot three times in the neck and chest.

The pair had terrorized this country for ten days.

Federal Prohibition Agent Fred Funston and Special Deputy Sheriff H. J. Morris were talking to the boy on the street for a few minutes today asking him to surrender when the sheriff's officers arrived. The boy then attempted to draw a weapon which he carried in his shirt front.

Economy in France to Extend to Bread

Measure is Designed to Reduce Importation of Foreign Wheat Almost 20 Per Cent.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The French nation was officially informed today that the "period of penitence", long heralded as an inevitable condition for financial stabilization, had come at last. The form in which the restrictions as decided upon by the government at today's cabinet meeting will most forcibly bring a necessity of retrenchment home to people in all walks of life is the forced abstinence from fresh bred.

The supression of the fresh bread loaf with its crisp crust especially appreciated by foreigners is the outstanding feature of the new regime ordered by the cabinet. This order it is expected will so decrease the consumption of flour that the outgo of the nation for foreign wheat will be reduced almost 20 per cent.

Other measures of economy ordered by the cabinet include a rigorous control of the wholesale and retail selling prices with the elimination of middlemen as far as possible and also so far as food is concerned, cutting restaurant service to two chief fishes at any one meal.

It is thought the new regulations will bear lightly on the working people because they largely eat whole wheat bread rather than the expensive white flour sort served in restaurants and used in the homes of the well-to-do.

To shoy the ordinary Frenchman that the government has his welfare in mind, it is announced every effort will be made to enable the consumer to purchase food products at fair prices. This will be done by providing for economical marketing of products by bringing down distribution costs and eliminating waste.

Likewise the government will show its readiness to effect economies in its own sphere. Various departments are to be consolidated, while instructions will be issued to all municipalities and government offices to cross from the payrolls such officials and dignitaries who were not eliminated in recent economy campaigns.

To Have Labor Ticket For State Election

Call for State Convention Issued by Capital City Machinists' Lodge, No. 354.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 20. (AP)—Labor organizations throughout the state have been asked to send two delegates each to a "united labor" convention in Hartford August 29 at which time candidates for the November election will be nominated.

The call for the convention, just issued, says in part:

"Recent acts of those in public office—notably the use of injunctions in labor disputes, the violation of the right of free speech and freedom of assembly, the passage of laws interfering with labor's right to organize and to strike for better conditions, the attempt to repeal legislation regarding women and children in industry, and the shifting of the burden of taxation from the wealthy to the shoulders of the workers—these acts have revealed with startling clearness the evident hostility of such men to the aims and principles of the American labor movement, and their close sympathy with the employers and forces of reaction. The time is ripe for labor to take up the political cudgels in its own behalf, so that those may be elected to public office who are pledged to advance the principles and the interests of the workers."

The call is endorsed by the Capital City Machinists' Lodge, No. 354, William Thuer, president.

MAY SOLVE THE RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSY IN MEXICO

In a Communication to the Catholic Episcopate President Calles Suggests Bringing the Matter Before Congress With a View to Obtaining a Constitutional Amendment—Also to the Supreme Court for a Decision Amending or Modifying the Religious Clauses of the Constitution.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 20—(AP)—Considerable hope has been aroused, with what justification remains to be seen, that the religious question may be solved, as President Calles has suggested in a communication to the Catholic Episcopate, by bringing the matter before congress with a view to obtaining a constitutional amendment, or before the supreme court for a decision amending or modifying the religious clauses of the constitution.

President Calles' letter to Archbishop Mora y Del Rio, of Mexico, is in reply to the recent request of the Episcopate that the chief executive bring about a suspension of the religious regulations. In it the president reiterates his intention to stand by the constitution, but he says the Catholic Episcopate is left free to make an attempt to have the fundamental law pertaining to religion changed.

He points out that while the Episcopate was within its rights in asking him for amelioration of the regulations, relief should be sought by means of either congress or the supreme court, or both. If the Episcopate offered amendments to the constitution, the president declares he would not use his power to have them withdrawn from congress.

In a statement replying to the letter of President Calles tonight, the Episcopate neither accepts nor rejects the president's proposal that it seek congressional or supreme court relief. Arguing the Episcopate's position, the statement says, that it has not asked abrogation, of the regulations, but merely wants their suspension pending congressional action or some other solution. The statement expresses appreciation of the conciliatory spirit of President Calles' letter, but does not indicate the Episcopate's future course.

So far as popular reaction in Mexico City can be noted, it seems favorable to the idea as the only suggestion thus far offered promising the possibility of a solution.

In the first editorial discussing the religious situation in Mexico since the religious regulations became effective on July 31, El Universal favors the proposal. It urges the determination by constitutional means of whether the religious laws are approved by popular opinion. If so, the paper says, they should be obeyed; if not, they should be amended.

Amendment of the constitution can be brought about by approval, by a two thirds vote, of the federal congress, after which there must be approval by a majority of the state legislatures. Popular opinions as referred to by El Universal, probably is intended to mean the votes of the representatives in these legislatures.

PLOT AGAINST MEXICAN GOV'T WAS WIDESPREAD

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Information showing a widespread revolutionary plot against the Mexican government has been uncovered by United States officials, Captain A. A. Hopkins, department of justice agent, said today.

The information indicates the insurrecto band led by General Enrique Estrada, former Mexican secretary of war, constituted only a small part of the plan.

Hopkins said that a complete study of the papers seized when Estrada and the members of his band were arrested near here last Sunday night had not yet been made, but that information already received from the documents shows an extensive revolutionary plot.

DETECTIVE FIGURES IN MELLETT MURDER CASE

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Investigators into the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, slain five weeks ago tonight, declared tonight new evidence sufficient not only to connect a Canton detective with bootlegging activities but possibly to link him with the murder has been obtained.

They said an arrest might be expected soon, but did not indicate upon which charge it would be based.

Investigators declared today they had ample evidence to break down the statement of Flos Streitenberger, detective on the Canton city police force, concerning the whereabouts of Louis Mazer, charged with the murder, the night of the Mellett slaying. Streitenberger was to have been sought for questioning today, but left the city.

Streitenberger in a statement today alleged that a certain portion of the affidavit made in Buffalo by Clement V. Curry, a reporter for the Buffalo Courier-Express, was incorrect. Streitenberger declared he was misquoted on the number of times he had seen or talked with Mazer since he arrested him three years ago.

Curry, however, is said to have declared he could produce six witnesses to who mStreitenberger made corroborative statements.

AIR MAIL PILOTS STRIVING FOR N. Y.-CHICAGO RECORD

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Through a dark night made darker by menacing storms and gales, two pilots of the United States air mail drove their planes westward and into daylight for a new record of five hours and 27 minutes for transmission of mail from New York to Chicago. A third pilot taking off here in a murky sky completed the triumph by landing in St. Paul shortly after noon with a cargo of mail started from New York's scant ten hours before.

Pilot Earl Ward, who only a few weeks ago helped to establish the previous record between New York and Chicago, started from New York at 3:17 o'clock this morning with the night air mail which should have left New York at 9 p. m. He ran into a stiff gale above the Alleghenies, but penetrated it and soared over Bellefonte, Pa. at 5:22, landing in Cleveland shortly after 6 a. m., with a mark of three hours and three minutes from New York.

VISITING MINISTERS HEARD AT CAMP MEETING

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND Aug. 20—The morning watch service led by Dr. Spaulding was characterized by a season of prayer in which a large number participated briefly. Dr. Spaulding gave a helpful address on different kinds of prayer.

The church school period was in charge of Miss Mabel M. Pollard as usual. An able address was given by Wallace D. Woodin, secretary of the Conn. State C. G. G. association on "Efficient Teachers and Officers." He said the efficient teacher has completely surrendered the life to Christ and this lifts all teaching to a higher plane. Essentials, not non-essentials, must be taught and every teacher should read at least four (4) books each year that bear on the work he is doing.

Dr. Gornalls period was given to a further consideration of the stewardship of money. He said that only 3-4 of 1 per cent of the American dollar goes for religious purposes, according to reliable statistics. Further, the farmer in tilling the soil and raising his crops furnishes from 3 to 5 per cent of what is used in production and God furnishes from 95 to 97 per cent. Are we truly facing these facts when we recall that all we have is God's by right and we will control it only for a season?

Dr. Frick in his period spoke on "Personality and the Majesty of Spiritual Experiences." He quoted from great psychologists such as Prof. James who said that the greatest things about human beings are their religious experiences. Dr. Frick affirmed that these experiences are real. The law of prayer grounds itself in the very native of man and conversion is recognized as a reality by these great psychologists themselves.

Dr. Rees devoted his period to consideration of the text, Acts 19:3 "Did ye receive the Holy Spirit when ye believed?" He differentiated between the grave given in conversion and the coming of the Holy Spirit upon one in power for service, which gift he said was within the reach of all Christians willing to pay the price in consecration of life to God and his service.

The annual business meeting of the Stafford Springs House association was held at this house at 1 p. m. today. The following officers were elected: President, Rev. Frank Chamberlain of Hope, R. I.; vice president, Rev. J. M. VonDeck, Oneco; secretary and treasurer, G. R. Parkhurst, Stafford Springs. It was voted to constitute the president and vice-president a committee to draw up resolutions on the death of the president of the association, Rev. J. R. Miller who has died during the year. A copy of these are to be sent to Mrs. Miller and they are to be placed on the records.

The Interdenominational Meeting was held in the outdoor auditorium at 2 p. m. After a brief song service, the 17th chapter of John was read by Dr. Rees. Prayer was offered by Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Church of the [illegible] of Norwich. A vocal solo was given by a member of the choir. The hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" was sung.

Rev. M. E. Genter, district superintendent, expressed his regrets at the necessary absence of Bishop W. F. Anderson who was expected to be present and preside explaining that he had been called to Pennsylvania to preside at a denominational meeting of importance today. He delivered an address of welcome to the visiting clergymen and laymen of other denominations and gratefully recognized the growing spirit of fraternity among the various denominations of Christians.

Rev. H. W. Hurlbert, D. D. secretary of the Annual Ministerial Meeting of Eastern Connecticut, representing the various denominations, responded in an address in which he very graciously commended the spirit which made this present meeting on the Willimantic Camp Ground a reality.

Rev. David D. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, Norwich, delivered an address on "The Church in Christ's Stead" He spoke of the church as composed of "not many mighty" but of the common, ordinary human beings such as Peter and Thomas of old. He cast a hasty glance over the history of the church and remarked that the many denominations of Christians were mostly born in Europe and were passed to us and we have foolishly passed these divisions on to the Orient. He endorsed the present policy of the great Christian denominations in which these differences are being obliterated in the mission fields by dividing the territory and making each denomination responsible in its own territory, the others withdrawing all competition therein. He noticed the fact that the great leaders of American churches at the present time are centralizing on Jesus Christ and the great task of bringing men and women to him.

Edwin Hill, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Nogwich, presented the subject "The Need of a Militant Church" in a vigorous address in which he emphasized the movement of the great militant hymn of the church. "Onward Chirstian Soldiers, Marching as to War." He should, however, that the war in which we are engaged requires not the carnal weapons of barbed wire fences, machine guns, poison gas, etc. but the weapons known to the Apostle Paul who commends the helmet of salvation, the sword of the spirit and the putting on the whole armor of God. He urged that while this is to be a united warfare against the forces of evil, it is also an individual warfare against sin and for victory over self because no soldier can conquer any opposing force until he has conquered himself. In all this conquest the cross of Jesus must go on before and Christ himself must be our leader.

Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, D. D. pastor of the Second Congregational church, New London, was presented to speak on the subject, "The Church and World Redemption." The speaker playfully referred to those who never have a good word for the present, who have words of praise for all their former pastors, but only words of disparagement for the man in the pulpit now. Some one said "All the great preachers are dead" and another replied "But they had great people to listen to them." Dr. Lee urged that this was a poor prospect for world redemption. He affirmed however that there are healthful signs today. The discussion concerning the Virgin Birth had little concern for him, he said. The thing the world wants is a present Christ who is alive today. Some people talk about the God of their fathers but do not seem to claim Him as theirs. To accomplish world redemption we must have a church that knows the present living Christ and is willing to be led by him.

The excellent spirit which prevailed at this service was reechoed as the choir and great congregation united in singing the hymn "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Theophilus A. Czarkowske, pastor of the Polish National Catholic church, New London.

Following the public service the ministers held a quiet hour service for prayer and conference together under the leadership of Dr. Rees.

The service for children at 9 A. M. and the service for older youth at 2 P. M., were both held in the New London House. The recreation hour from 4 to 5 was enjoyed by many of the young people on the grounds.

Rev. Wm. D. Woodward was the speaker at the Stafford Springs house at 6 o'clock Thursday evening.

The services at 7:30 o'clock was held in the Tabernacle. The song service was very inspiring. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. Wilfred D. Hamilton of Gales Ferry and prayer was offered by Rev. Wm. H. Dunnack of Moosup. The hymn "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart" was sung by choir and congregation. The treasurer, Rev. S. F. Maine reported that the offerings up to this time during the week have been more than double what they were for the corresponding time last year. The offering of the evening was taken while a cornet duet was pleasingly rendered by Messrs Floto and Richards.

Dr. Rees, the preacher announced his text John 11:28, "The Master is come and calleth for thee." His subject was announced as "God is calling thee." He affirmed that the great message which Jesus brought to earth is that we in seeking God are met by a God who seeks us and who is calling thee. If so, to what does he call? The preacher urged that he calls us at least to three opportunities. (1) The call to pardon. (2) The call to service. The preacher scouted the idea that the call to preach the Gospel is a call to sacrifice. Said he "One may say that the preacher could earn more money working in an office and in other ways and it may be true but there are other values in this world besides money." "The call to preach" he shouted; "is not a call to sacrifice. It is a call to opportunity." But he calls you layman to pray in your homes, to go to prayer meeting, and to do all kinds of service for Him. This is not a sacrifice. You gain by it wonderful opportunities for service and (3) The call to consolation. How does God call? He calls by his spirit. The preacher told of a man playing cards who used much profanity. He heard one of his chums humming a tune which he recognized as a hymn his mother, now in heaven, had loved and which he had heard her sing. He at once left his associates and went away to yield his heart to Christ and enter the Christian life. The Spirit used that incidental happening to speak to that young man and he heard and yielded to the call.

God calls through the ministry. Many a minister would echo this call more clearly if more earnestly supported by the prayers and efforts of the church.

The hymn "Just As I Am" was sung and an altar service followed in which a large number of persons gave evidence of responding to the call to larger service for Christ.

Notes

Two of the honored retired ministers of Methodism, often seen in the services this week, are Rev. Robert D. Dyson now residing in East Orange, and the Rev. Edward J. Ayres, well known Norwich resident. Both these men have preached on these grounds in other years and both are revered. Mr. Dyson has been a minister since 1876 and spent 25 years of his active ministry since 1876 and during 25 years district. Mr. Ayres has been in the ministry since 187' and during 2' years of his active period he held pastorates on this same district.

The visiting ministers of other denominations were guests of the Camp Meeting association at the Boarding house, at special reserved tables for dinner and supper.

Among the people from Norwich who came to the Grounds today were Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, and Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Allen.

The Manchester House is sheltering Mrs. Emma Shipman, Mrs. Walter Shipman, Mrs. Cyrus Tyler, Miss Frances Allen, Mrs. Margaret Nicholson and Rev. John E. Duxbury of Manchester; Rev. Albert Abbott and son Winston of East Hampton; Miss Blanche Davoll, of Mansfield Center.

At the Stafford Springs House are Mr. Albert Daniels of Groton. Mrs. Byron Young with her two sons Byron Jr., and Raymond and her brother, Ernest Richmond of Sterling.

Mrs. Everett Huntington of East Thompson is staying at the cottage of Rev. Frank Chamberlain on Simpton avenue.

Mrs. Martha Richards and Miss Helen Snide of Gurleyville are spending a few days on the grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foster with their daughter Lois and son Walter, Jr., of Wapping; and Mrs. Gertrude Foster and Mrs. Charlotte Avery of Manchester spent the day here yesterday.

The following have been added to the force at the boarding house: Miss Janet Stedman of Westerly, R. I., Miss Marcia Zabriskie, Miss Cynthia Crary and Mr. Donald Barnes of Preston.

The music of the services is greatly helped by the voluntary aid of two cornetists, Horace Floto and Clayton Richards of Vernon; and of a violinist, Miss Mary Arnold of Stafford. These furnish a valuable reenforcement to the excellent work of Howard T. Pierce of New London, pianist, whose services are meeting with increasing approval. The chorus choir under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Rees is also adding a decided attraction for people who come to the grounds to attend the services. They sing at the evening services and will be heard at all the preaching services Sunday.

Horace Floto and Clayton Richard, by playing taps each evening after the retiring bell is rung, at 10 o'clock are certainly using their cornets and their musical ability to great advantage.

Patridges recently brought to this country from Czechoslovakia were carried across Europe to the shipping port by airplane.

Read of Other Women Who Found Health

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. O. Hegmann of 35 Central Ave., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at sometime in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

JEWETT CITY

Another interesting letter has been received from A. L. Stebbins and party. It is dated from Washington, D. C., and reads:

We packed on to it Potomac park, passing over Long Bridge and tents of all sizes and every available foot is filled with campers representing every state in the union as well as Canada and Mexico. Near by can be seen the Washington monument, white house, capitol and many other government buildings.

Yesterday we were in Fredericksburg, Va., America's most historic city. Among the many points of interest are the city hall at which the famous reception to La Fayette was held in 1824, St. George's church where rest Washington's wife's father and William Paul, brother of John Paul Jones. The city courthouse contains the will of Mary Washington and many other important documents of early American life.

In Fredericksburg is located the Masonic lodge in which Geo. Washington was initiated, raised and passed as a Master Mason, Nov. 4, 1752, and which later conferred an honorary degree on General La Fayette.

The home of Mary, the mother of George Washington, a one and one-half story old-fashioned dwelling is still standing, as well as the home of James Monroe, one of the presidents of hte United States and author of the Monroe Doctrine. On lower Main street is the sentry box used in the Revolutary war and the War of 1812, as an outpost from which to watch for the approach of enemy ships on the Rappahannock. Directly opposite the sentry box is located the Washington Farm where George Washington lived as a boy with his mother. Here the famous cherry tree and silver dollar stories originated. His original office building is extant. In the early life of Fredericksburg it was an important political and trading center and continued to grow until the Civil war when it was the site of two bloody battles and a devastating bombardment while nearby were fought the battles of Chancellorsville, The Wilderness, Bloody Angle, Spotsylvania Courthouse, Todds Tavern and others of less importance. Within this space more men were killed and wounded than previously had been on any similar area in the world.

The effects of the Civil war were felt in Fredericksburg for 50 years, and not until the 20th century did the town show signs of recovery. Throughout the city and vicinity there are many historic monuments marking such places as where Stonewall Jackson was mortally wounded, May 2, 1863, the spot where Lee and Jackson last met, and one marking the spot where Texas troops refused to charge until Gen. Paul Lee were in the rear. Another large monument of interest is Mary Washington's.

MYSTIC

More than 40 members of Mystic grange attended the annual field day of New London county Pomona grange at North Stonington grange hall and fair grounds Thursday. National Master Louis J. Taber of Columbus, O., who arrived from the New England farmers' conference being held in Maine, spoke on "Agriculture a Three-Horse Team." He classed people as in three groups—hard-headed conservative and free minded, good church folks who will go and positively to the Sunday school. Without a college education he described the conditions of peasant life in the foreign countries he had visited, eight in all. He was sent by his government to represent agriculture. He said four things were needed in this country by the farmer—leadership, organization, loyalty and work. He made a strong plea for law enforcement. The bootlegger and those who patronize him he denounced as traitors to the flag and every unnaturalized person caught bootlegging should be made to leave the country. The grange is to celebrate the 60th birthday and the birthday of the founders. He urged all to go to Portland, Me., in November and take the seventh degree. At the close of his address, John E. Fanning, past master of Norwich grange, presented him a beautiful pin made especially to give him and decorated with it represented on the platform were state officers and one national officer, Mrs. C. Palmer Chapman and Ithiel Island State Master C. Palmer Chapman. They were called on for remarks. State Master Miner also spoke of the national rating in Nov-vember. GALES FERRY

Friends were shocked Wednesday morning, by the telephone message that Mrs. Arthur J. Ball wife of the Rev. Arthur J. Ball of Plainville, had died Tuesday evening at Lawrence hospital, New London. Death occurred at 10 o'clock following an automobile accident, when she was riding with her husband and relatives, in the automobile of her uncle, Frank M. Chapman, of Groton. Late in the afternoon, proceding toward Noank a collision occurred with a car driven by Mrs. Clifford Graham of Groton. Mrs. Ball became hysterical from shock, and was taken to the hospital, where she died in convulsions from chronic nephritis. Rev. and Mrs. Ball with their three children had been guests of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Colver of the Submarine Base over Monday night and were callers at Gales Ferry Tuesday afternoon. STAYING AT GENEVA

The Plattsburgh speech of Secretary Kellogg will blow some of the [illegible] and the mists of [illegible] failure away from the pre-disarmament conference at Geneva. He has made the position of the United States towards the conference and disarmament as clear as it can make it.

America has not wearied in well doing. This country will go on working for the arms menace. There is no truth in the rumors about the American delegation's despair of success. Somebody is to leave Geneva. Nothing can be done. No one are treaties of Washington been "scrapped," as rumor with had it. A mere preparatory commission, to open the road and explore the ways for the main commission, has no power to "scrap" treaties or make any final action.

There may be much pessimism concerning the final results of the Geneva conference, but Washington refuses to share it. Having set its face to follow the administration does not mean seek. America believes [illegible] are more likely [illegible] sweeping and [illegible] disarming. It [illegible] the naval limitations [illegible] apart from the question of land force.

The American attitude is that the Washington treaties have worked and other naval limitations will [illegible] that they should [illegible] for. This [illegible] to accept superiority and inspection of its [illegible] body, and [illegible] between [illegible] method or superiority in that respect is [illegible]

The [illegible] harm or despair [illegible] at Geneva. [illegible] worry because of the [illegible] where among the nations. [illegible] has not [illegible] Kellogg points [illegible] to Geneva to [illegible] not to obstruct, and if a [illegible] feasible, none [illegible] than we."

We will be says stay at Geneva so [illegible] there is any prospect of accomplishing of value. This [illegible] Washington gives to [illegible] and to the world.

COLLEGES AND AUTOMOBILES

[illegible] authorities at the University of Illinois are among the [illegible] governing boards to [illegible] students are not to be permitted the use of automobiles unless they can show that the vehicles [illegible] necessity or an unusual convenience in college life. Doubtless these [illegible] will be made for those who [illegible] to work their way through the university or in earning a [illegible] of the expenses. What the authorities are against, as far as the college year is concerned, is the widening [illegible] for pleasure purposes.

The reasons for this attitude on the part of educational institutions are the same everywhere. Riding attracts many youth more than the classroom. There is a lack of responsibility on the part of young men and women of college age that tends to increase the danger of accidents. In some colleges moral delinquency has been associated with the automobile. The possession of cars makes it more difficult for educational authorities to keep a close check on students. So the case against the use of the motor vehicle for pleasure purposes by college students is a strong one. There is a time for all things and the period for trade for education is not the one for many [illegible] ions in the way of pleasure. Students, of course, should have diversion from the text book and the laboratory, and they do. The means of relaxation and entertainment are ample without including the automobile.

What the University of Illinois has decided to do is a part of the same policy that has been found advisable by many other institutions of learning. Wisely administered, it will cause no hardship and will accomplish good. The classroom must be first.

RUSSIAN IDEAS CONFLICT

Behind the scenes in Russia forces of magnitude are at work. Plainly there is a division of thought on economic policies among communist party leaders, and this has been reflected in the government at Moscow. Recently, the commissar of trade, Kameneff, was removed from office. On account of his prominence in soviet affairs this action caused something of a sensation. Since then the vice-president of the supreme council for national economy, Platakoff, has been relieved of his duties for two months. Also Ossovski, who has been a prominent opponent of the present government leaders, has been expelled from the party. And this week three of the prominent figures in the Moscow administration, Stalin, Rykov and Kuibyshev, acting in the name of the party rather than the government, broadcast an appeal to Russians for strict economy and retrenchment in public affairs and factory management.

Whatever the cause of the dissension in the communist ranks, it is indicative of a party split. This may be only temporary, the unity with which soviet leaders have been accustomed to act in emergencies may reappear, and what is happening may become no more than an incident. Concerning the features of the Moscow administration that have caused the schism, nothing detailed has become known. It may be significant that the expulsion of Ossovski is attributed in some quarters to his publication of a pamphlet in which he argued that the present state of affairs in Russia supplied enough cause for the existence of opposition to the one-party plan of control. His plea appears to have been for a two-party system in the soviet union. The stifling of any such trend seems to be the object of Stalin and his associates.

The progress of the communist party late in 1925 was marked by assertions on the part of spokesmen who charged that Stalin was trying to take the party back to the "slough of capitalism." If that is the line of division in the current controversy, it hints that the struggle is between modified communism, believed to be contemplated by those heading the Moscow administration, and a more extreme communism. Stalin won a decisive victory in the congress. His specific intentions now are more or less conjectural, but whatever they may be it is evident that communist unity is lacking.

FUTURE RAILROAD RATES

Increased net earnings for American railroads, reflected even more in their reports for the first six months of this year than in 1925, are opening up a prospect that the time may be approaching when a lowering of freight rates may be brought about without injury to the transportation system. Collectively, the carriers are not far from an average return of 5 3-4 per cent, taking valuations fixed by the interstate commerce commission as a basis. A part of the gain can be attributed to lower unit costs in operation. Another factor is a growing volume of freight. Should traffic continue to increase, there is a strong likelihood that net earnings will continue to mount. This is regarded by many well-informed observers as probable.

An unanticipated and drastic shrinking in the volume of freight would change the situation. A second obstacle to the lower rates would be a large increase in operating costs. This fact adds interest to pleas presented and pleas said to be in preparation on the part of different groups of railroad labor for more wages. The carriers have rejected some of them and the issues raised are being considered by mediators in accordance with legislation passed at the last session of congress. The precedents set in the first few cases will doubtless be influential in guiding the course of the whole railroad wage problem. It is not for laymen, unacquainted with all the facts, to hazard an advance opinion. It is important wherever the facts lead, that justice guide. What is obvious, nevertheless, is that any considerable increase in the general wage level of the railroads would so increase their operating costs that the outlook for lower freight rates would be unfavorable.

The relations of the railroads, railroad labor and the public constitute a triangle deserving of all the attention they are receiving. One discouraging factor now is that the rates in force are more than ample for many systems, but provide others with a very small net return. In other words some roads are making enough to pay good dividends on their stock, if they are so inclined, while others are not much more than meeting their fixed charges. How to assure satisfactory returns for the less fortunate carriers and yet avoid a general rate structure that will give others sums that they cannot be said to require, is a serious question in governmental regulation.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Is there any justification whatever in the abuse that is heaped upon Americans in Europe today, and especially in France? Isit the reward we are getting for services rendered for our part in the World war? When the cry rose for help in 1917, when the Allies had taken their last stand on the shores of the North Sea, and when the word "Hindenberg" made everyone grow white, America responded with her young men, who in frightful numbers did not return. Not only this but she poured out her money in hitherto unparalleled amounts into empty treasuries and saved Europe from utter collapse. And now when she is asking, on the easiest terms possible, for the return of some of these loans, it isn't the highest gratitude imaginable for Americans to be hooted on the streets of Paris and otherwise insulted. France has evidently forgotten that cry of terror only a few years since, when money and men from America were her only salvation.

Is there any scientific explanation of the heat waves that spasmodically sweep over the country? When the last installment of these paragraphs was written, the writer with some degree of courage and with no small amount of true religion worked at his Remington when the mercury stood at 99 degrees in the shade, but this installment is being put into shape in the delightful coolness of about 70 in the shade. The distance between them is only a few days. What has the scientist to offer by way of explanation? But when we get right down to brass tacks what does all this difference amount to? A little bodily discomfort is about all. The bigger things of life are practically unwarying. "Seed time and harvest, summer and winter, heat and cold shall not cease."

One wants a god illustration of tenacity he has only to consider how lawns have revived from the drought of early summer and the heat of July. It is the main function of the organic world, whether plants or man mals, to live. If it is true "that all that a man hath will he give for his life", it seems to be equally true on the part of the vegetable world. Just how they do it we do not know. The parched lawn in summer is something like the hibernated animal in winter, in that function is at a low ebb. The bear does not die when the cold benumbs him, nor the lawn when the heat scorches it. Sooner or later latent forces will bestir themselves. May it not be that this law has a still wider application. It may be that the boy listless in school has hidden forces that will someday show his real ability. The girl who today is only a silly flapper may one day astonish the community by her intrinsic worth. The rain is going refreshen the lawn.

"King Pine" is the striking subject of a most illuminating magazine article lately, showing the wise provision of nature in making needed adjustments in the line of productivity. The writer made a careful survey of the economic conditions for our southern states. Thus for its greatest industry has been the production of cotton. Two serious obstacles lie in the path of its future supremacy. The first is the boll weevil, an insect that has not yet met its waterloo, that has considerable decreased the amount of cotton produced. The second obstacle is the lessened demand on the part of our greatest buyer, Great Britain. By mammoth projects of irrigation along the Nile valley she is more and more raising her own cotton. Hence the greater attention paid to [illegible]

One can hardly understand, much less explain, how many of these adjustments are made without the direct agency of a kind and interested Providence. As we all know that for many years cotton was called king, because it was once the leading product of the United States. Later we refered to corn as king, because of its enormous production. Now in the south, we find as cotton diminishes the pine is more and more cultivated. New England now no longer furnishes timber enough for its own building purposes, and we rely more and more on southern pine. At present its supply seems to be exhaustless. Take the matter of rubber for which we depend mostly upon Great Britain as she has depended largely upon us for cotton. At present experiments are being made in some of our possessions for the furnishing of rubber, which are pointing toward success. Now is all this haphazard or is it providential?

Two things are very clearly brought out by the modern custom of vacation. The first is the number who avail themselves of the privilege. Once it was a rarity to go off in the summer or chan e, and now it is the exception. Even day laborers are more and more finding oportunity to luxuriate at the seashore or in the mountains. The second is the number of places that specialize in summer boarders. Recently there has been put into the writer's hand a list of desirable places in the Berkshires of Massachusetts that solicited summer trade. In this mountain section alone there were two hundred and fifty-seven places open to the summer tourist. But as we have seen since they have not by any means been crowded to capacity. But enough to show the trend of our American life in summer.

During this sultry month of August, many will find congenial outing through ocean and river sailing. Those who have time, means and inclination will cross the Atlantic, take in Great Britain, and as much of the continent as time will allow. This will be just now a modified pleasure, as many Europeans are displaying a nasty temper toward Americans. It will be noted however, that these same Europeans will show no ill will toward the American dollar! Others are using their yachts on home waters. Many more will enjoy sailing up the Saint Lawrence, Hudson, Penobscot, and on different parts of our beautiful Connecticut rivers. Should any try the Delaware, it will be well to remember that on August 22, 1787, John Fitch successfully demonstrated the first side-paddle steamboat in the world. For many years his type was the only kind of steamboat used.

There is another type of vacation that appeals to many—that of the Northfield type, which is a happy mingling of the spiritual, intellectual and physical. Silver Bay and The Isle of Shoals are along this order. There is much to be said from a common-sense standpoint in their favor. They are certainly among the beauty spots of the world. Those who have been there once can never forget them. In the first two weeks of August there was the conference of Christian workers at Northfield, and Silver Bay in the latter part. In both places the best of lectures were heard in the morning and evening of each day, while the afternoon was given to hikes, automobile parties and picnics, amid scenery of incomparable beauty. There are some people so unsophisticated as to prefer this to sitting on the hot veranda of a summer hotel and watch jazz people perform to the melody of jazz music.

ENGLISH LUCY

"I'll stay home today and attend to things."

Rose laughed: "Nothing doing, Lucy, you always try to stay home. We never have enough down at the store and now there is all that goods from the bankrupt sale—there are blouses by the gross and you know how long they take to sell."

Lucy groaned: "And once I thought it would be fascinating to have a second-hand store and never know in the morning what might come in during the day. Blouses, and they have to be tried on while I stand and try not to see the fearful undies and the unwashed wear. Hats are bad enough with the straggly hairs and wire hairpins but they seem somehow more detachable. Yesterday a customer from back of the yards came in to see some shoes and she had only one stocking on. Suppose she forgot the other one."

The girls shrieked with laughter, Dainty English Lucy found many hard ships in life in Chicago. Her aunt kept the shop and had a splendid business buying from capricious rich women who bought one day and became tired of the purchase sometimes before it was even worn. Sometimes it would be furniture and the apartment out north had been furnished mostly from the store, for, although the Greens could well afford to buy at the exclusive stores, still to people of their thrifty habit of mind it seemed wasteful to pay $30 for an armchair that might "come in" for $22 and without a trace of wear. So room by room the flat had been filled and the young men who took the girls out often wondered at the constant change of clothing, never dreaming that a Paris frock had been worn once or twice and then sold for a third its original cost. Lucy, hearing that her aunt had a prosperous business in Chicago, had saved her slender salary as nursery governess in Sussex and had come to make her fortune in the great middle west. The busy, bargaining family had welcomed her warmly. But after a year in the hurrying, untidy life of scrambling out in the gray of the morning to get down to the store before the first customer and remain there until 9 or 10 o'clock at night of until there were no prospects, this had begun to pall, and she thought wistfully of the hedges in England, which would be blossoming in May, of the shining, diamondpaned casement windows with their climbing roses—of the lanes carpeted with velvety green. And these had brought no money, to be sure, but her throat ached for the taste of the sweet, wet air of an early spring morning. She made an excellent saleswoman with her quiet, well-bred manners, and her aunt never allowed her to go out in the car on buying trips, because she could sell almost anything she tried to at the store. The housekeeping was conducted on the simple plan of anybody doing anything she wished to do, and whoever got home first put dinner on to cook. Only on Sundays did they sit down to a well prepared, satisfying meal and, that was because the aunt usually remained home from church to cook and straighten up the pantry. It was a hit-or-miss way of living to Lucy, accustomed to neat linen closets scented with bunches of dried lavender—of towels mended with patches whose meticulous stitches were prettier in a housewife's eyes than elaborate embroideries.

Lucy adored housekeeping and would cook tirelessly, but although the girls enjoyed her fluffy biscuits and tender piecrusts with the fat filling of cinnamon-flavored tart apples, yet this brought in no money. Consequently Lucy took down hangers of gowns, coats or whatever the prospective customer happened to see, for the customer rarely knew what she wanted to buy or needed. The floating population furnished the trade and they bought what semed to their taste—nifty.

A red-faced woman carrying a fat white infant entered the store after dinner Saturday night and wandered around with one of the girls at her heels; sometimes the seekers after costly raiment relapsed into the primitive and gently took what they liked; hence the need for many saleswomen. Her somewhat gleary gaze was riveted by a pale-blue satin morning gown with cascades of snowy lace down the throat. She poked a soiled finger among the scented folds of the gown that had breakfasted upon the Lake Shore drive not long before.

"Young woman, you may try this on and let me see how it looks," she remarked finally, fixing a stern eye on Lucy who had been trying to keep out of her sight. Lucy's fresh face and bright hair invariably showed off the goods.

The girl slipped the negligee over her straight little frock and stood on inspection.

A customer in search of a grandfather's clock passed near her and blanked at her nearsightedly. He thought her a lady figure displaying the frock and when the woman stepped up and twitched at the torn place on one sleeve he stopped and watched interestedly. "They make those faces look very lifelike," he murmured to Rose who was waiting upon him.

Lucy burst into an irrepressible laugh—a laugh of low throaty timber exceedingly good to hear, and Frank Bates turned a beautiful crimson.

"May I ask you something?" asked Frank Bates when the woman's arm had fastened itself about the white baby and negligee and she had trailed away with her slipshod feet shuffling.

Lucy regarded him calmly. He was tall and broad-shouldered with a thin, attractive face; his black eyes were very bright and his hair was clipped close in a fashion she particularly liked. At last she nodded.

"Why in the world did that woman spend her week's wages on that piece of frilly attire that is fit only for a young girl?"

"They buy very odd things," she admitted. "One day a very heavy woman, wearing rundown slippers, came in and said she wanted some shoes for walking. I showed her some well-made tan shoes of soft, heavy leather with broad heels and she complained to my aunt of my insolence. What she wanted was a pair of champagne-colored kids with white tops and French heels, and she squeezed into a pair two sizes too small."

"I want a grandfather's clock, but—"

"Just wait and come in again," said Lucy with the glibness of familiarity. "It will be sure to come in."

"Do you think so?" he asked surprised, looking about the dingy store. He wanted a genuine antique.

"Everything comes in," she replied with a pretty earnestness. "Do you know I have wanted a harp ever since my father taught me a few chords when I was a little girl. He was Irish and a friend of his had one of those little Irish harps. So I have an interest in life waiting for my dream harp to come in."

Frank found the low rich voice very pleasant and hoped that his clock would not "come in" too soon.

At the late-scrambled meal that night Rose turned accusing eyes upon her cousin. "Lucy cut me out tonight, mother. A fine young man came in and wanted a clock, but he mistook Lucy for a dummy and after that he saw no one but her."

Mrs. Green laughed comfortably. "Most everything 'comes in' sooner or later and why not a young man for Lucy?"—Detroit News.

Stories That Recall Others

Cow Versus Bike.

A salesman asked a Scotch farmer to buy a bicycle. "They are cheap now and I can let you have a good one for seven pounds."

"I would rather put the money in another cow," said the farmer, reflecting.

"You would look mighty foolish riding around your farm on a cow, now wouldn't you?" said the salesman.

Said the Scot: "No more foolish than I would milking a bicycle."

Accurate Definition

At a lecture the speaker orated fervently: "He drove straight to his goal. He looked neither to the right nor to the left, but pressed forward moved by a definite purpose. Neither friend nor foe could delay him, or turn him from his course. All who crossed his path did so at their own peril. What would you call such a man?"

"A truck driver," shouted a voice from the audience.

YOUR HEALTH

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN

By James C. Minor, M. D., Kansas City, Mo. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Every individual or family, if they have not already selected their family physician, should select one while in good health. Do not wait until sudden illness knocks at your door and finds you unprepared in the selection of a consultant.

The high tension that modern civilization has forced upon us in recent years, together with the general tendency of increased demands that tax our equilibrium to the limit of endurance and that actually numb our finer sensibilities in the mad rush of the times is producing an alarming drain on our physical as well as mental energy.

Who should know better than your family physician what eventualities are bound to result from these ands if not corrected? Modern day by day living serves to enhance the importance of intimate relationship between yourself and your physician. He is the only one who can, if you will but permit it, recognize any organic change early in its inception before serious complications arise. Everyone, after arriving at the age of 40, should have a general physical examination at least once every 12 months. This recommendation may impress the average individual as encouraging extravagance, but on the contrary I assure you it is quite the opposite. At this time of life there are more or less constant constitutional changes taking place and often early recognition of any breakdown means everything to the patient in preserving his health. Many times it means the actual saving of life, all of which hinges on early recognition and correct diagnosis.

Sunday Morning Talk

The Circle

Now Peter sat without in the palace, Matt. 26, 69. This is the master stroke of the great artist in painting the picture of this wayward, generous, loving man whom we know as Peter. It is one of The Shadows of the picture, but the shadows help us to appreciate the more the light.

It is a single sentence, and yet in it we find the secret of a soul's downfall, the cause of the heartache of the Son of God, and a note of warning for God's people everywhere. Peter was in a dangerous position. First of all, because he sat in the presence of the enemy. In the first Psalm the warning is given "that we should not walk in the counsel of the ungodly, nor stand in the way of sinners, not sit in the seat of the scornful," and this last is the most hurtful position of all. Peter was sitting down. He also sat "without." There is a circle within which any child of God must keep if he would have both peace and power. If in imagination we take a compass in our hand and set one point at the place where we would have the centre and with the other point describe the circle, we would have the picture of the Christian life. The centre of the circle is Christ, and the circle itself is described by prayer and Bible study. To keep within the circle is to keep in touch with Christ. To sit without is to be in danger and Peter had stepped outside.

TRAFFIC

By the Albert Russel Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research University of California, Los Angeles

Let engineers direct it.
Question of speed and headway.
It's a big job for one man even in small towns.

The control of traffic in any city is an engineering problem. Unless this basic principle is recognized there can be but little progress in the reduction of accidents and congestion in the streets.

In its essence this statement merely means that the control of traffic must be taken out of the realm of opinion and talk and put on the basis of fact.

There is no democratic or republican way to control the movement of vehicles. Yet too many cities proceed on the principle that the regulation of street use should be governed by the demands and supposed benefits of political or local groups. The council or legislative body is besieged by individuals or groups of individuals desiring to see their pet ideas of control put into force.

Often the council men are the first to recognize that this method of procedure is wrong, but are powerless to correct it.

One of the first steps in the rectification of traffic conditions in any city should be provision for some kind of engineering service. Street should be given an equal chance for efficiency with the water and sewer system.

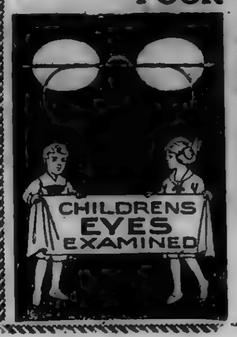
In the larger cities there is justification for the employment of a full-time engineer who devotes all of his ability to a study and relief of traffic conditions. But even in the smaller communities there should be some public official who can give a portion of his service for this important work.

The council should require that the city engineer or one of his subordinates become familiar with the best principles of traffic control as they are developed, and make an ample study of local conditions, to give intelligent recommendation for regulations.

In this manner there will be a restriction upon the demands of groups seeking traffic regulation, and there will be some assurance that the methods of control that are selected will be adapted to local conditions. A further benefit will come from the inevitable unification of control in the various communities in the same locality.

Even in the smaller cities the burden of the street traffic problem has become sufficiently heavy to warrant giving its study some intelligent consideration.

POOR EYESIGHT



A very large percentage of all school children have defective vision. Many children are considered dull and backward who are simply suffering from weak eyes. Such children are unnecessarily handicapped. The eye troubles which interfere with their progress can be overcome with a little attention and proper corrective glasses at this time may result in perfect vision in after years.
The matter is too important to be neglected. It concerns the future of the child. An examination by us will determine whether or not your child requires glasses.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Shannon Corner Traffic

Mr. Editor:

The rather tempestuous communication of "Progress" in regard to his impressions of the traffic conditions at the Shannon corner, which recently appeared in your issue, was no doubt read the next morning with interest and probably aroused different sorts of reactions in the minds of the various readers of your paper.

Perhaps "Progress" has the perfect solution of this very complex set of traffic conditions all carefully laid away somewhere in his mind; no doubt those who are trying, in the opinion of the writer, to arrive at a solution of the whole matter will be most grateful for any constructive suggestion he may offer. In the humble opinion of the writer, your correspondent "Progress", will not himself, nor will he aid anyone else to reach any satisfactory stage in the solution of this complex problem, by sending any such communications to the newspapers, for real progress in Norwich, or any other city or town on the map, is not arrived at by any such wholesale denunciation of what the apparently honest experiments of suiting means to ends, and pointed in the right direction.

It might be added that the writer has attended many boat races and many of the so-called big football games and he has yet to observe that it has been entirely possible through any agency, human or mechanical, to perfectly control the large volume of traffic which of necessity concentrates at certain points; the so-called "peak load" will continue to strain any facility to its utmost and when this is added to, any system is fortunate not to break under the strain.

The control of the traffic at the Shannon corner may not meet with the approval of your correspondent "Progress"; it may never be perfect, few things in this world are, but would it not be better to give those who are trying to meet the conditions in a satisfactory manner, a fair chance, rather than to thus bitterly denounce their efforts, which in the opinion of the writer, certainly indicate considerable consideration of the problem followed by definite steps in a constructive direction.

SHOULD NOW PREPARE CHILDREN FOR SCHOOL

In a few short days our schools will open again for the new school year says this week's issue of the health bulletin issued by the state department of health. The bulletin continues:

Are you parents asking yourselves in what condition your child will be on that first day of school? How well prepared will they be for the stress of school work? Do your realize that if children have diseased or abnormally enlarged tonsils or adenoids that their school tasks will be much more difficult; or, if there are decayed teeth it will not be easy to study—who can work attentively when an old tooth is nagging every minute?—or if they are markedly underweight their studies will be hard for them.

If you child later on brings an unsatisfactory report of his school work will you blame the teacher, will you think your little one is dull, or will you begin to ask yourselves if there may not be some physical reason for his backwardness?

Before that all important first day of school, let use bestir ourselves in the interest of these, our children, who will make their first entrance into school, that we make the paths for their little feet smoother. Some time during the next three weeks, let each school district get its children from five to six years of age together and have each child given a thorough physical examination by a local physician.

INSISTS HOSPITAL AUTOS BE MARKED STATE PROPERTY

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich tate hospital insists on each car owned by the state, used at the institution, shall be marked to indicate that it is owned by the state. So far as known, this is the only institution in the state that follows this policy.

The state board of control is checking up on the use of automobiles owned by the state. Robert C. Knight, statistician in the office of State Comptroller Frederic M. Salmon, has prepared a statement of the number of automobiles owned by the state and used by state institutions and departments.

The statement will be submitted by the comptroller to the board of control which requested the statistics contained in it.

Mr. Knight's report shows that there are 294 passenger cars used by the institutions, commissions and departments of the state and that they cost the state $295,704.59. The number of trucks used is 205, for which the state paid $552,840.70. There are also 34 tractors, which cost $875,977.65. The total cost is $1,724,522.94.

In addition the state uses 171 trucks received from the United States government on the payment of freight.

The passenger cars, trucks and tractors are distributed among 29 institutions, departments and commissions.

The statistician has not been advised that any of the passenger cars are marked "State of Connecticut" or any other designation to distinguish them from privately owned cars. So far as the information shows the cars used at the Norwich State hospital are the only cars which have a distinguishing sign on them. Dr. F. S. Wilcox, the superintendent has stated that he insists on each car owned by the state, used at his institution, shall be marked to indicate that it is owned by the state.

Interest in Court Case

Considerable interest is being centered on the case against Gus Granan of Crystal lake, to be tried before Justice of Peace Harrison L. Hamilton in the Ellington town court August 20. This case was continued from Tuesday evening and resulted from Tessie Okon of Hartford being injured by the Koelsch motor boat at Crystal lake. The child hung on behind the motor boat and both her legs were injured by being struck with the propeller.

A civil suit is also being prepared for the September term of the Tolland county superior court. As a result of this accident, it is expected that motor boats will not be allowed to use a dock near the bathing beach at Crystal lake and plans are also underway to examine the motor boats in use at the present time as well as the parties operating same.

Sun Visors—Matches—Tragedy

The innocent new summer style of sun visor caps may bring tragedy in its wake! Already one serious accident has been recorded from lighted matches and sun visors.

Many of the sun visors being worn today are made of celluloid. Celluloid in contact with fire burns instantaneously. Matches are almost constantly used for lighting cigars, pipes, cigarettes; with the wearing of a sun visor the conditions are righ for a quick flare-up—an unavoidable escape from tragedy. Smokers should be careful for blindness can result from burns.

SAINTS BEAT YANTIC, 5 TO 2, IN ABBREVIATED TWILIGHT CONTEST

Was there a ball game at the Duwell field last night? This is the question everyone was asking as they left the field last night, after watching the Saints and Yantic battle for four innings with the former coming out ahead 5 to 2. The whole question seems to hinge on an agreement made before the game between the two managrs. A little after 6:30 p. m., both agreed that if less than five innings were played it would be declared "no game." After interviewing both after the game, they admitted this agreement, but the manager of the Saints declared that it should not hold, as the game did not start until well after 7 o'clock, more than a half-hour after he had made the agreement. He said that he tried to see Manager Peckham then to make a four-innig game count, but could get no satisfaction from either he or Captain Sweet. It seems that this is a question for the board of arbitration to decide rather than the managers of either team. The legal rules on the matter state that there shall be no game, unless four and one-half innigs, or one-half a full game shall be played, but as the regulation twilight contest is only seven innings, some take the stand that three and one-half innings would be sufficient to make the game count, and as there is no rules in the Norwich Twilight League covering the question, it should be decided by the arbitration board.

As to the game itself, the Saints had rather an easy time of it, scoring four runs in the third inning alone, which proved plenty to win.

In this inning, Krause, Chip Dugas, Bill Liberty, and Raillie all doubled in succession which together with singles by Robinson and L. Gilbert brought four runs across the plate.

In their half of the same inning, Yantic came back with two runs. With one out, Normandin walked. Hewitt bunted to Koslowski and when the latter threw to second too late to catch Normandin, both were safe. Hamel grounded out to L. Gilbert advancing the runners one base. Jerry Lamphere hit to Koslowski, who fumbled the ball allowing Normandin to score, and Hewitt ot go to third. Moore singled through first, scoring Hewitt, but sweet closed the inning with a fly to Leo Gilbert.

In the fourth, the Saints added one more run on an error by Charlie and a single by Krause.

Koslowski, pitched a nice game for the Saints holding Yantic down to three hits. Jerry Lamphere who started for Yantic pitched well until the third when the Saints launched their attack of six hits. Gil Jones twirled the last frame and was touched for one hit and one run.

Krause was the leading batter with a double and single out of three trips to the plate.

The score.

WESTERLY

DANIELSON YOUTH'S CASE CONTINUED BY COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Aug. 20.—Harold D. Warner, 18, of Danielson, charged by Chief of Police Brown with reckless operation of an automobile on Atlantic avenue, Pleasant View, August 15th, entered a plea of nolo to the complaint in the third district court today. A second charge alleged the operation of an automobile without having obtained a license, to which he pleaded guilty.

Adolph L. Leon, Westerly highway engineer, testified to measurements made, when the Essex coach travelled on the highway 128 feet diagonally to the side of the highway then 48.6 feet to the other side, then turned over at a point 33 feet, 10 inches from the curb on the south side, there being no curb on the north side. Where the car turned over was ten feet off of the macadam in the sand, the rear left wheel being off, and the tire of the other wheel showing where the car had skidded. The auto was on its right side, headed east in the opposite direction from which it had been going, having travelled a total of 176.6 feet.

Solicitor Ferguson told the court that the auto travelled at a terrific rate of speed, according to witness, and that in evading a hole in the road the brakes had been applied. At the time a car was coming in the opposite direction. Neither brake would hold. Another young man was thrown out, but not seriously injured.

Warner told the court that he was not represented by counsel and that neither his father nor mother had been notified. He admitted driving at a speed greater than the law allowed. Although his father worked for the Light and Power company, he had not been informed of his mishap by the young man.

Judge Williams said that he made a great mistake in not notifying his parents. The young man said that the matter had nothing to do with his getting into trouble or to do with his getting out. Warner was paroled, in the custody of Chief of Police Brown pending that the parents might be communicated with and the case assigned for sentence at a future session or regular session of third district court.

State, William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton, vs. Oscar A. Geyer alias of Mystic. Geyer, aged 22 was charged with the operation on August 15th on Main street in Hope Valley of an automobile at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper, having regard to the width, traffic and use of said highway. Solicitor Ferguson said that on last Sunday in considerable auto traffic the speed greater than 35 miles was admitted to the officer, who blew his whistle and the defendant proceeded without stopping. The officer pursued him for three miles before overtaking him. The respondent said that he did not understand that he was the party at which the whistle was blown. He was fined $25 with the payment of costs.

Giovanni Colletta of West Warwick, complained of by Chief Frank H. Brown of Hopkinton, for operating an automobile at an unreasonable rate, August 14th on Broad street in Ashaway said that he knew he was running over speed, and pleaded guilty. He was fined $25 and costs.

Jerry Vennari, 22, of Westerly, pleaded guilty to the complaint that an automobile operated by him at Hope without body, August 19th, had not been registered with the Rhode Island state board of public roads. Albert Earl of the state board of public roads testified that the plates used were for a 1923 Buick sedan. He was fined $50 and costs.

Leonard W. Johnson pleaded guilty to the charge that an auto operated by him on August 19th was not equipped with two powerful brakes. Albert Earl testified that at a 25 mile per hour rate of speed 150 feet was travelled before the auto was brought to a stop. He was fined $25 and costs.

Alexander G. Taylor, Jr., 20, of West- erly was presented in court by Chief Brown for the operation of an automobile August 18th on Grove avenue, at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. Represented by Attorney Harris a plea of nolo was entered. On a second complaint of the operation of an auto not equipped with at least two powerful brakes, he pleaded guilty. Attorney Harris represented the defendant as without funds for payment of fine and said that the case had taught the young man a lesson. A fine of $25 and costs was imposed on the fast driving complaint, also $25 and costs for faulty brakes.

James White, 12, son of James White residing at the corner of John and Hobart streets, a caddy at the Winnapaug golf course, sustained serious injuries, when run over by an automobile, Friday morning, near the east curb on the Shore road. A Ford truck was being operated by Clifford Barnes of the Shore road, loaded with gravel. The boy jumped on and stepped off, and the auto wheel ran over the boy's leg. Attended by Dr. Charles P. Crandall the boy was taken to the Westerly hospital where it was found that he had suffered a fracture of the left femur. Later at the hospital it was reported that the boy was resting comfortably. Patrolman Leroy H. Norman investigated the accident.

Recorded in the office of the West- erly town clerk is the transfer: Aug 19th Harold Doney to Olive M. Burnham of Hartford, a parcel of land with all buildings and improvements at the intersection of John and Hobart streets.

In a drive by the representatives of the Rhode Island state board of public roads with the assistance of Chief Thomas E. Brown and members of the Westerly police force, 842 automobiles were stopped and looked over by the officials Thursday night. As a result, there were two arraignments Friday morning in district court and 62 violations of the automobile laws were reported among the 842 cars checked up on Granite and Beach streets. They were classified as follows: No registration in car 13, no license on person of operator 3, defective brakes 1, out-of-state cars ordered to register 2, unregistered car 1, defective lights 14, registration plates on car obscured 6, operator of car crowded on seat 1, lost plate 1.

DIXON SQUARE ALARM— FIREMEN AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Aug. 20—Alarm No. 56 in Dixon square was sounded by Farquhar Smith, Friday morning about 8:45 o'clock for a fire in Dixon court. The Reo truck of S. E. Barber & Son was being filled with gasoline at the Rhode Island garage, while the motor was running. Ernest Mellow, a garage employe, was turning the crank and when the gas became ignited, quickly pulled the hose nozzle from the tank and checked a bigger blaze. As it was, the flames leaped high and black smoke filled the court. Several autos coming through the court, dashed by the blaze. Mellow seized an extinguisher and soon had the flames under control. Word was sent to the Westerly fire station, from which the pumper and three companies of fire fighters had just started for New London and had reached Mystic, that the flames were out and their services were not required.

The truck of the P. S. Barber Hose company of Pawcatuck, with Chief Francis J. McMahon, came from the hose house on Liberty street and crossed Pawcatuck river bridge and Dixon square, to see if its services would be necessary. Praise was given the Pawcatuck department for this act of courtesy, as their wagon and men were all rolled up, and about to proceed to New London to take part in the parade of the Connecticut State Firemen's association. Chief McMahon said that he did not know how the Westerly department was hooked up, but knew that many of the Westerly firemen had already gone to New London.

Westerly Department's three companies, Rhode Island Ones, Cyclone No. 2 and Alert Hook and Ladder company left at 3:15 in three special busses for New London to take part in the parade. They were followed at 8:30 by the nine hundred gallon pumper. The Westerly Kiltie band accompanied Westerly's contingent.

Westerly band, C. O. Gavitt director, left Pawcatuck River bridge in a special car on the Groton and Stonington electric road for Stonington, and played in the parade for the Stonington firemen. Many Westerly people by train, electric car and automobiles visited New London Friday to witness the parade and be present at other features of the day.

At a meeting of Westerly Chamber of Commerce some months ago when methods of advertising Westerly were discussed, Edwin B. Stillman, suggested that the Pullman company be corresponded with to see if a car of that company could not be given the names, "Westerly," and "Watch Hill." When it was received from the Pullman company that a car, "Westerly," had been in the company's service for some time and at that time was being operated in the southwest. Recently the Pennsylvania railroad company under the title of "What's In a Name?" issued a folder on designations used for cars in the new equipment on the "Broadway Limited," and "The American," passenger expresses operated by the company. For names of observation cars they have adopted twelve historical halls in the country, from Independence Hall to Memorial Hall, Lexington. Twelve new club cars used combinations of the word Liberty, ranging from Liberty Bell to Liberty Hall. Four special sleeping cars bear names of famous Squares, such as Washington Square and Times Square. For fifty-nine new sleeping cars names of individuals who have played stirring parts in early American history have been chosen, the last is of particular interest to residents of Rhode Island and especially the residents of the South or Washington county, "Oliver Hazard Perry." Perry was born in South Kingston, R. I., 1785, served in Tripolitan War; had charge of flotilla of gunboats in New York harbor in 1812 and in 1813 was called to command a fleet on Lake Erie, where he won the memorable battle of Lake Erie from the British. The signal to begin this battle was the hoisting of a flag bearing the dying words of Lawrence, "Don't give up the ship." After the battle Perry wrote the much quoted despatch to General Harrison, "We have met the enemy and they are ours." He received the thanks of congress and a medal. His name is held in loving remembrance by all Americans. Monuments to hive have been erected in Cleveland, Ohio, and Newport, R. I.

Aubrey Lionel Maddock, a former Westerly boy, now of Hartford, will come to Watch Hill to be at the Plimpton House on Monday next, disabled war veterans from Camp Schultze, Niantic, Conn., of which he has charge, as camp director. During the summer this camp is maintained by people of Hartford and the trip to Watch Hill, where an entertainment will be given by the veterans, will serve as an agreeable change from the routine of camp life.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Huge armies of potato bugs were sighted in Norwich and in various sections of the state a half century ago. The bugs killed all potato plants they came upon and the people were compelled to fight them to save the state crop.

Items of interest in Norwich in 1876 as taken in part from the columns of the Norwich Bulletin of that year are as follows:

Monday, August 14, 1876—The spinners in the Rawitzer Brothers' woolen mill in South Coventry indulged in a strike for higher wages a few days ago and the factory, with the exception of the finishing department, is now closed.

The first really fine peaches were seen in the markets Saturday and the prices, as commercial reports state, ruled low.

An eagle, measuring seven feet five inches from tip to tip of its wings, was killed near Poquetanuck Saturday.

As much as $10 is now being offered for a stateroom aboard the Lawrence for the excursion to the Vineyard.

The new Episcopal chapel at Groton was dedicated Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Taunt of Middletown. The chapel is of wood, built in Gothic style and presents a very neat appearance. The seats will accomodate 200 persons. There is a beautiful chancel window, under which is the inscription, "In Memory of Samuel Seabury, S. T. D., First Bishop of the P. E. Church of America. Born in Groton Conn., November 30, 1729. Died in New London, Conn., February 27, 1796.

The river is now full of bluefish and many local people are taking advantage of this and are enjoying fresh fish dinners, without cost.

Tuesday, August 15, 1876—One of the features of the New London County fair this year will be the museum department. The officials of the fair association plan to have many articles of interest pertaining to the history of our country. The feature is to include a collection of crude hand made and hand used implements of agriculture, also those used about the household. All people having antiques are asked to get in touch with John Turner, president of the association.

People in Colchester in one day raised $4700 to defray the expense of building and furnishing the First Methodist Episcopal church, which was dedicated Thursday, August 10th. The society is in flourishing condition and all its finances are cared for.

The Ella now takes the mail to Block Island, this last piece of good luck coming after she had made the trip in extremely bad weather, while other captains kept their ships tied up at the piers.

The Greeneville bridge will probably be completed in about two weeks and the Occum bridge within the month.

In New London Saturday night a man and a woman were married by a well known pastor. After the ceremony the bridegroom refused to fee the clergyman or allow the bride to be kissed. The couple went home and the man informed his bride that she could immediately go her way and he would go his. They separated immediately. Why they bothered to get married is the question New London people are asking.

Wednesday, August 16, 1876—A gentleman from this city caught seven flounders near the Hope ferry bridge at Niantic within as many hours on a recent day. The largest flounder weighed 14 pounds.

Crescent beach, at Lyme station west of Niantic is one of the quiet and restful places of sea-side resort. There are already 14 cottages, all occupied, and a store is being built to meet the wants of the people. Last Sunday there were 150 people at the beach.

Among reminiscences is found the following. The people of Norwich held slaves before the revolutionary war, but as the citizens began to struggle for their own rights, their eyes opened to the rights of others and a few people liberated their slaves from conscientious motives. In 1784 laws were passed for the gradual abolition of slavery. The first newspaper was called the Norwich Packet, being headed by a wood-cut of a packet ship under full sail. Marriages were announced thus: "Last Thursday evening Mr. ——, an accomplished young gentleman, was married to the agreeable —— ——, a young lady endowed with every qualification to make the connubial state happy." Deaths thus: "Feb. 17th, 1774, on Friday last, departed this life, at Pomechag, her saffron-colored majesty, Ann, queen dowager of the Monahegan Indians, and yesterday, her remains were interred in a manner suitable to her high rank, in the Indian burying ground at Chelsea.

Thursday, August 17, 1876—One of the vaccum-brake pipes of the locomotive Wauregan blew out near the Worcester depot, Tuesday evening, and the Col. DeWitt drew her boat train to Norwich. The DeWitt used to run on this train years ago.

The Narragansett Pier railroad is proving a great success and the company is making money. About 2,000 passengers were carried during the week ending July 31st.

The new bell to replace the one with such an unsatisfactory tone in the Park church chime, E natural, has been received and hung, and is regarded as a great improvement on the other.

It is now supposed that Abraham was the original baseball player, as the scriptures say that he—pitched in the wilderness.

Parties in New London have leased the building on Water street recently occupied by J. T. Middleton as a wood-working establishment. They will continue that business and also run one of Harrison's burrstone mills, having a capacity of grinding 400 bushels of corn per day. Alexander Trolan is in charge of the business.

It is planned to establish a telegraph office in the Norwich & Worcester depot. This will meet with the approval of all Norwich residents.

Friday, August 18, 1876—It is reported that officers and directors of the Canal road will resign in the event of the refusal of Chief Justice Park to grant the injunction appealed for by the counsel of the Canal road. If this is so the Canal road may properly be called the Erie of Connecticut. This plan would allow the road to do as they wish, disregarding the decree of Justice Park, by having directors resign often while unknown officers continue to direct activities of the road.

Four large steamers, the Lawrence from Norwich, Granite State from Hartford, Narragansett from New London and Empire State from Providence are ready for the excursion to the Vineyard tomorrow.

Frieght business is good on the Norwich & Worcester road, the first train yesterday having 32 cars and the second train 67 cars.

Saturday, August 19, 1876—Henry M. Durfee of Greeneville has in his possession a large bowlder of crystal quartz, found in evacuating for the Greeneville dam, which rivals glass in transparency, as coarse print can be easily read through a section seven inches in thickness. Dr. Samuel Bulkely has a similar specimen.

The tracks of the New London Northern road below the city were covered with thousands of Colorado beetles, all headed south. Nearly was a large field of potatoes the plants of which were entirely denuded of leaves. Brush was fired and thousands of the pests were burned to death, while many others were killed by being beaten with brush and other implements.

Members of the Norwich Rifle club in their shoot recently scored fine shots getting a grand total of 324 out of 360 and 500 yards. The average was 54 out of 60, bull's eyes, 45 out of a possible 72.

A large army of potato bugs has been seen along the New Haven railroad tracks between New London and New Haven. Every effort is being made to kill them. What is causing armies of potato bugs to invade this section is not known but it is certain that people must kill them off or lose the entire crop in the state.

J. N. Edgerly of Grossendale has been issued a patent on a stop motion for drawing frames.

It was taken by mistake by a member of West Haven Hose Co. The ax was painted all up and with the words on it, "Taken by mistake."

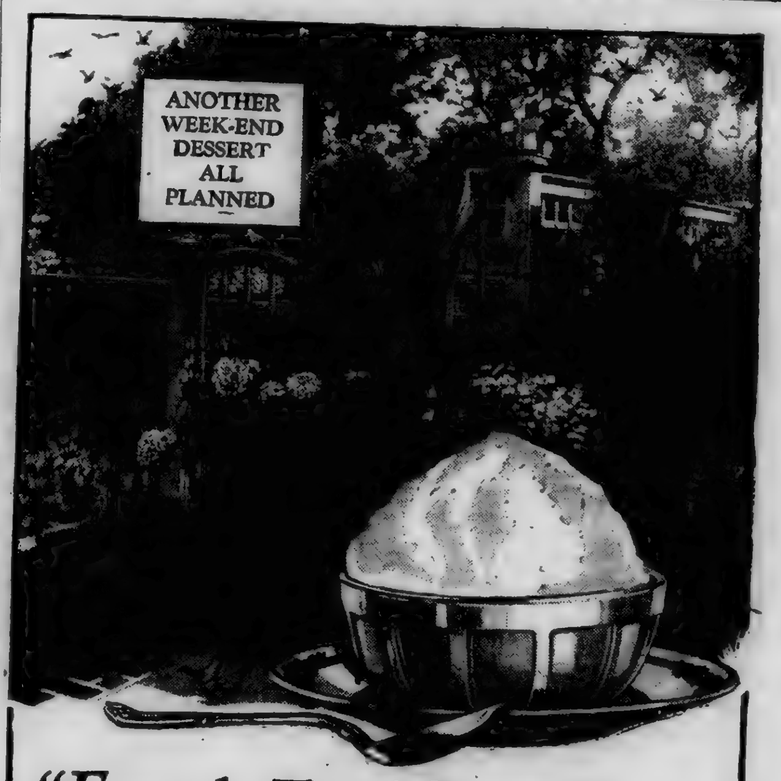
FITCHVILLE

Wednesday evening the biggest and most successful dance of the season was given at the Prospect house, about 150 attending. D'Atri's Wauregan house orchestra from Norwich furnished fine music and there was a pleasing entertainment by the Original Prospect Boys, Bob, Harry and George. They were enthusiastically received in songs, dances and clever skits. Just now there are about 80 guests at the house, which is the former Dr. Johnson place, located on a tributary of the Yantic river. The guests, mostly from New York, are spending enjoyable days, with swims in the cove, motor drives, informal dances, musicales and other social diversions.

WESTMINSTER

By vote taken Sunday at morning worship for the first time in the pastorate or Rev. T. E. Davis, Westminster church will hold no service next Sunday on account of Willimantic Camp meeting. All are thus able to attend the meetings there on this its great last day for this season. Psalm 62:11. Power belongeth unto God, was the text used at Westminster in the morning worship Sunday.

The day for the annual church school picnic was intensely hot, with every indication of a thunderstorm before night. For these reasons only those living nearby attended and these ate ice cream and other good things in quantities only possible under such circumstances, greatly enjoying everything including the games. The storm and it was a terror, broke just as the merry party was disbanding, allowing most to reach home before the rain, which fell in torrents, accompanied by thunder and lightning.



"French Tutti Frutti"

WELL bet that Mr. Pickwick himself would have smacked his lips over this wonderful flavor. It tastes delicious because delicious things are put in it—crushed strawberries, red, ripe cherries, golden pineapple floating in its own rich syrup, and raisins! And rum flavor!—all frozen together with pure cream. It's smooth, cool, delightful Ice Cream—as pure and rich and wholesome as a sunny summer day. Just try a plate. It tastes even better than it sounds. And be sure to buy enough for "seconds" when you get it for dessert on Sunday.

The Shell With Legs

Be sure that when you look you see. Few people do, it seems to me.
—Old Mother Nature.

There was one queer thing along the shore that puzzled both Reddy Fox and Jimmy Skunk. It certainly was queer. They found it often and in all sizes, from little things to some a foot or more long. They all looked alike. That is, all the live ones looked alike, and all the dead ones looked alike. The dead ones were just about the color of sand. The live ones were black. All of them were in the shape of a horseshoe, with a regular spike of a tail. Each seemed to be chiefly shell—at least, it seemed like a sort of shell. And on the rounded tops were some rather sharp points, like little spikes.

But the thing that puzzled Jimmy and Reddy was that when they turned one over on its back there didn't seem to be anything inside that shell except legs. Yes, sir, it seemed to them that it was simply a shell walking around on seven pairs of legs. Those legs were something like the legs of the crab.

Of course, they had to go to Graywind the Gull to have their curiosity satisfied. Reddy had found a big fellow about two feet long to the tip of his tail. He was partly buried in the sand. "Graywing," said Reddy, "I've just got to know something."

Graywing made a quick turn and came over to where he could look down on Reddy and what Reddy was looking at. He seemed actually to stand still in the air right over Reddy. "Well," said he, "what is it?"

"That's what I want to know. What is it?" retorted Reddy.

"That? Why, that's nothing but a Horseshoe Crab, sometimes called a King Crab, though what for I haven't the slightest idea," replied Graywing.

"Crab," exclaimed Reddy. "That thing a crab? Why, there's nothing to it but a shell and legs. Where's its body?"

"Where it ought to be—inside that shell," retorted Graywing rather impatiently. "How did you suppose there could be legs walking around without a body? Use your eyes, Reddy; use your eyes."

"I have used my eyes," snapped Reddy. "I've turned a dozen of these fellows over. They may have a body, but it must be a mighty small one. Anyway, I can't see it."

"Well, it's there, just the same, whether you can see it or not," replied Graywing. "Seeing that it's so hard for you to believe things, I suppose it is a waste of breath for me to tell you that these crabs dig holes in the sand in which to lay their eggs."

"No," said Reddy, "it isn't a waste of breath. I'm getting now where I could almost believe a fish could build a nest."

Graywing chuckled at that. "All right, Reddy," said he, "I'm glad to hear you say it."

Reddy looked at Graywing suspiciously. "Why?" he demanded.

"Because," replied Graywing, "there is a fish that builds a nest."

A Woman's "If"

If you can make a cake that beats
all others,
Bake biscuits that are crisp and brown and light,
Broil steak so very well that your own brothers
Admit your food finds favor in their sight;

If you can bear to see the buns you've finished
Used by the kids to feed a hungry crowd;
If you can see your cake supply diminished
And not protest in accents wild and loud;

If you can stretch that sylph the farmer bank roll
And make three dollars do the work of ten,
See Father spend twelve dollars for a fish pole,
And wear your shabby last year's hat again,

If you can talk and, not be always talking Or, being scolded, keep your tones mild;
If you can find a way to keep from knocking
Or, given reason, keep from getting riled;

If you can cry and still remain attractive,
If you can lose at bridge and not be blue;
If you can listen and remain inactive
When "cats" in petticoats begin to mew;

If you can manage to refrain from chewing
When the poker club strews ashes on the floor;
If you can dress with speed and without lagging
When a taxi's waiting for you at the door;

If you can greet every sign of pleasure
A man who values golf above his life
Is not convinced that you're a perfect treasure
And what is more—he'll take you for his wife.

The Last Hymn

The Sabbath day was ending in a village by the sea,
The uttered benediction touched the people tenderly;
And they rose to face the sunset in the glowing, lighted west,
And then hastened to their dwellings for God's blessed boon of rest.

But they looked across the waters, and a storm was raging there;
A fierce spirit moved above them—the wild, wild spirit of the air—
And it lashed and shook and tore them till they thundered, ground and boomed,
And alas for any vessel in their yawning gulfs entombed.

Very anxious were the people on that rocky coast of Wales,
Lest the dawn of coming morrow
should be telling many tales,
When the sea had spent its passion and should cast upon the shore Bits of wreck and swollen victims, as it had done heretofore.

With the rough winds blowing round her a brave woman strained her eyes,
And she saw along the billows a large vessel fall and rise;
Oh! it did not need a prophet to tell what the end must be,
For no ship could ride in safety near that shore on such a sea.

Then the pitying people hurried from their homes and thronged the beach,
For power to cross the waters and the perishing to reach!
Helpless hands were wrung in sorrow, tender hearts grew cold with dread,
As that ship, urged by the tempest, to the fatal rock-shore sped.

She has parted in the middle! O, the half of her goes down!
Have mercy! Is Heaven far to seek for those who drown?
When next the white shocked faces looked with terror on the sea,
One last clinging figure on the spar was seen to be.

Nearer to the trembling watchers came the wreck tossed by the wave,
And the man still clung and floated, though no power on earth could save.
"Could we send him a short message"
Here's a trumpet, shout away!"
'Twas the preacher's hand that took it, and he wondered what to say.

Any memory of his sermon—firstly, secondly! Ah, no!
There was but one thing to utter in that awful hour of woe;

So he shouted through the trumpet,
"Look to Jesus; can you hear?"
And, "Aye, aye, sir," rang the answer, o'er the water, loud and clear.

Then he listened, "He is singing, 'Jesus Lover of My Soul.'"
And the words brought back the echo,
"While the nearer waters roll;"
Strange, indeed, it was to hear him,
"Till the storm of life is past," Singing bravely from the waters, "O, receive my soul at last."

He could have no other refuge, "Hangs my helpless soul on Thee."
Leave, O leave me not—" the singer dropped at last into the sea;
And the watchers, looking homeward, though their eyes with tears made dim,
Said: "He passed to be with Jesus in the singing of that hymn."

CATS

Dear Corner Sisters: I suppose if I were to tell you I liked cats you would call be an old maid but it's best to keep in the good graces of the entire reading public, so I'll just mention to you that I do not crave the society of feline animals.

There are women in the world and men too, who I think were intended for cats instead of human beings. Notice their soft velvety paws as they beg some favor of you and then of-and them. I'll be bound you'll see the claws and feel them, too. That person that creeps around your house with stealthy tread and cat like caution, take my word for it, means mischief and if you don't hear some rumors regarding yourself, then I'm no prophet.

A cat will kill a bird, eat it, look up to your face wash her paws as though she said, "I don't see who could have eaten that canary." Can't you think of some individual who bears a resemblance to that cat?

Bah! I hate those cats. I want to have a person candid, upright and outspoken, not palaver before your face and backbite you when you haven't the chance to defend yourself. It always makes me shiver to hear a catlike tread, an honest person will allow the ground to feel the pressure of his feet.

Hello! here comes another cat. This time it comes in the shape of an anonymous corespondence. When a person is not willing to sign their name, fair and square to a letter, it strikes me that they can't be any too proud of it. This anonymous letter writing is of too catlike a nature to suit me, and I believe all my readers will have the same opinion.

Have I any more cats handy? I think so. Imagine you have written a poem; some friend praises it, stroking your fur the right way. Let another friend tell you of its faults, rubbing the fur contrawise, won't you spit and scratch. I know we love to be praised, but when a person gives us a candid opinion, it isn't fair to show our claws. It is best to be sincere and we can do it too, without hurting any ones feelings. The striking of claws is perfectly abominable and to all such I would say, Go away, Pussy, you're treacherous, and treachery is not wanted as either friend or companion.

DIET AND BEAUTY

Dear Social Corner: Gustav is an old German waiter who for 20 years has been behind the lunch counter of a restaurant catering exclusively to fashionable women, where I lunched while in Chicago. Gustav had a habit which is quite automatic. The moment one of his pretty customers came in and seats herself upon the stool in front of him and before she has ordered her lunch he gets her a jar of pickles and places them on the counter in front of her.

I was remonstrating with Gustav about this habit of his, and assuring him that pickles didn't go with every kind of luncheon order.

"I know them ladies," declared Gustav pessimistically. "They are all the same. They come here because pickles is free. The reputation of this place was built up on pickles. You say they spoil the stomach. I say take them away and you spoil our trade," and with those words he passed the jar with an enticing smile to a girl of about 16 who ordered chocolate and a sandwich which she ate to the sour accompaniment of pickled jerkins.

Pickles and codiments, mince and pastry these are staples at the luncheon places frequented by women.

Few women realize the importance which the dinner table plays in the cultivation of beauty. We are very largely what we eat, and while I know that sounds vulgar, I regret to say that is true. You can't insult your stomach without paying for it by distressed nerves, indigestion and various other complaints, and your looks, especially your complexion, show exactly what liberties you have been taking with that very important member.

Famous dieticians all over the world have been and are still trying to find the ideal diet, but I do not think it will ever be possible to find on system of diet which can be successfully applied to all individuals. Milk is a food and should not be taken with meat.

One of the simplest remedies for improving the conditon of the skin is hot water taken as a drink night and morning. Fruit, especially grape fruit, is one of the greatest beautifiers that we have. No fruit should be taken with milk except bananas and sweet baked apples. Creams can be taken as that contains less casein, which is the element of the milk which curdles all fruit. Cream and peaches is one of the worst dishes one can eat, it will in time destroy the digestive organs.

The juice of two oranges and one lemon taken at night will cure a bad breath unless due to defective teeth.

Fried food of any kind is very injurious. The heat transforms the best of butter to an indigestible substance.

You should not drink either tea or coffee if you are a beauty seeker, I am afraid that few women would be willing to give up their national drink, eliminate sugar and cream take it plain, substitute cocoa, among the vegetables a thin girl should indulge in are peas, beans, potatoes and green corn and lentils, an excellent vegetable, which is both inexpensive and delicious and not used half enough in American households, all farinaceous foods for the thin beauty seeker such as rice, hominy, corn meal and oat meal.

APPRECIATES OLD WRITERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters; I think as far as the hot weather is concerned we are having some very interesting letters. I also think the sisters who can sit down in this hot and sticky weather to write a letter (and come out alive after such an ordeal) is deserving a pat on the shoulder is worthy of all the praise that is coming her way.

I was more than pleased to see a letter from Billie. Billie and I have had many a good time together (although we have never met.) Come again, Billie, your letter was very inspiring. I think so say we all of us, I enjoy all the letters and hope all of our old writers will be giving us a big surprise by sending in a few lines. Now who will be the first? We will have a celebration when you write, everyone will be glad, and the satisfaction of knowing that you have pleased some one is so great that it cannot be caught or given away, it is something that stays always with us and it is something no one can steal.

Aunty No. 1—I am thinking of you today, 8-14-1926. Some hot here where I reside.

Good cheer to the sick and sympathy to the bereaved members.

SISTER READY.

FOR THAT SUNBURN (Requested)

Dear Corner Sisters; I have a fine remedy for sunburn but I can't tell you about it here, but this will certainly help you.

A simple inexpensive remedy is to apply after a bath in clear and warm or tepid water just before retiring a lotion made of equal parts of lemon juice and glycerine. The lemon juice is to prevent peeling and is also a mild bleach. The glycerine is oily enough to be soothing. In the morning a cold shower will remove what is left of the lotion and stimulate the circulation as well.

A day lotion which is not sticky is equal parts of lemon juice and bay rum.

A good hair tonic, pilo carpine hydrochlorate, 2 grains; preapitated sulphur, 20 grains; detergent, 20 drops; castor oil, 10 drops, alcohol (95 per cent) 4 ounces; tincture of cantharides 4 drams; cologne, 4 drams; rose water to make 8 ounces. This hair tonic is especially good if the hair has lost it's color or for hair that is turning gray. It will stimulate a thicker growth of hair and help cure dandruff.

Right way to shampoo. First be sure there is plenty of hot water in readiness about 5 of 6 bowls full. (Use 3 tablespoons or soap tree bark to one quart of water, steep an hour then strain.) Rub in scalp thoroughly for several minutes, squeeze out the latter it makes and rinse thoroughly with the hot water, then repeat, just the same as if you were beginning the shampoo, rinse thoroughly the second time. Now comes the important rinsling which may be hot or nearly cold, but which has in it the juice of a lemon strained, two lemons if the hair is very long and heavy. The mild acid of lemon will cut the curd and act as a mild tonic on the scalp. Then a clean cold rinse and a brisk drying with towels and the hands.

Avoid the electric or hot air dryers, as they tend to make the scalp dry and the hair brittle. It pays to take a little more time and dry the hair less violent, rubbing it with dry towels and fluffing it with the hands. When nearly dry arrange it as you wish it to look and it will stay that way.

No man need to be bald headed if he isn't afraid or putting iodine on his head. I have living monuments.

RECIPES FOR SLICED CUCUMBERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Will try and do my tit this week in helping fill up the columns in the paper where I read and enjoy the letters very much. Was glad to see many of the Corner Members at the Old Home day at East Killingly. I have attended three of your meetings and enjoyed myself every minute; they are all so sociable and jolly you feel right at home with them, and even the sisters that I have never met before and we have very good times together. I feel very lonesome since Just Pete moved away for she was a very good neighbor. I was pleased to read Lydia's letter and she spoke about the hollyhocks. Mine are in bloom, all colors. I was glad to see Keziah Doolittle looking so good. I have tried a good many recipes but have had good luck with them, will send in the recipe for the cucumbers which a good many asked for. We think they are good in the winter.

Sliced Cucumbers: 4 quarts peeled and sliced cucumbers, 3 pints vinegar, 4 tablespoons salt, 8 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon mustard ground, mix salt, sugar, and mustard together, stir into vinegar, add cucumbers, bring to boil, can hot.

Good luck for the Corner.

HOLLYHOCKS.

MADE ENJOYABLE TRIP

Dear Social Corner Friends: Will try to write one more letter to help fill the Social Corner page.

Kochie: Your letters have always seemed very interesting to me, and when I read yours of May 15th I wondered who you were, but had no idea that I knew you. I have just written your name in my Social Corner book and shall be looking for your letters now. Nelly Grey, Lilac Lady, Harry E. Johnny on the Spot and Votami are relatives of yours. I have your ice cream cake recipe written in my cook book, and have tried it several times. It is very good.

Bittersweet: Has your next door neighbor joined the Corner? I look every Saturday for her letter. Sorry I missed seeing you, try it again, I am at home some of the time.

Crimson Rambler: I have been told that I have met you. I am trying to find out more about it.

Molly B.: Don't give up, try it again. I shall be watching to see how you come out.

Harry E: Some sport, aren't you? I was more than tired. Mr. Peggy thought B was pretty good to take anywhere as she didn't make much noise. It would have been a waste of breath for any one to have asked me to go to Danielson that night. Don't wait another year before you write again, will you?

Now, I want to tell you about an interesting trip I have just taken. We left East Killingly in the morning, went down through Danielson and Central Village to Moosup, called on friends there, and visited the cemetery where some of our relatives lie, then went up over Sterling Hill and Ekonk to the Kennedy cemetery where the relatives sleep that my son and I are named after; have been told that it is also called Campbells Mills cemetery; then we started on our way again to find Beach pond, around there without much trouble. Had better luck than Susie and her boy friend did when they went there for an outing for we ate our lunch in peace.

Was told that we went over onto the Rhode Island side. It is very pretty there, a nice sandy beach and we found plenty of shade to park the cars, we met several cars as we came out. I have an idea there was a crowd there by night. We went from there to Voluntown where we called on friends and relatives. From Voluntown we came up through Pachaug, Jewett City by Tadpole pond and Bishop's Crossing to Plainfield. Mr. and Master Peggy came on home but the rest of the party stayed in Plainfield to call on cousins we hadn't seen for some time, at last we came up through Central Village and Danielson home again and called it a day.

Barbara: Have been trying to get up to see you. Hope you are feeling much better now.

This letter is getting too long.

POISON IVY TREATMENT

Dear Editor and Members: At the time of year people are apt to be poisoned with poison ivy, I have read of these treatments for same.

Sea water bathing if available.

An application of boric-acid water, 1 teaspoon of boric acid in a quart of warm water.

A five per cent solution of ferric chloride in a half and half mixture of alcohol and water or glycerine and water.

One ounce pertassium manganate crystals dissolved in one pint warm water. Swab the affected parts when ever they itch. Use care not to get any of the solutions into the eyes.

If you want something different try Unique pot roast. Select a round or brisket with plenty of meat. Sear it in drippings in a deep pot. Around the roast place 1-2 pound of prunes which have been well washed and soaked over night, 1-3 cup or molasses, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 tablespoon salt and pepper to taste. Cover with boiling water and cook for three hours. Good hot or cold; nourishing and inexpensive.

Daisy Dean: No I have not pickled berries this year. Am as interested in the Social Corner as ever. Send it all the way to England so Eve may read it.

Best wishes to all from

ATTENDED TWO PICNICS

Dear Sisters of Social Corner:

As it has been a long time since I have sent in a letter, I now take a few minutes to tell of the fine time I had at Social Corner club No. 6 at Mystic, Aug. 17th. When breakfast was over, I thought of how I would love to go to the Shore Line club meeting so I said to my hubby, "Let us go down to Mystic for the day." He said, "All right." So we hurried to get ready and away we started. It was a fine day although it did look like rain but we were not sugar. It was a fine drive down. Chauffeur passed us with her car full, all going to the same hall. Did we have a good time? Well, I will say for once we did. And did we all talk? Ha. Ha. It sounded like bees, and such a good dinner, with all the good things to eat. After dinner we had readings, music and recitations from different sisters, which made the day pass all too soon.

E. L. M.—Mr. Slow finally showed up. Had some rain coming home but got home without getting wet. Mr. Slow said he would go again, not so slow, what you say? I am thanking those who sent me birthday cards.

Last week I went out to club No. 3 picnic at Leffingwell. Had a good time out there. I hope all the sisters have had good times this summer. If any are sick hope they will soon be well. Well, I guess I had better bring this to a close and ring off until next time.

INQUIRES FOR RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Friends:

Surely, B. Natural and her ready helpers must feel gratified at the response to their invitation to S. C. members and friends to attend the Mystic meeting.

It was the largest gathering of members I've ever attended and I enjoyed meeting friends and acquaintances but missed several members of club 6, and am sorry that they couldn't be there. The Stonington and Mystic members must have been very tired, but also they must have enjoyed having everything go along so nicely. I hope not many were out in the shower on their way home. Our party got full benefit of it, as it began raining just as we left Mystic and we got quite wet, but think none are any the worse for it.

We didn't mind the wetting so much as we did the lightning.

Yesterday I had a piece of cake and I'm very anxious to get the recipe, if by my description any one recognizes it as their cake, will they please send the recipe? It was a fairly large three layer cake and had lemon jelly filling. (The cake was light in color), it was delicious. Also there was a quart jar of sweet pickles on our table; had green tomato and pear (I think) in it. It was very nice and a friend of mine is wishing she knew how to make it as she considered it as good as she had ever eaten. Will some one send the recipe? This is a good chocolate cookie recipe: 1-2 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 squares cooking chocolate, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon milk, 2 cups flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder. Roll thin, cut with doughnut cutter, sugar the tops and bake ten minutes with oven not too hot.

"O. D."

THE PICNIC AT MYSTIC

Dear Social Corner Member: I am just home from our meeting which was held at Mystic. The weather did not look very good this morning but came out pretty good, but very hot. There were 89 in attendance. As a club we extend a vote of thanks to B Natural for securing a hall and doing so many things to make the day a success. She had a fine program and to all who took part we say thank you. We enjoyed every bit of it. We also appreciated the demonstration given by Miss Ruth Henson, to Y. Y. Skipper, Milky Way, Tatting and Moonie I extend thanks for helping me serve the dinner. It certainly means a lot of work but each one must take their turn, then it's not very hard for any one.

Hoot Owl: Such cake as you make I suppose the recipe is a secret.

Lucile Drew: You are some cake maker too.

Slow: Hope your other half will have courage to come again.

B Natural: Hope your friends got such an impression of us that they will want to join our club.

Blandina: You don't know what you missed.

Deborah: Glad I met you, hope we meet at Bean Hill.

E. L. M.

GRATEFUL FOR SONG

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I've always said the Social Corner was a bureau of information and I want to thank all who sent the words of the song I asked for. Now here is a question that I hope some one can answer. As I go up town see there is a tree growing close to the front door of the house where the Kimball Textile shop used to be. It has large leaves and a beautiful red blossom, it is budded now but not many buds, I've often seen it when I lived in Yantic, have asked people the name of it, none seem to know. Perhaps some of the sisters who live near Harland's corner can tell me the name. There are some beautiful trees growing in my neighbor's yards and I enjoy them.

Ann Tenna: Think you and I are some alike in some respects, enjoy your letters very much.

I'm interested in flowers and all things growing, love dogs, cats and birds.

Amy: Am wondering how and where you are, have some epitaphs for you that will make you smile, will send them if you are at home.

C. Rambler: Guess you love to work better than I do this hot weather. Please stop long enough to answer my last. You know I'm like "Susie" have a boy friend; now I have two and they can dance the Charleston. They are also interested in flowers and pets.

Leah: Enjoyed my little chat with you for you are acquainted with so many people that I knew in the long ago.

Whirlwind: Do not get discouraged writing I'll get to it sometime.

Billie: Glad to see another letter from you, hope you will write often

Best wishes to all.

JOAN.

SENDS CHATTY LETTER

Dear Social Corner: Marian your inquiry as to the amount of subnitrate of bismuth and glycerine is equal parts put on with a toothpick.

Ann Tenna: Do you belong to the Virginia Reel or Round Robin. There is a writer by the name of Ann Tenna. I belong to them.

Jet: I have been trying to figure how to cut three kernels of corn from a cob please tell us, I thought it must mean three cobs.

Jennie: If I had to go through all that manouvering to make an apple pie my folks never would get any. I don't doubt but what it is fine. My husband's mother makes her similar but hers never runs out. She never puts anything around it or little cubes or funnels to keep it from running out, but I never could make a decent pie that way. Her pies I think are wonderful, I hope she sees this for it is true. I wish I had one now.

The way I make my apple pie (now don't laugh Jennie) I peel quarters enough for apple sauce and pies and put them in the oven with sugar and bake them until they are a dark red, say about one hour. Then I season with a little lemon juice, butter and let stand until next day, then I put the apple between two crusts and bake and bake six turnovers at the same time, after finished baking I take a strainer and put powdered sugar all over the top. Of course I peel my apples when I am reading and after apples are baked it does not take long to put the pie together.

I can imagine your fussing for I know you have a vast amount of patience and an apple pie or any kind of a pie would be all right I think if you make it.

Black Eyed Susan: Your trick for mixing cake is all right. I will try it. The way I have done I put mine all together but the shortening and the eggs. I sift flour, sugar, salt, baking powder, then measure out my milk. I really think your way is better, when I have ginger cookies, sugar cookies, doughtnuts and cake, I have several mixing pans or bowls and fix them all the night before in the different bowls in the morning am ready, so when it comes cool will tackle your cake trick but, Jennie, never your apple pie for I know I would have Billikins luck. Now, Jennie, don't get offended, will you? I have tried many a time to make them that way with almost a sheet round it and macaroni on the top until they looked like a steam boat then half of my pie would be in the oven. Every time I tried I would say "never again".

L. C. G.: Received letter I wish you had come north this summer. Why didn't you? Did you ever hear it was terribly bad luck for any one to give you a rubber plant?

Lucille L.: Received your card. Thanks.

Louise H.: Received your card while you were in Hartford.

Irene B.: Received your card it was lovely. Did you wear that pretty dress?

Idel: Has your time expired for Health and Home. I wrote them but haven't heard. I can keep track of Courier here.

Ida A: I have tried and tried to get you on the phone. Why don't you call up?

Anna R.: I have found if you do not put your raisins in your cake until after your eggs are in they will not fall.

Louise B: I want to send you a package. If you are home call up.

Talk about chatty letters no one has any ties on me.

ETHELYN.

EXPERIENCED HOT WEATHER

Dear Social Cornerites: Guess most of the sisters are keeping as cool as possible this weather. It has certainly been warm and then some.

The Italians have been celebrating the assumption of the virgin and by the noise they've made I guess she's arrived. It does seem as if the fireworks get noiser every year. Should think there were other ways of celebrating instead of burning up money. They had the Willimantic Italian Citizen's band and they paraded through the business section of the town and went right by my door. Guess we must have frightened them as they stopped playing just before they reached our house and waited till they were on Pierce street before the music began again. I shall try to keep out of sight when another band goes by the door as I love to hear the music.

Have any of the sister's read "The Blue Window by Temple Bailey. I read it in the Good Housekeeping and I enjoyed every bit of it.

Was glad to read Ethelyn's way of washing corsets. I've never had good luck at it but will try her way and see how they look.

Sympothy to the sick and shut-ins and good luck to those that are well.

VALUE OF ANTIQUES

Dear Friends of the Social Corner: A friend living in Norwich and one interested in antiques called my attention to article in House Beautiful March number, pages 262 and 264 advising me to note prices given there. Fortunately for me a young lady in our house takes the publication which is good, but expensive and elaborate designs for ordinary people and believing many of our Social Corner family may not take or see the book and feeling may benefit some of our readers, just going to copy a few prices given.

Currier and Ives prints or colored lithographs, more correctly called, first was started in Broadway, New York in 1830 by Nathaniel Currier who had various partners, founded the firm of Currier and Ives which continued until 1891. Almost every home in America had its Currier and Ives print. Great variety of topics chosen. They were strong in sentimental subjects and in spite of the great output are not common. Sale in New York recently may interest you. View of Harlem river by Fannie F. Palmer drawn from nature 1852, $52.50; American Homestead, four seasons; dated 1867-69, sold singly in spring, $42.50; summer, $37.50; autumn, $40; winter, $40; Wayside Inn painted by Fannie F. Palmer 1864. Two stanzas or Longfellow's poems on either side of title, $155.

Washington at Princeton, Jan. 3, 1777 dated 1904 very rare, $95.

Clipper Ship, Sweepstakes, by J. F. Butterworth 1854, $215.

Lightning express trains leaving Junction, 1863, $420.

Winter in the country by G. W. Durrie, $57.50.

1864, American Forest scene, Maple Sugaring by A. F. Tait, 1855, $120.

American Country Life, October afternoon, by Fannie F. Palmer, 1855, $95.

American Country Life, Pleasures of Winter, $57.

Now I imagine many of our Social Corner members will look over their old prints. It will pay you.

ASKS ABOUT PICNIC

Dear Social Corner: Here I am, very much alive, and not dead and buried as one might think by my long silence. Have not attended any picnics this summer as they were too far away.

Student: Where is our annual picnic? It's the first year we have missed since the Corner started.

Beth Ct I suppose you are with O. D. and having a wonderful time as usual. When do you return to S. C.? Come and see me when you do. Ma H. has been over and spent a week with me and should have sent for you if you had been home.

Who will be hostess from Club No. 1 at the first meeting at C. of C. hall the second Wednesday in September? or should we postpone it until October. What say you, sisters?

Can any of the sisters tell what will exterminate fleas on cats? Please answer through the Social Corner.

Club No. 1 has been very much blessed in not losing any members by death during the summer months.

Maine Lover: I often think of you and know how you must miss Wandering Jew. I cannot make it seem real that we won't have her with us again this fall. How we shall miss her. I hope you will be with us just the same.

My heartfelt sympathy goes out to all in trouble and best wishes for all.

TWO FINE TRIPS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: August 4th on the banks of the river that flows down below Sister Eloas' garden under the wide spreading branches of a beautiful tree, Fifty-four Social Corner members and friends met for a picnic dinner and party. The weather man did his very best to have us realize it was (good old summer time) but there was a gentle breeze most of the time so we were very comfortable. The table was laden with goed things to eat. Orange cake being in high favor. Foxglove gave us a recitation. Windham Bluebells granddaughter, a pretty little miss from the sunny south, gave several readings. Then there were imitators and impersonators by others.

Calamity Jane led in singing as usual. We bought the entire stock of soft drinks from the little store around the corner. Had a jolly good time, thanks to Sister Elva, who said she would invite us again. The sisters have been writing about their trips away so will try to tell you about some of mine. Chauffeur, the lone man, Kasha, Bridge and yours truly went to Hammonasett beach, the state park, one day. Great many tourists were camping there. Acres filled with their tents and camping arrangements. Decided we would not take a lunch, but get our dinner at the beach. Clam chowder and hot dogs advertised. Would be served in a short time. We waited but buns didn't come. Were being baked., so had no hot dogs. Clams didn't come in. Were in the sound swimming we decided, so had to content ourselves with pie. There were pies, and pies and more pies. We found eats later and needless to say had good appetites for them. Went to Madison beach and several others. Came back to Ocean beach for a short stay on our way home. Had a fine trip and enjoyed the day away very much. So said we all.

Will tell you of my last trip to Bear Mountain bridge over the Hudson river. Started early Monday morning August 9th. Went to East Haddam, then to Middletown, Middlebury and Meriden, Southington next. Have you ever been over Southington mountain or Sherman's hill as it is called? Think it is more than three miles to the bottom of the hill. There is a warning posted to look out for brakes. My friend had a very efficient driver for her car or I should have been timid about riding down such a long steep hill. Ladies driving up the hill looks very much discouraged as we met them going up. Peaks hill came next, then Waterbury, then Danbury, then the long climb up the mountain. Would think we were on the wrong road, but would come to a tree with a black bear painted on the trunk and knew we were going right. There are several gas stations and places where tourists are accomodated on the route. I found a romance at one of the places we stopped. A confirmed bachelor of 70 years was the victim. He had taken for (or been taken by) a widow lady of 60 summers, mother of two sons. Been married six months, so were just enjoying their honeymoon.

She informed me that he had lived there alone so long the house needed renovating, but she had to work and might as well work there as anywhere. The old fellow was very much afraid he would not hear everything that was said. I wish them happiness in their journey together in life and went on my way rejoicing in the thought that romance comes to old as well as to the young if they have patience to wait for it. Had fresh tea in my thermos bottle and plenty of oil in the gas tank to take us up the long climb we were to commence upon soon.

Our first obstacle was in the form of a toll gate, one dollar to enter the (enchanted grounds). A ticket given you to present at the other entrance when you passed the other way. We stopped on the mountain top, to view the scenery. It was like a beautiful painting. The mountain peaks were all of a height. The foliage was a dark like mass and so even resembled a well kept lawn. The beauty and grandeur of the Catskill mountain peaks will be in my memory for a long time. Then down the mountain side to the wonderful suspension bridge over the Hudson river. The view was beautiful as we could see the road down which we had passed and around the river for miles. Our next place was Nyack, where we crossed on the ferry over to Tarrytown. Then to White Plains, then to Portchester, New York, where we passed the night.

Tuesday another beautiful day for riding, started on the home stretch. Darien, South Norwalk, Westport, Southport, Stratford, Devon, Milford Walnut beach Savin Rock, New Haven, Guilford, Lyme, Niantic, New London and last but not least, Norwich, covering 350 miles, through two states, 20 cities and towns. My friend was rather tired at the close of the second day, but with one day of resting I was ready for Atlantic beach on Thursday.

Best wishes for Social Corner.

POETRY

The New World

The night that has no star lit up by God,
The day that round men shines who still are blind,
The earth their grave-turned feet for ages trod,
And sea swept over by His mighty wind—
All these have passed away, the melting dream
That flitted o'er the sleeper's half-shut eye,
When touched by morning's golden-dart-
ing beam;
And he beholds around the earth and sky
That ever real stands, the rolling shores
And heaving billows of the boundless main,
That show, though time is past, no trace of years.
And earth restored he sees as his again,
The earth that fades not and the heavens that stand.
Their strong foundations laid by God's right hand.

—Jones Very.

The Pines and the Sea

Beyond the low marsh-meadows and the beach,
Seen through the hoary trunks of windy pines,
The long, blue level of the ocean shines,
The distant surf, with hoarse, complaining speech,
Out from its sandy barrier seems to reach;
And while the sun behind the woods declines,
The moaning sea with sighing boughs combines,
And waves and pines make answer, each to each.
O melancholy soul, from far and near
In life, faith, hope, the same sad under-tone
Pursues from thought to thought! Thou needs must hear
An old refrain, too much, too long thine own:
'Tis thy mortality infects thine ear;
The mournful strain was in thyself alone.

—Christopher Pearse Cranch.

PARADE AND SPORT EVENTS CLOSE FIREMEN'S BIG MEET AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 20—The forty-ninth annual convention and field day of the Connecticut State Firemen's association came to a close here today, after a two days' session, with a mammoth street parade and athletic events. The feature of today was the parade in which 55 fire companies from towns throughout the state participated. With ideal weather prevailing the march of the firemen was witnessed by thousands of men, women and children, who thronged all of the streets and avenues through which the procession passed and the firemen were frequently applauded because of the excellent impression they made.

The parade, which was the largest of its kind ever held in New London, started shortly after 11 o'clock, forming on Broad street and intersecting streets. Headed by a platoon of police in charge of Sergeant Samuel Hick and a motorcycle squad and with Grand Marshal Morris B. Payne and his aides and Acting Chief Thomas Shipman and Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds, the parade moved through the several streets and avenues without interruption. Following the fire officials, marshal and aides, came the Allan Hook and Ladder company headed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars band, of New Haven. Next came the Niagara Engine company with the United States Coast Guard band. The members hauled their parade reel, which was decorated and had a float representing the old-time pumper, the kind used prior to the invention of modern fire apparatus. Next in line was Nameaug Engine company, with the Scottish Fife and Drum corps of Hartford. Then come the Thomas Hose company and a Norwich band. Conspicuous with the appearance of this company was Jerry H. Fielding, of Mohegan, a full-blooded Indian and a member of the company, who marched at the head of his company in Indian garb and carrying a huge silk American flag with flaring on either side of Fielding as a soldier and a sailor. Following the Uncas Hose company and the Colonial Governor's Foot Guard band, of New Haven. This company received a volley of applause for their appearance, being dressed in snow-white uniforms and carrying fancy colored umbrellas. Next in line were the Ockford and Pequot Hose companies, accompanied by the Elks' band of Middletown. The last of the New London companies was the Northwest Hose company and the Scottish Fife and Drum corps of New Haven. All of the companies apparatus was in line following the respective companies.

Then came the visiting firemen. The first was the Eagle Hook and Ladder company of Ansonia and with their 150 members and their band the company made a splendid appearance. The members were dressed in blue military uniforms and hauled their parade reel. When passing the reviewing stand in front of the municipal building the members walked in single file close up and were given a rousing ovation. Following came departments from all over the state, each being accompanied by parade reels or apparatus.

At Willetts avenue, corner of Montauk avenue, the parade disbanded. The guests were then transported to Ocean Beach in motor busses and trolley cars and there were feasted to a New England clam bake, the serving of the feast being in the park. After the meal the athletic events took place on Bentley avenue and were witnessed by immense throngs.

A committee was appointed to decide which company made the best appearance in line and which apparatus was the prettiest in decoration. At 4 o'clock, at the conclusion of the athletic events, it was announced that Eagle Hose company, Ansonia had captured the prizes. The company was the guest of Konomoc Hose company during its stay in New London. At 6 o'clock a bake was served in the park and at 9 o'clock elaborate fireworks were displayed.

The convention next year will be held at Savin Rock, New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Silk of Windsor Locks celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Monday with a family party at the summer home of their daughter, Mrs. L. D. Cutler, at Stony Brook. In St. Mary's church a nuptial High mass of thanksgiving was celebrated at 10 o'clock. Many friends as well as the children and their families and other relatives were attending. Rev. G. M. Grady was the celebrant, Rev. A. J. Cavanaugh of Suffield, deacon, and Rev. Laurence Ferrari of Italy, sub-deacon. Preceding the mass, while the couple received a special blessing at the sanctuary rail, Miss Josephine I. Wallace sang "I Love You Truly"; at the offertory of the mass she sang Millard's "Ave Maria," and at the conclusion of the mass Organist R. D. O'Brien played the Mendelssohn's Wedding March. Thomas F. Silk and Miss Kate Dixon were in Poquonock at the time of their marriage, August 15, 1876, and they were married in St. Mary's church, Windsor Locks, by Rev. Thomas P. Bryant, a former New London pastor, there being no church or mission in Poquonock at that time. Mr. Silk worked in paper mills in both places many years, later conducting a retail ice route. For a few years past they have lived in Sound View during the summer. They have six children living —Mrs. L. D. Cutler, Thomas F. and Frank J. Silk of Windsor Locks, Edward E. of Warehouse Point, Mrs. Alvin H. Smith of Sound View and Mrs. C. H. Tracy of Hartford.

Herbert Maynard, 23, of 22 Vista street, employed by the J. N. LaPointe company, was before Judge Frederick Dimmock in the Waterford town court this morning charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. His case was not tried, being continued until next Monday afternoon and he furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000 for his appearance. Maynard was driving a touring car through Waterford several days ago. In the machine were John Dardis, Waterford, George Potter, 114 Shaw street, and Mrs. Grace Murphy, 17 Gilbert street, East Hartford. When at Station 14, Jordan cemetery, Maynard lost control of the automobile. The machine left the concrete and collided with three telephone poles and then crashed through a fence. All the occupants were thrown out and Mrs. Murphy suffered head injuries, which it was first feared included a fractured skull. She is now a patient at Lawrence hospital.

Joseph Cappozza, of Waterford, was presented on a charge of violation of the liquor law, but his case was also continued until Monday night, because of the failure of his attorney to be present. Cappozza furnished a bond for his appearance in court on the latter date. Cappozza was arrested, by Waterford constables ten days ago, following John Kellen, formerly of Waterford, being killed by being struck by a New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad train near the Waterford station. It is claimed that Kellen, who was drunk, obtained his liquor at Coppozza's house. When the raid at the Cappozza house was made, a large quantity of home-brew and wine, together with a complete outfit in white fire hats and with long [illegible] still, was found and seized as evidence against Coppozza.

George Darling of Manchester was presented on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded not guilty, but Judge Simmock found Darling guilty and imposed a fine of $100 and costs. Twenty-five dollars of the fine was ordered remitted, but Darling had to pay $85. He was arrested last night by State Police Officers Arthur Whitmarsh and Edward Johnson when the officers found Darling driving the automobile between Mossbroker's corner and Golden Spur. Darling was in such a state of intoxication that he was nearly helpless and why he had not wrecked the auto or run down pedestrians was more than the officers could fathom. He was locked up for the night at the New London police station. With Darling was Charles Risley, also of Manchester, and he also was intoxicated. After he had been in a cell but a short time Risley suffered a severe attack of asthma. His condition became such that a physician was summoned to prescribe for Darling and after working on the patient an hour and without obtaining material relief, the physician ordered Risley transferred to Home Memorial hospital.

FREDERICK'S HOME BREW BEER SEIZED IN RAID

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 20—Victor Frederick was arrested last night by local and prohibition enforcement agents charged with violation of the liquor law. He was locked up and this morning was presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran. The case was continued to Monday morning next at 10 o'clock. He furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000 in Lorenzo Montali, Shaw street.

Frederick was arrested as a result of information being obtained by the prohibition agents that he was selling liquor at his residence, 33 Walbach street. Shortly before midnight Prohibition Agents Avery, Briggs and Hinman, together with Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolmen Edward Riordan, Ernest Opperman and George Perkins swooped down on the Frederick house and thoroughly searched the premises. No liquor was found, but a large quantity of home-brew beer was found and seized. Frederick is well known to the police, having a court record for various violations of the law.

Patrolman Walter Rehn while performing traffic duty last night at the corner of State and Bank streets, was struck by a Connecticut company trolley car as it rounded the corner, was knocked down and landed in such a manner as to sprain his wrist. He will be absent from duty several days.

Master Jason Silverman, of 33 Boardwalk, Ocean Beach; Elmer Dudley, 60 Golden street; Miss Mary Giacum, East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Clarence Noyes, Mystic; Jesse India, 28 Pacific street; Harold Prout, Westerly; Mrs. George Allen, 14 Lee avenue; Mrs. John Lavigne and infant son, Montville; John Dumbrowski, 38 Douglas street and Thomas Colemna, New Haven patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel today ordered suspended the drivers' licenses of Andrew Trieni, 653 Bank street; Morris Feldman, 222 1-2 Montauk avenue; John Dowley, 92 Union street and Walter R. Radisdioni, 49 Goshen street. The driver's license of S. Frederick Friedman, formerly residing at the Hotel Mohican and who ended his life in a New York hotel several weeks ago, was ordered suspended Commissioner Stoeckel also approved the right to drive of Robert E. Kelley, 46 West Colt street.

Charles H. Baldwin, 579 Bank street, well known restaurant proprietor, who attempted suicide six weeks ago by inhaling gas, and who has since been a patient at Lawrence hospital, was able to return to his home today.

Liberati Buenisaje, a Filipino, residing at 13 North Bank street, was arrested this morning charged with breach of the peace. He furnished a surety on his bond of $25 for his presentation in the police court tomorrow morning. Buenisaje was standing on State street and in front of the Soldiers and Sailors monument when the firemen's parade approached. He stood directly in front of an operator of a motion picture machine and refused to get out of range of the picture device. When remonstrated with he fought the operator. Station House Keeper Frank Corcoran was nearby and observing the trouble arrested Buenisaje.

FOUND OFFICER WITH WIFE— BATTED OFF HIS CAP

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 20—Frederick Houff, submarine base, where he is a gunner's mate, went to the police station shortly before last midnight and delivered a chief petty officer's cap to Desk Sergeant Frank Howard. Houff stated that the cap was the property of a chief petty officer, who lost the hat after Houff and the petty officer had engaged in a fight. Houff said that he was looking for his wife and found her on the street with her companion and after words had been exchanged the two submarine base men started to fight, but the petty officer retreated, dropped his hat and did not stop to recover it.

PERUVIAN SUBMARINE ACCEPTED BY GOVERNMENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 20. — The Peruvian submarine constructed at the plant of the Electric Boat corporation at Groton has completed her trials and has been accepted by the Peruvian government. Another submarine for the Peruvians is nearing completion at the same plant. The vessel accepted is the R-2, her trials having been finished at Newport yesterday. The R-2 is now here and will remain till her sister ship is completed and is accepted by the Peruvian government.

The members of the State Firemen's association who have been guests of the New London department during two days, were entertained royally from the time they came to the city until they left last night for their homes. At the several engine stations there was royal good fellowship, music and feasting galore and a general good time. Men who date their membership in the department to a period 50 years back were in the line today and they were guests at the stations of the firemen later when old times were recalled and friendships renewed. They were "running with the machine" before many of the youngsters on the ropes today were born. A peculiarity of the procession today was that none of the old-time uniforms of the New London firemen were seen in the ranks. In the olden days it was a sight for the gods to witness the Nameaugs' blue shirts, the Niagaras' red ones, the Threes in red, too, and the members of the Allen Hook and Ladder company come down the street from their respective houses with the chief engineer and his assistants, coats, making uniforms that were impressive. All this display has gone now.

This city is not to fare as badly as anticipated by the changes that are to occur in the Coast Guard Academy. The cadets, "the makings of officers," are to be located at New Bedford, but the recruits are still to remain here and their number is to be added to until the limit of 900 in the service is reached. The class of cadets now at the fort will be augmented by a class of new youths soon and these will be trained at the new station. There are not accommodations for the cadets at the fort now. The recruits hereafter will stay three months longer than in the past. The coast guard has been a source of considerable revenue for this city, the wages of the sailors, the support of the ships and other expenses amounting to a very large sum.

Breed Theatre

Jackie Coogan appeared yesterday at the Breed theatre in his first production on his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract, and a well known local blind man has written this review for us. The most touching tribute to Jackie Coogan was offered yesterday at the Breed theatre when the sightless gentleman came out of the theatre with a smile on his lips. We questioned him how was it that he went into a picture theatre when he couldn't see the screen.

"I go to the theatre when Jackie Coogan comes to town because I love to hear the laughter of the little children."

So we went into the theatre also to hear the laughter of little children and to enjoy what that unfortunate man was obliged to forego—the sight of the tiny genius on the screen. And it's no wonder they laughed, because Jackie has suddenly turned comedian and in his new picture, "Old Clothes," he kep' the audience in hysterics.

The story of "Old Clothes" is by Willard Mack, who wrote three preceding Coogan stories. Max Davidson, Lillian Elliott, Joan Crawford, and Alan Forrest handle the supporting roles admirably. Eddie Cline is credited with the direction of "Old Clothes," his third consecutive Jackie Coogan production.

Egypt—land of Cleopatra and cigarettes—figures centrally in Corinne Griffith's latest starring picture, "Infatuation," which comes to the Breed theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. "Infatuation" is an adaptation by First National of "Caesar's Wife," W. Somerset Maugham's stage success. The motif of the play concerns the forced flirtation of a neglected wife and her eventual reclamation by her husband.

Supporting Miss Griffith are Percy Marmont, Malcolm MacGregor, Warner Oland, Leota Lorraine, Martha Mattox, Claire DuBrey and Clarissa Selwynne.

MANY PRIZE AWARDS FOR 1926 COUNTY FAIR

With the addition of the American Kennel Club Dog Show the 72nd annual New London County fair promises to be one of the biggest ever held by the society. In this additional feature, for which a separate charge of 25 cents is being asked by the club management, the prize awards for the 1926 fair run far heavier than in previous years.

Awards of cash for cattle amount to over $500; while in class II the awards will amount to more than $150. In class III awards figure more than $250. In class IV the cash prizes amount to about $250 while in the poultry class the number of awards cannot be figured, but will run into a considerable sum of money. The dog show is another feature and the prizes here, both regular and special make this an attractive entry. Other cash prizes in the various classes bring the total money awards into the thousands of dollars.

A feature for Labor day, which will appeal to the mothers, is the Better Baby contest. This contest, held under the supervision of Dr. Elizabeth Ingraham of the state department of health affords mothers the opportunity to have their children carefully examined. The prize awards include cups and also a bank account.

Boy Scouts miniature villages, farm and mercantile exhibits, special band concerts and many other attractions make up a program worthy of your support and give promise of plenty of amusement for every member of the family.

Broadway theater

Everyone will want to see J. G. Bachmann's new Preferred Picture, Lew Tyler's Wives, which opens Sunday night at the Broadway theater and was received with an enthusiasm that has been summoned by very few films of recent months. The public will remember that this is the successful story by Wallace Irwin which appeared a few seasons ago as a serial in Pictorial Review and then upon publication in book form, took its place at once among the best of the best sellers.

Likewise it is expertly enacted by a cast or unusual excellence headed by Frank Mayo, Ruth Clifford, Hedda Hopper, Helen Lee Worthing and Lew Brice.

Richard Talmadge, the stunt star supreme, sweeps like the sudden thunderstorm of a hot midsummer day through The Blue Streak, his latest comedy drama made for F. B. O., leaving the memory of a spectacle and of a refreshing atmosphere in its path. James Bell Smith has given the energetic and amazing Richard a splendid vehicle in the current production, which comes to the Broadway theater as the second feature for Sunday night only and the direction of Noel Smith keeps things continuously moving with whirlwind rapidity. The Blue Streak contains some of the best comedy of any of the Talmadge Productions; indeed some of the most amusing stuff that any picture ever had. This fact, combined with smashing action and a series of fights that are realistically staged, keep thrills and laughs continually alternating.

Strand Theater

The Blue Streak an infectious action picture with the strong flavor of burlesque that makes nearly all of Richard Talmadge's productions distinctive, comes to the Strand for a one day engagement Sunday night. This offering tops all of Mr. Talmadge's predecessors as the Woolworth building tops the famous old Tumbledown Shack of Athlone; and that's a rather large order. But this is had on the authority of none other than a press representative—than whom there is no more careful or conservative citizen in purveying truth and vital statistics to the public. James Bell Smith, who has been associated with most of the previous Talmadge successes, wrote both the original story and the continuity; and the yarn indeed proves indeed original. It gives plenty of opportunity to the star to show his supremacy as a stunt man and athlete; but more than that, it carries both conviction and comedy. Louise Lorraine, Henry Hebert, Charles Clary, and Victor Dillingham are those featured in the cast.

The elements of comedy and young romance have been pleasantly stressed in the development of Bob Custer's latest and breeziest Western vehicle The Ridin' Streak, slated for exhibition at the Strand theater on Sunday night only.

Action, too, and vigorous melodrama have not been ignored but it is the blithesome, carefree notes of comedy and romance that combine to make The Ridin' Streak one of the best of the Bob Custer attractions brought to this community in many a pallid moon.

In addition to the above two features a real funny comedy completes the bill.

Palace Theatre Nearing Completion

The work of transforming the Palace theatre into one of the most beautiful play houses in the country is nearly completed and everything will be ready for the grand opening on Sept. 2nd and when the doors are thrown open to the public the interior will present a revelation in theatre decoration. In addition to the artistic color scheme of the auditorium, handsome crystal chandeliers will hang from the ceiling to cast a brilliant radiance over the scene and the stage with its new curtains and settings and electric equipment leaves nothing to be desired; it is in fact a perfect play house in every detail and one in which every citizen of Norwich may well take pride.

Automobile dealers say that the small town is best car market.

MARKET FLUCTUATED

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The stock market alternated below hot and cold today as control of the price movement shifted from one speculative group to another. Prices pointed upward at the opening, fell back around noon when United States Steel common broke below 150, rallied in the early afternoon, turned heavy again around the end of the fourth hour and rebounded again at the close, with final quotations disclosing marked irregularity. Many of the popular industrials established their lowest levels of the week during the session.

Renewal of selling pressure was influenced largely by three factors: The report that steel mill operations this week had fallen below 80 per cent for the first time in several months; the announcement that several large operators who had been working for higher prices were selling for Europe within the next few days, and rumors questioning the solvency of a large financial institution outside the financial district. The buying, on the other hand, represented short covering by professional traders and fresh accumulation prompted by the speculative belief that the sharp reaction this week had sufficiently corrected the admittedly weakened technical position of the market following the recent rapid advance.

At their low prices of the day, such recent favorites as United States Steel common, American Smelting, Allied Chemical, United Cigar Stores and United States Industrial Alcohol were selling 7 to 10 points below their recently established high records, while General Motors, at 197 3-8, was nearly 30 points below the year's top, but it rallied above 200 at the close, being quoted ex-dividend 2 5-8 today. Case Threshing broke five points to 155 as against the recent high of 178.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported further improvement. Bank clearings this month have reached unprecedented levels. Purchasing for fall requirements is said to be in good volume and the crop outlook is regarded as satisfactory.

United States Steel comomn sold down to 148 1-2, but rebounded to 150, off 3-4 net. American Linseed broke from 46 1-4 to 40 and snapped back to 43, off 3 5-8 net. Mack Trucks closed fractionally higher at 131 5-8 after fluctuating nervously within a range of 3 points.

A sudden demand for Delaware and Hudson, which carried that issue up over Y points to 178 3-4, the highest price since 1912, overshadowed all other developments in the rail group. Chesapeake and Ohio, the strength of which featured yesterday's session, closed fractionally higher at 152 3-4.

Call money ruled unchanged at 4 1-2 per cent with funds again in plentiful supply. Time money and commercial paper rates also held steady.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm undertone. Demand sterling ruled steady around $4.85 1-2 but French francs were nearly five points higher around 2.86 1-2 cents. Japanese exchange touched the highest rate in four years at 48 3-16 cents, or within 2 cents of gold parity.

An advance of 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 cents a bushel in active wheat futures, based on unexpected strength in foreign markets and a large export demand, featured the commodity markets. Cotton closed practically unchanged, with trading being limited largely to evening up transactions, pending publication of the government report on Monday. Sugar and coffee prices were firm.

GEN. CONDYLIS OVERTHROWS THE PANGALOS GREEK GOV'T

Revolution Was Calm and Without Serious Incidents—The General Has Proclaimed the End of the "Pangalos Tyranny" and Issued to the People a Message, That the Revolution Was Justified—Dictator Pangalos Was Arrested While Taking a Vacation on the Island of Spetzae and Placed Aboard a Destroyer for Conveyance to Athens

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The dictatorship of General Theodorlus Pangalos has been overthrown in a quick and bloodless revolution headed by General Condylis, former minister of war. President Pangalos was taking a holiday at the time on the island of Spetzae.

The "Greek Mussolini" himself was arrested this morning and placed aboard the destroyer Pergamos for conveyance to Athens, but up to this evening nothing further has been heard of the Pergamos, and the suspicion developed that she might have sailed for some foreign port.

Another fast destroyer and seaplanes searched for the Pergamos throughout the day, while the battleship Kilkish guarded the Corinth canal.

One report had it that Pangalos tried to escape in an airplane, but was stopped by another new plane. Mme. Pangalos, who was with her husband, disappeared, although the revolutionists have not indicated that they are interested in her whereabouts.

The coup was engineered without disturbances in the early hours this morning, both army and navy rallying to the Condylis standard. General Condylis today was master of the situation, and complete calm was reported in all sections of the country. The general public in Athens exhibiting general satisfaction at the turn of events.

Messages from Spetzae stated that President Pangalos had been arrested on telegraphic orders from General Condylis and was being taken on the Pergamos to the capital over which he had ruled with an iron hand since he forcibly seized power a year ago. If he had not escaped, he, together with the members of the Eutaxias government, all of whom have been placed under arrest, will have to answer the alleged tyrannical misrule.

General Condylis announced that Admiral Coundouriotis, former provisional president of Greece, was the "real president," and had been invited to resume the presidency.

In his announcement Condylis promised free elections within eight months at the latest, in order to confer power upon the chosen representatives of the people." Thus it is his intention to organize a government of "national confidence."

All the political leaders and officers arrested under the Pangalos regime have already been set free. Proclamations have been posted in the city calling the population to celebrate its ident Pangalos. A commission will be

The machinery for the dramatic coup began to turn shortly after midnight, and so quickly did it operate that by eight o'clock this morning the streets of Athens had their usual appearance and there was little to indicate that a big revolution had been successfully carried out during the hours of darkness.

All the military establishments, the telegraphic offices and the government departments, including the palace of the council of the presidency, were taken over with a rapidity that gave evidence of how well General Condylis had laid his plans.

The general himself went to the war ministry and ordered the arrest of the war minister, General Tseroulis. The other ministers were taken into custody at their homes. An order was immediately despatched to the Spetzae garrison to arrest Pangolos, and shortly word was flashed back that the dictator was a prisoner and was being sent to Athens.

Within a short time messages began to pour in from the army and navy at distant points pledging enthusiastic support to the new regime. In a proclamation issued to the people, General Condylis said:

"My country's armed forces have abolished the Pangolis tyranny and entrusted to me the government of the country in order to assure that the liberties of the people are re-established and to apply the programme contained in the army and navy manifesto.

"Immediately after the arrival of Admiral Coundouriotis, the lawful president of the republic, I shall form a government of national confidence and I will communicate as soon as possible to the sovereign people a clear and detailed programme which I shall apply closely."

The army and navy manifesto declares that General Condylis has been entrusted with the application of the following programme: "To reinforce the national forces; to establish a healthy national currency, with strict application to the fiscal laws; to free the people from unbearable taxes on articles of primary necessity; to establish popular liberty; to entrust the presidency of the republic to Admiral Coundouriotis, and to proceed in eight months at the latest to free elections in order to confide the power to the chosen representatives of the people."

General Condylis announced that penal proceedings would be taken against all the agencies responsible for the preceding regime, including President Pangalos. A commission will be created to fix responsibility for the conduct of the Pangalos administration.

The downfall of Pangalos was looked for by close political observers, as growing dissatisfaction had been expressed with his ambitious dictatorship. Those who knew him well say that his outstanding characteristics are absolute fearless for his personal safety and his "limitless nerve."

The latter trait was well demonstrated by the manner in which he is said to have achieved his own coup a year ago. It is recalled that with a few followers he seized the main telegraph office in Athens and compelled the operators to send messages throughout the country to the effect that he had headed a successful revolution which had overthrown the government. The messages called on the military and naval units for support. The bewildered recipients of the messages not knowing the true state of affairs, replied with their adherence.

Thereupon Pangalos proceeded to the members of the government, showed them the messages from the army and navy and demanded that the government abdicate in the face of this country wide manifestation.

The government, equally bewildered, retired, and Pangalos was dictator.

The coup d'etat engineered by General Condylis had been in preparation for some time past. About a month ago General Pangalos caused the arrest of three former premiers—Kafandaris, Papanastasion and Michalakopoulos on charges of plots and subversive movements. The Greek dictator's life was threatened early this month.

At the time of the arrest of the premiers the police were reported to be searching for General Condylis.

King George was ordered to leave Greece in December 1923, owing to monarchical difficulties, and the national assembly declared Greece a republic in March 1924, ending the dynasty. Admiral Coundouriotis before assuming the presidency at that time, was regent during the forced absence of King Constantine.

General Condylis is a republican. He came into the public eye in January 1924 when he announced his opposition to the proposed return of King George. He held the post of minister of interior and later was minister of war.

Pangalos carried out his military coup in June 1925 and assumed the premiership. He declared himself virtual dictator a few months later and subsequently was elected president.

PANGALOS WAS MAKING AN EFFORT TO ESCAPE

ATHENS, Aug. 23—(AP)—President Pangalos aboard the destroyer Pergamos left Spetzae about noon. After the destroyer departed it became evident that Pangalos was making an endeavor to escape, but the Pergamos had insufficient fuel to reach a foreign port, and cruised about in the narrow straits between the Island of Hydra and the mainland.

The warships Kilkis and Leon were ordered to pursue her. They fired blank shots, while hydro-airplanes bombed her. The Pergamos then steamed at full speed to the south in an attempt to join the squadron steaming toward the Aegean, hoping to receive support. But the Kilkis and Leon have been instructed to sink her if she persisted in refusing to surrender.

Admiral Coundouriotis, who is spending a vacation on the island of Hydra, has announced his willingness to take over the presidency again. All the newspapers suspended by Pangalos are reappearing.

UNTERMYER CALLS ANTI-TRUST POLICY A "JOKE"

YONKERS, N. Y., Aug. 22—(AP)—The administration's anti-trust policy was characterized as a "joke" in a statement issued today by Samuel Untermyer, noted lawyer.

"The claim that the administration is, in the words of a semi-official statement, 'protecting open competition and vigorously enforcing the anti-trust laws,' is the most colossal and cynical piece of temerity and humbug ever concocted," Mr. Untermyer declared.

His statement was elicited by reports from the summer white house at Paul Smith's, N. Y., that the president felt that the record of the department of justice in enforcing the anti-trust laws during the past 13 months was sufficient defense against the attack of Senator Borah that the administration was ignoring big trusts and displaying friendliness to Wall street.

"The laws are being openly flouted in every direction," Mr. Untermyer asserted. "They are intended as criminal statutes and experience has shown that when there is an honest effort to enforce them they are readily enforcible as such by a lawyer of average capacity who has the will to do so."

Mr. Untermyer ridiculed the reported intention of the president to confer with Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric company, concerning strengthening of the anti-trust laws. He declared that the General Electric not only is "one of the largest Morgan trusts," but "has been and is one of the most consistent and conspicuous offenders against the anti-trust laws.

"In a number of the cases," he continued, "the action of the administration consisted of delivering the offender from the disabilities and the effect of the judgments that had been placed upon them by the hard fought successes of the previous administrations. The case of the New York, New Haven road, another Morgan-controlled concern, is one of these. The decree against the New Haven road had been entered in October, 1914. On November 25, 1925, with the consent of the present attorney general that decree was so modified so as practically to destroy all that had been gained as the result of many years of litigation."

SIX MORE DORIES WASHED ASHORE ON SABLE ISLAND

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 22—(AP)—Six more dories have been washed ashore on Sable Island, according to radio advices to S. H. Harvey, local agent of the Marine and Fisheries department. Agent Harvey said tonight that he had been in touch with La Havre in an effort to identify one of the dories, which was marked "Julia." The name has no significance here, but it was through that the boat might have been attached to some Gloucester vessel.

The discovery, from day to day, of dories, smashed gear and other wreckage on the island is all that remains to tell the story of what is believed to have been one of the worst disasters in the history of the Nova Scotia fishing industry. A terrific gale struck the fleet on August 7 and since that date nothing has been heard from the Lunenberg schooner Sylvia Mosher or the La Have schooner Sadie Knickle, carrying a total of 17 men.

DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT, PRESIDENT EMERITUS OF HARVARD, DEAD

NORTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Aug. 22—(AP)—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, died at his summer home here today. He was 92 years of age.

Dr. Eliot had been in delicate health since he came here early in the summer and had been confined to the house of late. He had spent his summers at Northeast Harbor since the early eighties. The end came peacefully late today.

Funeral services will be held in the Union church here, on Tuesday at noon, and services will be held also in Appleton chapel at Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass., on Wednesday.

Dr. Eliot's son, Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, of Cambridge, Mass., also has his summer residence here, and was present at the end.

Dr. Eliot was president of Harvard for forty years, from 1869 to 1909. A notable event in his career after his retirement as an active educator was the celebration of his 90th birthday when he received the felicitations and tributes of educators and Harvard men from all parts of the world.

Among educators Dr. Eliot, for forty years president of Harvard university and president emeritus, until his death, held a world-wide reputation as a grand old man of their profession, but his prominence extended so far beyond educational circles that he was often spoken of here and abroad as "America's first citizen." He was identified with practically every economic or social question brought forward in the past thirty years, writing or speaking so fearlessly that he was the center of as many storms of controversy and violent personal attacks as though he held public office.

Chosen to the presidency at Harvard in his 35th year, he was the youngest college president in the country. He had, when he resigned in his 75th year, held the office longer than the combined terms of his five predecessors—Hill, Felton, Walker, Sparks and Everett.

He was the son of Samuel A. Eliot of Cambridge, Mass., who was treasurer of Harvard. He was born in Boston, March 20, 1834, and graduated from Harvard in 1853. In college he stood among the first in his class, and was an oarsmen in the varsity crew in the days when college crews rowed in heavy cedar barges beautifully fitted up with cushions. His predilection was for chemistry and mathematics, and he was so successful in the former that at the age of 24 he became a professor of chemistry at Harvard, in preference to accepting $5,000 a year as chemist for a manufacturing concern in Lowell. He was rapidly advanced until the overseers offered him the highest chair in the institution.

As president, the young Eliot set afoot so many reforms that Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes exclaimed: "He is turning the university over like a flapjack."

Dr. Eliot was first married in 1869 to Ellen Derby Peabody. His second wife was Grace Mellen Hopkins, to whom he was married in 1877.

FIELD DAY OF THE INT'N LABOR UNION OF CONN.

HARTFORD, Aug. 22.—United support of all working people of the cause of labor was urged by several speakers at the International labor union of Connecticut field day and picnic held here today. More than 2,000 persons representing 37 foreign labor unions in all parts of the state, were present at the picnic. Sporting events and the singing of foreign folk songs were other features of the afternoon's programme.

Anthony Bimba, lithuanian editor, who was arrested in Brockton, Mass., last March for the violation of an old Puritan blue law, was present at the picnic and gave a speech in Lithuanian in which, according to an interpreter, he urged his countrymen to support the ticket which the labor party intends to nominate for the fall elections in Connecticut.

William T. Theur, president of the local machinists' union, who has issued the call for the state convention of the labor party will be here next Sunday, gave a brief speech in which he invited each of the unions represented at the picnic to send delegates to the convention.

Many Fatal Accidents During the Week-end

Eight Killed in Freight Train Derailment — Several Persons Met Death in Automobile Accidents.

WINANET, Ills., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Grinding down Buda hill at a mile a minute, an east-bound fast freight train of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy piled up in the heart of the town at 10:30 o'clock this morning, killing eight persons and injuring four others.

A broken arch bar connecting the trucks of a car is believed to have caused the wreck. Eighteen cars carrying perishable freight, were thrown from the tracks in front of the depot and overturned.

The men killed and injured were tramps riding in one car. The four taken to a hospital were said to be near death.

More than 1,200 feet of double track was ripped up. None of the men had been identified tonight.

NEW BRITAIN, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Patrick Mazza, 28, of Lorraine street, was killed; Charles Rocci, of Kensington, was seriously hurt, and Frank Kasprow, of Allen street, received cuts and bruises in an automobile accident on New Britain-Berlin highway in the town of Berlin today.

Mazza, who was employed by the Stanley Brea Coal company, was driving a coupe owned by the company and the other two men were passengers. The traffic was heavy and when Mazza lost control of the car it ran into a tree and turned over into a ditch.

Mazza suffered a compound fracture of the skull and died an hour after the accident. Rocci had had cuts about the head and face, body bruises and possible internal injuries.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Three persons were instantly killed early today in an automobile collision on the White House park near Cologne. They were:

Peggy Lucille Roome, 21, an aviatrix of Camden, N. J.; Mrs. May Loeleger, 26, Fairview, N. J., and T. Raymond Richmond, 45, of Collingswood, N. J.

The machine in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a stalled truck.

State police charge that the truck was without rear lights and the driver, Rodney Cornelius, of Philadelphia, was held under $5,000 bail on a charge of manslaughter.

CHILD KILLED WHEN LIGHT SEDAN WAS HIT BY A BUS

WATERBURY, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Christina Echkart, 11, of Steelton, Pa., was almost instantly killed when the light sedan in which she was riding, and driven by her brother, was hit by a New Britain bus driven by John Wynne, of West Main street, New Britain. The accident occurred near the motorcycle hill climb on the Thomaston road a few minutes after 1 o'clock today.

Anthony Echkart, 20, of Steelton, Pa., explained that when the car ahead of him stopped suddenly, he applied the brakes of his machine, turning slightly toward the right. The car skidded on the wet pavement, he said, swinging completely around and into the path of the bus approaching in the opposite direction.

Echkart was cut and bruised slightly about the head. His sister, Christina, riding in the front seat with him, was killed when the bus struck the right hand side of the machine, crushing it.

FAILURE TO MAKE SHARP CURVE CAUSED DEATH

BRANFORD, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Failure to make a sharp curve in the eastern part of Branford resulted in the death of one autoist and the inpury of two others this morning.

Joseph Webber, of East Haven, a passenger in the car, was fatally injured, dying in Grace hospital in New Haven a short time after the accident. The injured were Edward Whalen of East Haven, the driver of the car and Joseph Burton, also of East Haven. The machine crashed through a fence at the curve and traveled 50 feet before it was brought to a stop. The car was wrecked.

YALE JUNIOR FATALLY BURNED IN MILFORD GARAGE

MILFORD, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Working as a mechanic in a garage here to earn money to take him through another year at Yale, Henry Rappaport, 24, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., received burns yesterday which resulted in his death in Milford hospital today.

Rappaport, a junior at Yale, was using a gasoline spraying machine used to clean motors at the Selleck and Fox garage and it is believed that the nozzle of the apparatus struck an electric wire. The spark caused an explosion, the flames striking the young man in the face. As he jumped back, a two-gallon can of gasoline was overturned and soon Rappaport was ablaze from head to feet.

He rushed around the garage to where other workmen were employed and they tore the burning garments from him. It is believed, however, that he inhaled the flames. He was taken to Milford hospital, and died this morning.

Previously as a mechanic, Rappaport had worked his way through Milford preparatory school, and had been coming here week ends and during the summers since he entered Yale.

18 Countries Accept Invitation to Geneva

To Discuss the American Reservations to the Permanent Court of International Justice.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 22—(AP)—Eighteen countries have to date accepted the invitation of the council of the League of Nations to attend at Geneva September 1 a conference to discuss the American reservations to the permanent court of international justice.

This conference has caused world wide interest because of the new importance the court would asume with the United States and adherent and because the Washington government has refused to participate in the meeting.

The forthcoming conference is not a league affair, although summoned by the council. It will be a gathering of representatives of states which have signed the world court protocol, meeting as such and not in their capacity as membears of the league.

The United States senate has voted to adhere to the world court, but only under certain reservations and understandings, and membership does not become effective until al other members of the tribunal have accepted the American reservations.

Great Britain led the move to get the league council to convoke a conference. Sir Austen Chamberlain maintaining this was the quickest way of getting results on the American conditions.

It was generally believed at the time that Mr. Chamberlain had acted after "sounding" Secretary Kellogg because league officials had constantly declared that the council would adopt a "hands off" policy in connection with the problem of the United States joining the court. But there has never been any confirmation of this idea, and it is confirmation of this idea, and it is acted on his own initiative and responsibility.

At all events, the United States promptly announced she would not accept the invitation to send delegates to the conference, making it clear that the reservations stood on their own foundation and that the United States had nothing to explain. It was specified also that Washington prefered to proceed by a separate exchange of notes with the powers, instead of handling the question collectively.

Of the five American reservations, the last, that dealing with the court's power to give advisory opinions, is the one which is expected to cause most trouble. It is not yet clear that all the powers coming to Geneva will accept this condition. It proves in particular, that the world court shall not, without the consent of the United States, entertain any reques for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest.

Since 1922 the international court has responded to twelve requests of the league council for advisory opinions and it is pointed out in Geneva that this activity of the court has been helpful in maintaining world peace.

VALENTINO'S CONDITION PRONOUNCED CRITICAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino was fighting a stiffer battle for his life in Polyclinic hospital tonight than any make-believe fight he had ever waged in film movies.

His physicians pronounced his condition "very serious" but still declared he had "a fighting chance."

His temperature was 104, his pulse 120 and respiration 20—the most alarming figures since he underwent an operation a week ago for appendicitis and gastric ulcer.

The three attending physicians who had sat by his bedside all day called in another tonight and also frequently consulted with the head physician of the hospital. The nursing staff was doubled.

Joseph Schenck, head of United Artists, was admitted to Valentino's room for the first time, and reported afterwards that the movie star was conscious and did not realize the seriousness of his condition.

Saline injections were resumed today for the first time since the period immediately after the operation. The person was given no food, as the small portions of gruel and broth given him last week had disagreed with him.

MEX. EPISCOPATE HOPES TO RESUME CHURCH SERVICES

Formal Statement Issued by the Catholic Episcopate Followed a Conference With President Calles—Principal Obstacle to the Religious Controversy Was Removed When President Calles Asserted That Registration of Priests Was Required Only for Administrative Purposes.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Mexico's bitter religious controversy, which has sorely strained the business interests of the country, set the government and Roman Catholic churches in strongly opposing positions and concentrated the anxious attention of the world on this republic, appears to be in a fair way to amicable adjustment through personal conferences between President Calles and the prelates. It is confidently hoped by the episcopate that an agreement will be reached unless unforeseen obstacles develop.

President Calles late last night cordially received two high dignitaries of the church, The Most Rev. Leopoldo Ruiz y Florez, archbishop of Michoacan, and Bishop Diaz of Tbasco, at the presidential palace, and a statement issued by the episcopate after the conference described it as "truly satisfactory."

The president informed the prelates that registration of the priests as required by the new regulations was only for administrative purposes and that the government did not intend to interefere on the questions of dogma or religion. The episcopate accepted his declaration and announced that as soon as the churches had fulfilled these legal requirements there would be no further objection to renewing church services.

In the meantime the church will continue its efforts for constitutional amendment of the religious clauses through the medium of congress.

Thus today, three weeks after the withdrawal of the priests from the churches, in protests against the regulations—three weeks in which business reached a low ebb not equalled except at the worst periods of actual revolution, three weeks of utmost anxiety and uncertainty—Mexico is once more breathing freely and hope has been renewed, by reason of the statement issued by the episcopate.

In this pronouncement, the episcopate denies enmity toward the authorities, or that it is endeavoring to hinder the government's action and seeking foreign influences to bring about intervention to settle the religious question.

"The interview with the president," says the statement, "was truly satisfactory, the different phases of the religious situation were made clear by the exchange of impressions. The episcopate's purpose to make use of all legal resources toward attaining constitutional amendment of the articles and precepts which affect our creed was reiterated.

"The president told us that he had already declared through the press that the registration demanded of priests in the charge of the churches had no other purposes than those purely administrative and that the government had no intention of mixing in matters relating to dogma or religion.

"With this statement we expect that, once the procedures demanded of is through the church are fulfilled, there will be no obstacle to the resumption of religious services in the churches, while we attain our ultimate end of recovering liberty, which we considered injured through the various legal precepts."

A profound conviction prevails among the public that it is now merely a question of adjusting details and that abolition of the boycotts, resumption of church services and return to the normal religious and economic life of the nation will come soon, awaiting only the formal orders of the authorities. This conviction is based on the belief in the first place that President Calles and the prelates would never have met face to face with such amiability unless previous assurances had been given that would make an agreement possible.

In the second place, it is contended that the episcopate would never have made the formal pronouncement that the interview was "truly satisfactory" and that services would be resumed as soon as the legal requirements were met unless in fact it was ready to issue formal orders to that end.

The Catholics, merchants and manufacturers, facing financial ruin, urged their plight upon the church authorities; they favored a compromise in order to prevent further losses through the boycott. Financiers pointed out to the government that the situation was menacing Mexican credit abroad, and in the meantime the Mexican people were in many ways giving evidence, both spiritual and material, of the misery and unhappiness of the situation.

Thus the seriousness of the situation was presented to both government and church, and is believed to have influenced in large extent the compromise that seems to have been agreed to.

K. OF C. HAS NOT DEMANDED U. S. INTERVENTION IN MEXICO

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Knights of Columbus are not demanding governmental intervention by the United States in Mexico as a result of the church controversy in that country, Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty announced today in a statement given out at the Knights of Columbus home office here.

Stating that the attitude of the Knights of Columbus with regard to the Mexican situation, as expressed in the resolution adopted by the supreme council at Philadelphia on August 5, had been misinterpreted, Mr. Flaherty said that "the Knights of Columbus believe that the situation in Mexico should be brought forcibly to the attention of the American people and our government and a vigorous protest made against its continuance. We do not undertake to determine what steps should be taken by oud government to remedy this situation."

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE DROVE IN RAIN

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Cold, rainy weather today did not keep the president and Mrs. Coolidge from driving fifteen miles across the misty mountains to morning service at the first Presbyterian church at Saranac lake. They were accompanied by their son John and the white house guests Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns.

Dr. Newell said he recalled times in the history of the United States when he had been "proud we weren't cowards," and he expressed a petition that "God may lead this great people out into heroic deeds in the days to come."

During the service a shower came up, breaking just after the chief executive left the church. Returning to White Pine camp in the rain Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge remained in seclusion with their guests the rest of the day, which was marked by unsettled weather.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and the seven members of the federation's executive council are to motor here tomorrow from Plattsburgh to have luncheon at White Pine camp. They will return to Plattsburgh after their engagement with the president.

NO BODY FOUND IN HIS WELL, MARSALA HOPES TO FIND WATER

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 23—Frank Marsala had made known his plans to continue the digging of the well, on his premises, from which refill dirt and rock was removed during the past week by men under direction of County Detective William E. Jackson, who had received persistent information that the body of Joseph Raitano was probably at the bottom of the pit. Raitano disappeared from the city February 28, 1926, and many of his friends insisted that the man had met with foul play and his body was secreted at the bottom of the well. Marsala stated that he had dug the well but upon striking a ledge had refilled it. There was no evidence, however, that any member of the Marsala family was under suspicion of being connected with the alleged foul play. Upon hearing the rumors concerning the possibility of the well containing a body, the heads of the Marsala family personally called on Detective Jackson to relay the information to him and they invited the digging up of the well. The well has been re-dug to a depth of twenty-five feet. The expense of the state now comes to an end and Marsala plans to blast through the ledge until a sufficient water supply is reached. Thomas Raitano was one of the workmen who helped to redig the well, but he is said not to have held any suspicion against the Marsalas.

JEALOUS CAT CAME BACK AFTER A YEAR'S ABSENCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 23—"And the cat came back," was repeated with conviction in the town building yesterday morning when "Fluffy," a Chinese Angora cat and the pet of the officials holding quarters in the building, returned after a year's absence. About one year ago "Fluffy" became the proud mother of two rollicking kittens, "Moody" and "Sankey." The kittens soon won their way into the hearts of the officials and the mother's pride seemed to turn to jealousy. One sunny afternoon while the feline family were in Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton's office and the kittens were receiving all the petting and attention which had been hers, the mother cat ran from the building and was not seen again until Saturday forenoon. Welcomed back with a bowl of milk and a good back-scratching, "Fluffy" decided to remain awhile and the little family is now happily reunited.

Figures made public Saturday by Exchange Manager John C. Frazier of the Southern New England Telephone company show that there was an increase of 36 telephones here during the past seven months. July 31, last, there were 2,315 telephones in service in the city and there is every indication that in 1926 the city will by far exceed its telephone growth over 1925. The telephone figures, assumed as a reliable barometer of business in the community indicate that Willimantic is in a healthy condition and enjoying its share of growth along with other towns in the S. N. E. T. Co. territory. In order to accommodate the growth of recent years it has been necessary for the company to expend large sums in making enlargements to the central office equipment, including the building and outside plant extensions.

Joseph Calderado of Mansfield avenue, this city, was placed under arrest by Sergeant Russell I. Harmon of the Stafford Springs barracks Saturday night on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace, after the young man had engaged in a fist fight with a Manchester young man. Delia Langlois, 24, of Hartford, formerly of this city, was charged with non-support of her minor child, with the town of Windham as complainant in the case, at the session of police court Saturday morning. The child had been left with the grandmother in this city, the mother at that time not being in a position to support the infant. The young woman was brought back to this city Friday night by Chief of Police Grady on a warrant made out in behalf of the selectmen of the town. The mother informed the court that she now had steady work in Hartford and she could furnish her child a home in Hartford with former residents of this city. She was placed on probation, under the care of the Hartford Welfare bureau and ordered to pay the cost of the child's board here.

CAMP MEETING CLOSING DAYS CROWDED WITH ACTIVITIES

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, Aug. 22—Dr. Spaulding was in charge of the Saturday morning watch service and presented his closing message of the week on "Prayer." His emphasis was upon the value of prayer in the life of the one who prays.

The closing day for all the morning periods showed a good attendance for each. Miss Mabel M. Pollard, who has so ably superintended the church school period throughout the week putting on a new speaker each day, was herself the speaker Saturday, her subject being "The Task of Administration."

Dr. Gornall dealt with the problems which confront missionary leaders. He was very dramatic and depicted the several classes of people who are involved, in portraits which are life size. God produces the men who are needed through the process of strain and stress and struggle. He viewed the hardest tasks for Christ as being in the United States.

Dr. Frick delivered an address on "Aspiration and Its Spiritualization." He used the story of blind Bartimens as found in Mark 10:46-52 as the basis of his discourse and emphasized the important part played by the will in the realization of a desire. A young man consulted an eminent psychologist with the difficult question "Tell me how I can get rich." After questioning the young man as to his activities during the preceding five years, the expert said, "Your answers show that you do not want to get rich sufficiently! They show that your great effort at every point in life is to have 'fun' and your riches without honest effort in that direction!" This principle, the speaker aimed to show, is a law which works also in the spiritual realm. When a man wants something supremely as did blind Bartimens he will lay hold on the powers which can produce it and, paying the price, he will win.

Dr. Rees' illustrated his talk by a continuous reference to scripture passages which were found and read by different members of the group, each being asked to bring a Bible or copy of the New Testament to the class. Dr. Rees asked "How many of you want a revival of religion in your church?" and then outlined the way to bring it to pass.

The service at 2 p. m. was held in the outdoor auditorium. Following the song service, the scripture lesson was read by the Rev. N. B. Burton of Putnam and prayer was offered by Rev. Clinton E. Bromley, of Brockton, Mass. During the receiving of the offering, there was a violin solo Schubert's Ave Maria by Miss Roberta Bitgood of New London which was followed by a vocal solo by Miss Cora Smith, of Bridgeport, "Angel's Serenade," (Bruga). She was accompanied by Mr. Pearce at the piano and by Misses Mary Arnold and Roberta Bitgood with violins.

"The Battle Hymn of the Republic" was sung.

Dr. Gornall was the speaker. District Superintendent Center in introducing him, said "This is his last message for this year," intimating that he would be likely to come again next year. His eloquent and informing address dealt with two of the great problems of missionary effort in the United States. He said the Methodist Episcopal church is a wonderful organization, though he did not want to brag about that. He said that we were organized to cope with these problems and deserved the support which he believed would come when the people fully understood what is being done. He spoke of the problems of work for the Japanese and Chinese, there are 150,000 Japanese and 67,000 Chinese in this country. In 22 centers we have native Japanese preachers, each doing fruitful work.

Concerning the negro, he said, there are 12 millions of them in this country. They need both education and Christianity and should not have one without the other. In the 19 institutions of learning which our church is conducting for them in all the graduates there is no instance of any who have had a criminal record. He allowed that there are bad negroes as well as good, but, as a whole, they want what the mass of them have never had, just a fair chance. By a large rising vote the audience requested him to return next year and speak more on these subjects, especially to tell about the Mountain Whites, about which he had been previously asked to speak, but which time did not allow this year.

The Doxology was sung and Dr. Gornall pronounced the benediction.

A photograph was taken of the Camp meeting group under the big pine tree at the entrance, after the afternoon service.

DANIELSON, Aug. 22.—Frank Baker, Merrill Pratt and Byron Parker, al of Brooklyn, were brought before Justice of the Peace Frank E. Bedard in Brooklyn court at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and each was fined $75 and costs and given 30 days in jail. The three accused were charged with the marking of private property, advertising on the state highway and marking the state highway. The biggest crowd to witness a trial in the Brooklyn court in a long time filled the courtroom. Lawyer Torrey of Putnam, representing the accused youths, entered a demurrer, which Justice Bedard overruled. The young men refused to enter a plea, so the court proceeded to fined them guilty. Justice Bedard fixed the sentences at $25 and 30 days in jail for marking upon private property, $25 for advertising on the state highway and $25 for marking on the state highway, with the costs of the court. The youths took an appeal to superior court which meets in Willimantic in September. They were released on $500 bonds which they furnished. Samuel Boyd was assisted as prosecutor by Attorney Louis Wolsard of Danielson.

Many enjoyed the added attraction at the Orpheum theatre Friday and Saturday when the Black Phantom appeared there is reality. The Black Phantom is a full grown purebred black German police dog which has been brought over here from Germany by his owner to enter moving picture making. The demonstration proved how faithful the dog is to its master, who claims that this is a characteristic of any police hound.

Samuel Boyd and family and Miss Gladys Cogke were visitirs at West Point recently. Mr. Boyd's son, Harry Boyd, is a student at the United States military academy.

Mrs. Donald Knoepfel with her sons, Donald and Daniel, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Gordon J. Gale, this week.

Francis D. Robideau is touring Canada with friends.

A light truck was damaged on the Broklyn road Friday when the rear end dropped out and something bounded up punching the gasoline tank. The driver was unable to stop before the complete housing had droped out and had traveled a considerable distance. The car was repaired and removed in a short time.

Connecticut Mills lost a baseball game to Woonsocket here Sunday, 16 to 6. This was a return game, the local team having come to Woonsocket winning 7 to 6 last week.

As the twilight league season draws to a close the race gets keener and intercsting and the fans are looking forward to some upsets by the lower teams as they meet the tied leaders leading Buddies and Naildrivers. This week's schedule brings the Paco and Kilowatts together Tuesday night, Wednesday the Connecticut Mills play the Buddies, this contest being played at Connecticut Mills and Thursday the Naildrivers meet the Cleavers.

PUTNAM

SALE OF TEXTILE MILLS NOT YET AN ASSURED FACT

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 22.—The statement that the Paco company of Danielson has bought the textile mills at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville in the town of Killingly and that they would close their branch plant in Putnam was published without authority as far as the local situation is concerned. William H. Brown of Boston, treasurer of the company said that nothing definite had been determined about the Powdrell mill in this city.

For some months past there has been a rumor that the Powdrell and Alexander company, allied with the Paco Manufacturing company of Danielson was negotiating for the purchase of mills in the village of Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville, in the town of Killingly. Mr. Brown said that this was true, and that negotiations are still under way, but that the prospective deal has not been consummated. It is assumed, however, that in the event that the deal is made for the purchase of the three mills, Putnam will lose the industry.

The loss to Putnam will affect about 150 employes, but the circulation of the weekly payroll will not be a total loss to Putnam, as this city is the natural trading center for the three villages in which the three mills in question are located. If the deal is carried through it will mean many more hands employed, and Putnam will directly benefit by the money paid in wages to the increased number of wage earners.

The Powdrell and Alexander company manufactures cotton yarns and for some time the plant was run until 10 o'clock at night. The night schedule however, was discontinued several weeks ago.

TWO RECENT MARRIAGES INTEREST LOCAL PEOPLE

Mrs. Lempi S. Peckham of Cambridge, Mass. formerly of Putnam, and William C. van der Laan of Miami, Florida, formerly of Pomfret, were married recently at the First Congregational church in Cambridge. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Hubbard of the church in the presence of a few friends. After a dinner at the Copley Plaza hotel in Boston, Mr. and Mrs. van der Laan left for a short wedding trip. About the first of September they will leave for their future home in Miami, where Mr. van der Laan is a member of a landscape gardening firm which is doing work at Miami Beach.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Van der Laan are well known in Putnam and Pomfret. Mr. Van der Laan formerly conducted the Mashmoquet Inn at Pomfret which was closed after the death of his first wife, who was Miss Louise Grosvenor, daughter of Mrs. Grosvenor and the late Charles W. Grosvenor. Mrs. Van der Laan married in 1917 Clarence W. Peckham, of Woodstock who died a few months later while in service at Camp Devens. She has daughter, Sandra Peckham.

Announcement has just been received here of the marriage at Clearwater, Florida of Henry H. Davenport, formerly of Pomfret and Mrs. Cora Bates, widow of Col. G. D. Bates, a well known former business man.

Mr. Davenport, whose wife died a few months ago, was one of the most prominent citizens of Pomfret, active in all political and civic movements. For a number of years prior to 1923, he was superintendent of state highways for Windham county. After retiring from this office went to Florida where he dealt extensively in real estate.

Mrs. Davenport was Miss Cora Johnson of this city. Col. Bates died a few years after their marriage and she later married a man named Rocket from whom she was divorced in a year. For the past twelve years she has lived in Florida, but had made frequent visits to her old home here.

Russell Phillips, eight year old son of George C. Phillips, a local taxidriver has a propensity for walking in his sleep. About three weeks ago he fell from the window of his room and landed in the yard ten feet below.

His father heard the commotion and after bringing the boy back into the house a doctor was called, but the child was apparently uninjured. Yesterday he complained of a pain in his wrist and he was taken to the Day Kimball hospital where an X-Ray picture showed that the bone was broken.

The boy said that the dream which caused the accident had been about his chasing a cat that he owned. Often the boy's pet had entered second story rooms by climbing up the lattice and leaping in through the window, so leaving his bed the boy walked in his sleep in the direction where his instinct told him the window was located. Upon reaching the window he did not stop but dived through it to the ground.

Leonelle Laroque of South Main street, a carpenter employed by Emil Benoif, a local contractor, fell from a ten foot staging in Attawaugan Friday afternoon and broke both bones in the right leg. He was working on a house owned by Mr. Bishop. A plank of the staging slipped and caused the accident.

Luther M. Keith of this city has resigned as a director of the Woodstock Agricultural Society. He has served the organization for a number of years and was president of the society in 1921.

The funeral of Herbert E. Grosvenor were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Grosvenor, at Pomfret. The services were conducted by Rev. John M. Walker of Philadelphia and burial was in the Pomfret cemetery.

Miss Grace Bartlett of Providence is the guest of Mrs. N. B. Burton at the Methodist parsonage, on Grove street.

Mrs. Agnes Wood is spending a week with Mrs. Charlotte May at Woodstock.

Alphonse Dumas and Phileas Cloutier attended the state firemen's convention at New London on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Keefe and children, Doris and Edward spent the week end with relatives at Northampton, Mass.

Frank Bernier is the guest of Walter Hughes at Manchester, N. H.

Mrs. Edward McKenna and children of Lowell, Mass., are guests of Mrs McKenna's mother, Mrs. Hector Duvert.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hill Moss have moved from Fremont street to one of the new Spencer bungalows, on Woodstock avenue.

Mrs. Timothy Kelleher and children of Hartford are visiting Mrs. Kelleher's mother, Mrs. Martha Griffin of Pomfret street.

Mrs. Alvin Lachance and two sons of Van der Nort street have returned from a visit of several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. George Lachance, at Hartford.

Miss Helen Morse of North Market street has returned after two weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hurlbut, at their cottage on Webster lake.

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Bevan of Hartford have been guests of Miss Elizabeth Child. While here they attended the Child reunion at Woodstock.

THOMAS HUGHES' CONDITION WAS GRAVE SUNDAY NIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Lawrence Hughes, 30, of Webster, was instantly killed and Thomas Hughes, 38, his cousin also of Webster, had his skull fractured, when the automobile which in the latter was driving struck another car, at Attawaugan, this morning and overturned. On the back seat was a third Webster man, Stanley Kulbacki, who was not injured. The car that was struck was parked and had no one in it. Thomas Hughes is at the Day Kimball hospital in this city and has been unconscious since the accident, his condition being grave. The three men left Webster at 6 o'clock this morning, planning to attend a christening in this city, Attawaugan is several miles off the road between the two cities and the reason for their being in this village is not known. Dr. George Burroughs of Danielson and Dr. S. B. Overlook of Pomfret were called and ordered the injured man sent to the hospital here. A coroner's inquest will be held in the morning.

WESTERLY, Aug. 22.—Thomas Coates, 52, of Bowling Lane, Bradford, this afternoon sustained a fracture of the left femur, six inches below the hip, while engaged in an athletic contest at the annual outing and clambake of the Pawcatuck Working Men's club at Barnes Point, Brightman's pond. About 2 o'clock Coates, weighing 220 pouns, started on a hop, skip and jump, when his foot twisted on a small piece of wood and he fell heavily on his leg. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and the injured man was removed to the Westerly hospital.

(Special to the Bulletin)

The high esteem in which he was held and the sympathy for his son, William, who has cared so devotedly for his father, and for the family who live in other places, was expressed in the unusually large attendance. RIVERVIEW WINS EASY GAME FROM ITS TRADITIONAL RIVAL, THE SUB BASE

The Riverview club, although playing with a make-shift infield, had little difficulty in downing the Sub. Base 9 to 2, in the second game of the series played at the State hospital diamond on Saturday afternoon. Injuries took a heavy toll of the Riverview players during the past week forcing out Nap Liberty with an abcess under his left arm, Mondi Normandin with a deep spike wound in his leg and Joe Belair with a split finger. These injuries forced Manager Zemke to go out and round up a team for the game.

Frank Gley of the J. B. Martin club was brought in to play third while Joe Hamil was taken from second and put in Belair's place behind the bat. Kid DeCelles of the J. B. Martin team was put in at short in place of Normandin and Joe Barry took Hamil's place at second. With this combination that had never worked together before Riverview went in and played the Base off their feet.

Piling up four runs in the first inning Riverview sewed up the game in this inning although they added five more runs during the game. Dinty Moore first man up was passed and then stole second. This base stealing has become a habit with Dinty of late. DeCelles sacrificed and Dinty went to third. Mills doubled scoring Moore. Farrell popped out but Hamil doubled scoring Mills. Gley was safe on McCann's error and Berry doubled scoring Hamil and Gley. Allard retired the side by flying out.

Tony West, big southpaw hurler for Riverview, hit the first ball pitched to him in the second inning to the subway in leftfield for a home run. This ended the pitching duties of Messrs. Harrington taking up the burden and holding Riverview scoreless until the eighth.

In the third the Base scored two runs when West hit Flannigan the first man to face him. Rufus popped out but Lefty Harrell singled. Harrington came through with a double that scored Flannigan and Harrell. This ended the Base's scoring for West tightened and fanned the next two men. Both in the eighth and ninth innings the Base had men on base but two double plays spoiled both chances of a score. Harry and De Celles and Farrell featured in these plays.

In the eighth after Mills had popped out Farrell was given a pass and Hamil hit for two bases, his second double of the game. Farrell was given a pass and Hamil hit for two bases for a second double of the game. Farrell was held at third. Gley worked the squeeze play and both he and Farrell were safe, Harry singled to bring in Hamil and then Allard hit to centerfield scoring Gley and Barry. West and Moore ended the scoring by hitting out to the outfield. The score:

WARRIORS DROP CLOSE GAME TO WAUREGAN

The Warriors lost a tight game to the Wauregan Grays at Wauregan Sunday by the score of 4 to 3. The game was fast and well-played throughout with both teams playing a good brand of ball.

Support on the mound for the winners was in fine form, allowing the local boys but four scattered hits and sending twelve back via the strikeout route. Couture, pitching for the Warriors also pitched good ball striking out eight men, but errors at critical times by his teammates proved the downfall.

Jacque Dessaint and Benoit led in the hitting for Wauregan while Jackson did good work for the Warriors.

The third game of the series between these two clubs will be played later in the season, the Warriors having defeated Wauregan earlier in the season. The score:

TAFTVILLE TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM POWERMEN

One big inning, the eighth, in which four runs were scored by Taftville A. A. was enough to send the Eastern team, Power Co. team down to a 4 to 3 defeat Saturday afternoon at the Providence street grounds before one of the largest crowds of the season. The Power team made a gallant attempt to tie the score in the ninth inning but fell one run short and here the game ended.

Tommy Simcox, veteran hurler of many a ball game, was in his old times form for the first seven innings, but in the eighth he cracked and Taftville went to the front. For seven innings Simcox held the Taftville team to two hits and then weakened, Buckland who pitched for Taftville, although wild was effective except in the ninth inning when two runs were scored off his delivery. INCREASING THE DEATHS

New York's commissioner of motor vehicles is calling attention to the deaths which have been caused by automobiles for the first six months of the year. The report shows that there were 850, while for the same period last year the total was 800. Thus far in 1926 the automobile has been responsible for the death of nearly five persons a day, a slaughter all be great and which few probably realize.

From the death record for the first month of the year showing 55 less than in January 1925 New York's commissioner was greatly encouraged. He could see in those figures the results of the efforts in behalf of greater safety and he had a right to so interpret them, but what was true in January did not continue through the subsequent months. There came the time when there were more cars on the roads and streets and with that change came a gain in the death rate till it not only equalled but exceed that of the previous year.

It is possible to figure, with the increase in the number of automobiles registered each year, that the percentage of casualties to motor cars has dropped but that doesn't bring about a reduction in the number of deaths, and it is that very reduction which is greatly needed.

What is true in New York state is invariably true elsewhere. The struggle for a reduction in auto fatalities should be relentless. The slaughter is appalling and the deplorable fact is that regardless of the distressing loss each year the next one shows an increase so persistently that it either cannot be stopped or those who are responsible for such deaths are unwilling to contribute their efforts in such a direction.

The idea should not be gained that the responsibility all rests upon the motorists. The pedestrian must realize that conditions now are not what they were a couple of decades ago and he must govern himself accordingly and impress upon others the necessity of doing the same. There are the heedless pedestrians as well as the reckless autoists.

A MESSAGE TO CRIMINALS

"By my sentence here this morning I am sending a message to the underworld that there will be no compromise and that they will receive no consideration at the hands of this court."

"Society is well rid of you and it is the one regret of this court that the punishment cannot be more severe."

Those where the words with which Judge Nova of New York concluded the sentencing two prisoners, one of whom, aged 21, was sentenced to prison for life as an habitual criminal and another to 35 years for the same reason, the difference in their sentences being due to their records.

New York has been experiencing the humiliating effects of the manner in which its parole law has been administered. This resulted in the changing of the law and under the provisions of the new law the lenients of the past has disappeared. It is possible now for habitual criminals to be sent away for life, without the parole board having a chance to release them. There remains the power of the governor to pardon, but the criminal faces no such easy means of escaping punishment in the future as he did in the past.

That a young man of 21 should be sentenced for life is deplorable. It might seem that one of that age could be given a chance. But that is what has been done over and over again in his case. He has demonstrated that the spirit of reform isn't in his makeup. Crime is his objective and just as long as he is at liberty the public is at his mercy.

The message of the judge to the underworld must be regarded as timely. There will be those who will figure they can disregard it, and they will do so until they get a dose of similar medicine. It need not be expected that the one message is going to be enough to bring about the reformation of the underworld, or to drive it from New York. It will be by the manner in which other judges view the handling of the criminals that the results can be finally measured. Judge Nova has set a great example.

GETTING THE FACTS

In connection with the survey which Colonel Carmi Thompson is making of the Philippines the island politicians are losing no opportunities for getting their demands before the investigator. They are doing their utmost in behalf of the claims for independence and they are striving to provide evidence which will stand in the way of the legislation that has been asked for whereby the islands themselves would be divided. They are anxious for independence for the whole islands but they are quite as anxious that the Moros should not be made independent of the government at Manila.

Being on the ground Colonel Thompson should be able to determine whether the claims of the politicians in regard to the Moros are right or whether those Moros who insist that a majority is desirous of separation from the rest of the islands and that they are subjected to hardships at the present time and are actually speaking for their fellowmen.

Philippine legislation has been kept to the front for many months. The effort in behalf of independence has been even more persistent, and as the inquiry by Colonel Thompson goes on it becomes more and more evident that conditions in the islands are far from being what the politicians claim.

It is easy to see what harmful effects the Harrison administration in the Philippines had, how it centered the efforts of a certain number of the Filipinos upon activities which would quickly bring the return of those conditions which Governor General Wood brought to light and which forced him to use drastic measures to effect a much needed remedy.

The politicians in the islands are doing no more than was to be expected in their efforts to influence. They are well organized and making the most of their opportunity. It is not, however, just one side of the situation on which Colonel Thompson is looking. It is through a careful consideration of all conditions right on the ground that the basis for his recommendations will be found.

A NATIONAL MENACE

In speaking to the republicans at their outing near Bridgeport, Senator Hiram Bingham declared that nothing could be worse or more dangerous to the country than to find citizens who will not and do not take an interest in the fundamental questions which have relation to American citizenship. And the senator is right.

Repeatedly we find those who seem happy to find fault with this or that condition as the result of politics, but it is invariably the case that those very persons are the ones which have done nothing and are doing nothing to correct those conditions. In fact they have, probably contributed to that which they criticise by failing to display an interest in and take part in political affairs. They leave such matters to others and then are much disturbed because their negligence proves unpleasant. They fail to recognize their own responsibility. They recognize no duty. They turn a cold shoulder on their opportunities, they disregard what directly concerns them, they contribute no aid or criticism where it would do some good and they are too often without a sufficient amount of information concerning what is being done, what is not being done or what ought to be done.

The menace of the disinterested citizen lies in disregarding responsibilities which each and every one should assume for his own good and protection. It is only by such that the best government is to be obtained and the real sentiment of the people expressed. It is repeatedly shown in caucuses and town meetings, in town and city elections, and even in come state elections, in contrast to the national election. Even the vote cast in presidential elections is not as large as it should be.

MAGAZINE EXPLOSIONS

With the explosion of another government ammunition magazine in Virginia increased attention will be directed to the recommendations that will follow the completion of the investigation into the Lake Denmark explosion in New Jersey. While there appears to be no definite knowledge as to the cause of the explosion in Virginia, where no lives were lost and all the loss was the destruction of the magazine and ammunition, the impression prevails that lightning was responsible there as well as in New Jersey, since a severe thunder storm preceded the fire.

The explosion of government magazines is not frequent. They are supposed to be protected against lightning and yet it has been shown that the protection was inadequate or else full protection is impossible. This has led to the suggestion that the magazines should be constructed underground. Whether that is a desirable and satisfactory solution of the desire for the elimination of such explosions is for the authorities to determine. That it will get consideration from the investigators is probable and light can doubtless be thrown upon the chances for adequate protection through such a method as well as to the expense attached and the protection to human life that would be thus afforded. When it comes to the matter of expense thought may well be directed to the saving that would be effected through such construction if it would result in providing protection against explosions as the result of lightning. It is quite evident that lightning cannot be prevented. Efforts must therefore be directed to getting protection on against it.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To remove a blot of ink or an incorrect figure or letter, if an eraser is not handy use a piece of sandpaper pressed tightly over the finger. Rub this gently on the spot till it disappears.

Rocking-chairs like to travel. To prevent this, glue a narrow strip of velvet on the part of the rocker touching the floor.

Strongly flavored vegetables such as onions, cabbage and turnips should be cooked in an uncovered vessel in a large quantity of water.

The bread box should be frequently washed out, dried and thoroughly aired by keeping the lid open a little. Thus the bread will never get a musty taste. To keep it from becoming too dry, place a small washed potato in the pan. Moisture is given off by the potato, but not enough to cause mildew.

When making marmalade, grease the preserving pans well with butter and the marmalade will never burn; also skim well. This makes the preserve beautifully clear.

Do not scrape food from agateware, soak well and boil out with soda or washing powder, if necessary.

Chopping bowls or wooden salad bowls that retain odor should be soaked in hot soda water, one teaspoonful of soda to one quart of water.

If you just catch the vegetable before it has actually burned and it is just a bit scorched, plunge the container in which it has been cooking into cold water. Allow it to stand a few minutes. Remove vegetable, being careful not to take up any of the scorched part that clings to the pan.

If you find the odor of paraffin disagreeable, dip a rag in vinegar and scour your vessels with it. It will take but a moment.

BON VOYAGE GIFTS

Gifts for the ocean traveler look even more interesting if they are tied up in decorative hand-blocked papers and have a black ship on a gold background pasted in one corner.

CORRECT PRESSING

When pressing never put the iron on the right side of any goods except cotton. Always lay a cloth between the iron and the goods.

TOMATO AS BEVERAGE

Tomato juice is a remarkable thirst quencher, quite as good as orange or lemon juice. It is equally valuable as a container of vitamins and mineral salts. This is a good point for campers to remember, for when the spring is distant and water is precious the juice drained from a can of tomatoes may be used as a drink.

VALENCIA NEW COLOR

For evening the geranium reds vie with mauves and violets for leadership. The best violet is named Valencia, sometimes called primrose pink, and unusual to the eyes of the mode.

FRESHENING WARDROBES

Plan so that your garments will harmonize. If you buy a new hat, choose one that will be pleasing with different dresses that you have and still will meet your special requirements. If you are making a sweater, choose a color to go with your skirts and frocks. If planning to motor wear dresses that will not show dust or wrinkle easily. Mixed tans and grays are more serviceable than plain dark blue, black or dark brown. A suit is something of a problem as it requires numerous fresh blouses.

REMOVING GRASS STAIN

To remove grass stains from canvas shoes add a few drops of ammonia to a teaspoonful of peroxide or hydrogen and rub the stains with the mixture. Wash off with water.

WHEN MAKING SOUP

It is well to remember that soup has less tendency to curdle if the vegetable puree is poured into the white sauce, instead of the white sauce into the vegetables.

That ideal cream soups are not thick in consistency, but have just enough flour to bind milk and vegetable smoothly together.

That ingredients for cream soups should be heated before being combined, and that the soups should be made just previous to serving.

WASHING PARCHMENT SHADES

Parchment shades, if they are shellacked and varnished, may be washed with white soap and water. A little furniture polish applied after washing helps to brighten them.

DRYING NET CURTAINS

Net curtains that are hung on both top and bottom rods are best hung while wet and allowed to dry on the rods. They dry smoothly and the edges are perfectly straight. When they are half dry, press the end beadings in pleats with the fingers.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Accessories this season have a whimsical gayety that has seldom been equaled. Flowers accentuate some note in the costume. Thus a gardenia, surprisingly green, sits cheerily on the lapel of a white flannel coat which protects a white and green frock.

Draped dresses are becoming more and more a feature of the wardrobe of the mature woman, and these frocks in the blond shades—grays, pinks and a few soft blues—are now among the most fetching costumes seen at the smart resorts.

White is popular when worn with contrasting colors, never alone.

Waistlines may rise and fall like quotations on the stock exchange, but for the slim, waists, real waists, are black. Tight belts or girdles are employed to accentuate the slimness of the waist measurements and the result has necessitated a bloused style of daytime and a flare of skirt.

PADDING FOR FEET

When washing or ironing put a thick rug under your feet and you will find you do not tire so easily.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Two hundred and fifty women have qualified as barristers in France.

The first women's automobile club in Germany has been organized by society women in Potsdam.

Except at court ceremonials or elaborate state occasions, Queen Marie of Rumania wears the ordinary peasant dress.

Records show that 20 years ago in England 34 percent of the working girls were anemic, while today 5 percent are.

A fully accredited woman delegate from Great Britain will represent that country at the September session of the League of Nations.

One of England's biggest engineering concerns, with its subsidiaries, is managed entirely by girls, who are shareholders in the company.

STITCHING TRIMS DRESSES

Stitching is playing quite a part as dress trimming. Diagonal effects are popular, two lines of stitching often meeting in the back in an apex and continuing around and meeting in the front in the same fashion. Plain rows of straight horizontal stitching of a contrasting shade are also used as trimming for the sleeves and lapels of smart sport coats.

BAKED CORN FRITTERS

Shave from the cob one pint of sweet corn. Add one pint of flour, one cupful of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of salt, two eggs, one teaspoonful of sugar, and a little black pepper. Add one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, and drop onto a well greased sheet of tin or iron. Bake in a quick oven.

CLEANING KID SLIPPERS

Clean white kid slippers with any mild soap and sprinkle them with talcum powder. When dry, rub off with a soft cloth. This makes them retain that new look.

CARE OF THE HAT

Every hat should be assigned to a particular box and placed in it directly after it is removed from the head. Brush the hat well unless it has been subjected to dampness. In that event fill the crown and brim with tissue paper to prevent them losing their curves, and be certain that the hat has thoroughly dried before putting it away.

WHEN JELLY JELLS

To tell if jelly has jelled dip a silver knife into the boiling juice and place it on the ice. If the jelly wrinkles as you push your finger along the knife it is done.

RECIPES

Mint Salad: 1 can grapefruit, 4 tablespoons French dressing, shredded lettuce, 1 tablespoon chopped fresh mint, few sprigs mint. Have the grapefruit thoroughly chilled. Use part of the grapefruit juice instead of lemon to make the French dressing. Blend these and add washed, dried and finely chopped mint. Arrange on plates covered with shredded lettuce and garnish with sprigs of mint.

Peach Melba: Use tall glasses for this dessert. Dish up a mould of ice cream and put it in the glass. Add a generous portion of fresh sliced peaches which sugar has been previously added, or half of a canned peach. Pour over with whipped cream and a maraschino cherry.

Stuffed Liver: Scald some slices of liver in boiling water with a little salt. Make a dressing as for poultry. Put a layer of thin slices of salt pork on the bottom of a deep baking dish or the short-handled frying pan. Then spread half the liver on the pork and place the dressing on it. Cover the dressing with the remaining half of the liver, cover with a pan or plate and bake for an hour.

To Can Sweet Peppers: To preserve the color and crispness of the peppers, fill your jar with them after washing them clean; have equal parts of vinegar and water boiling briskly, pour over the peppers and seal immediately. To save space, quarter the peppers, as the jar will then hold more.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Bishop Warren A. Candler, who today enters upon his seventieth year, has had a distinguished career in the Southern Methodist church, as a clergyman, as an educator, and as an editor of denomination publications. He was born in Georgia and has resided in that state during the greater part of his career. After completing his collegiate education in 1875 he entered the ministry and a few years later became pastor of a leading church in Atlanta in 1888, after two years spent as assistant editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, he was called to the presidency of Emory college, his alma mater. He continued to fill this position for ten years, until elected to the bishopric in 1898. Unusual energy and earnestness have characterized Bishop Candler's career in the church, but, nevertheless, he has found the leisure to enrich the literature of the church with many books and pamphlets on religious subjects.

YOUR HEALTH

Delay—the Executioner in Disease

To prevent disease and deformity is the most important job the medical profession has to perform. The next most important job of the medical profession is to cure people when they get sick.

One third of the deaths due to obstructions of the bowels, perhaps one-half the deaths due to cancer, more than 100,000 in the United States each year, practically all of the deaths due to strangulated hernia, as well as those due to appendicitis, are due to delay in the institution of proper treatment. Who is responsible for these delays and the consequent harvest of death? Rarely the doctor, usually the patient.

To consult your doctor early is economical from the standpoint of life, health, happiness, and money. Many maladies are symptomless at the start, and careful examination by a trained man is necessary for their recognition. Therefore, to avoid being a victim of delay, have your doctor take periodic invoices of your physical assets. Then follow his advice.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Plight of the Republican Party in Norwich

Mr. Editor: The organization of the local republican party is in a pitiable plight in the city of Norwich at the present time. After the last city election, in which the party was annihilated and the leaders repudiated, it would seem that there was sense enough in those trying to hang on to the organization to quit the job and to realize that the republicans in the city of Norwich are disgusted by the humiliations which they have suffered at the hands of such leadership,—a small bunch trying to hang on to the rule of the party for their own purpose and taking care of themselves,—a pretty poor incentive for local republicans to come out and vote for the party and try to assist them.

Every city in the state of Connecticut is in the hands of the republican party today with the exception of the city of Norwich, and if the republican organization was of the proper type and stamp, Norwich would be in the same place with the other cities.

Mr. Bailey of the state committee to start with agreed to resign two years ago from the committee. Now the republicans of Norwich want him to live up to that promise and quit the job. The party has been repudiated with him as leader.

Mrs. Mitchell, who is the woman representative on the state committee and of the party, and who should have done something to perfect a proper organization for the women, fell down most ignobly in the last city election. The republican women's organization was a joke. There seemed to be no head to the organization.

Our present city court judge, Judge Libby, chairman of the town committee, and holding office, a judicial position, as judge of the court, fand that is one of the reasons Judge Barnes was ejected from that office to divorce politics from the judgeship) is a well-meaning man but he knows nothing of politics, in justice to the party he should resign with Brother Bailey.

There should be a completely new town committee and new state central committee. Norwich has no standing in the state, it has no standing in Hartford, and the republicans in the city of Norwich are disgusted with the exception of a few office holders who are trying to cling grimly to their fast-slipping positions. With the disgust which seems to be general for the way affairs have been carried on in the city court and with the bunch of petty office holders who have no other interest in the party than their own personal advancement, and with the talk which is in every republican mouth in town, it would seem as though they should quit the job before they are forcibly ejected, and allow some new blood and life to come in and take hold of the situation.

Norwich is not necessarily a democratic town by any means, but with the present management it will be for the next 20 years. It has been for the last ten and it is high time that they saw the light and quit the job to somebody more capable to handle the work, and whom the people of Norwich could look to with more confidence and respect and hope of success.

The organization of the republican women in Norwich is ridiculous. It is one thing to have a woman purporting to be at the head of the republican women, and who intereats herself in them only on election day, and it is another thing to have a woman from the rank and file of the people who knows the needs and personality of the republican women 365 days in the year. It is one thing to be kiting off to Hartford hobnobbing with the elite, and then on election day coming around and expecting people to support that kind of leadership. It is an impossibility. It never was a success anywhere and it has proven to be an utter failure in the city of Norwich.

With the present feeling of the republicans in Norwich there is one answer, new leadership from top to bottom. The broom should make a clean sweep and start afresh and bring Norwich back into the republican column where it always was under capable leadership, and not as it is today, the only democratic city in the state of Connecticut. Republican voters should put their talk and their feelings into action, and do something which will be a credit to their city and not allow this mismanagement to continue any longer.

DISGUSTED REPUBLICAN.

Norwich, Aug. 21, 1926.

FROM LYDIA E. PINKHAM TO HER GREAT GRANDDAUGHTER

Have you ever heard a grandmother say, "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Why, my mother and I took that fifty years ago." In some families the fourth generation is learning the merit of this dependable medicine.

From the days of the polonaise to the days of the radio, mothers have given this famous remedy to their daughters. The happy schoolgirl of today, like the demure maiden of the 1870's, knows she can rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Reddy Has to Be Shown

He mentally ill truly blind
Who fails to keep an open mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

Of course it doesn't do to believe everything you hear, or even everything you see, but neither does it do to refuse to believe. You should always have an open mind, ready to believe facts when they are shown you. This was the spirit of Reddy Fox.

Graywing the Gull had stated that there is a fish which builds a nest. You should have seen Reddy Fox look up when he heard that. There was suspicion in those eyes of his. He suspected Graywing of trying fool him. "Did I understand you to say that there is a fish that builds a nest?" he inquired.

Graywing nodded. "That is what I said, Neighbor Fox," said he.

"Do you mean it?" inquired Reddy.

This time Graywing tossed his head. "I am not in the habit of saying things that I do not mean," said he very sharply.

"Just what kind of a nest does this fish build?" asked Reddy.

"Why, a nest, a regular nest," replied Graywing.

"I suppose," said Reddy, "you'll be telling me next that this fish sits on the eggs and hatches them out, like a bird."

Graywing's eyes began to snap. "See here, Neighbor Fox," said he, "it is quite clear to me that you do not believe what I have told you. There is a fish that builds a nest. I didn't say anything about the fish sitting on the eggs. If you are going to doubt what I say, I simply will refuse to tell you anything more about the seashore."

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Gull, I beg your pardon," Reddy hastened to say. "Of course I believe what you tell me, but some folk like to joke, and I thought you might be joking me. I did, indeed. I'm sorry. But you see the idea of a fish building a nest is so new to me that I really couldn't believe you were in earnest. I certainly should like to see one of those fish nests. In fact, I cannot think of anything that I should like to see more. If you should find one of these nests, Neighbor Gull, would you be willing to show it to me?"

"Certainly," replied Graywing, getting over his indignation. "Certainly, I'll show you the very first one I find."

"Is—is—is it likely to be on the ground, or in bushes, or where?" inquired Reddy with a little hesitancy.

Graywing laughed right out. "I see you are still thinking of birds, not of fish," said he. "How do you suppose a fish could build in a bush? A fish might make a nest on the sand under water, but hardly would be likely to make a nest on the ground outside of the water. We are talking of fish now."

Reddy grinned. "I know," said he "Of course. But it is the very fact that we are talking of fish that has made it so hard to believe that one can make a real nest. What kind of a fish did you say makes this nest?"

"I didn't say," replied Graywing. "Probably if I did say, you wouldn't be any wiser than before. Excuse me now, for I have an engagement." Graywing spread his wings and started off.

"Don't forget that you are to show me one of those fish nests when you find out," barked Reddy.

"I don't believe you really believe it yet," called Graywing.

Reddy grinned. "I am trying to," he replied.

MEDIEVAL SWEDISH CASTLES HEATED BY MODERN METHODS

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 22—(AP)—The inhabitants of old Swedish castles enjoyed modern comforts more than four centuries ago.

The castle of Glimmingehus, one of Sweden's most famous country seats, built in 1499 contained a central heating plant in the basement with conduits through the walls, discovered by representatives of the Royal Swedish Academy of Antiquities.

This is believed to be the oldest installation of its kind in Northern Europe. Breakfast in bed also apparently was enjoyed by the master and mistress of the castle as speaking tubes were found leading from the bedrooms to the kitchen.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR E. J. FRITZ GOES TO FITCHBURG Y. NEXT MONTH

E. J. FRITZ

Physical Director E. J. Fritz of the Norwich Young Men's Christian association has notified President James C. Macpherson that he is to leave the local association on Sept. 15th to go to Fitchburg, Mass., to engage in association work in the physical department of the Y. M. C. A. in that city.

The resignation of Mr. Fritz will come up before the board at a meeting to be held early in September, and, although the association dislikes to lose the services of its able physical director, an acceptance will be necessary.

In leaving Norwich for Fitchburg Mr. Fritz advances to a larger Y. M. C. A. and where the field is more extensive than in this city. The Fitchburg Y in membership ranks about the same as Norwich but the field for advancement is considerably larger as the population of the city is about 45,000.

Mr. Fritz entered Y. M. C. A. work about 14 years ago, after preparing for it in his home town at Johnstown, Pa. His first work was with the Y. M. C. A. in Sharon, Pa., and in Lakewood, N. J. For three years he was in the physical department of the Y. M. C. A. at Kansas City, Mo., and followed this up with six years' service as director at Butler, Pa. Mr. Fritz became physical director of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. in October, 1920, and through his efforts that department of the Norwich association has assumed much larger proportions.

Thoroughly grounded in the work of his department, Mr. Fritz has built up one of the best physicial culture programs ever established at the local Y. Under his guidance members of the departments have taken part in state and county meets and a number of leaders have been developed, all having a better understanding of national and state events.

In the departure of Mr. Fritz the local Y. M. C. A. will suffer the loss of an energetic department man and the city will lose a fine citizen. During his stay in Norwich Mr. Fritz has gained many friends, especially among the business men, which department has now become one of the best in the Y gymnasium, and the news that he is to leave the city will be regretted, although everyone will wish him every success in his advancement in the work for which he is so well qualified.

No announcement has been made as to a successor here but it is probable that some action toward securing one will be taken at the board meeting in September, which will act officially on the resignation to come before it.

PASTOR FROM MADISON FILLS BAPTIST PULPIT

Rev. C. H. Barnett of Madison filled the pulpit Sunday at the Central Baptist church and in the evening preached from the text John 13:17; If ye do them, from which he drew the lesson that the balanced life is the true Christian life, one in which head, heart and hands are all found in the service of God. Christianity, he said, is a religion that invites the use of the intellect and meets the test of reason. But the intellect alone is not enough. Jesus made a place for he emotions, the heart, and joy and zeal are parts of the Christian life. Zeal without knowledge is fanaticism, but knowledge without zeal is a cold, dead, lifeless thing. Finally, the great joy of the Christian life is found in doing, which was what Jesus meant when he said to his disciples "happy are ye if ye do them." A man's Christian influence is just as great as his ability to put into practice the things he believes.

SUMMONED TO COURT AFTER MOTOR CRASH

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 22.—Walter I. Carlson, 26, R. F. D., Moody's corner, Springfield, Mass., a radio assembler, and Edward A. Morris of 15 Strong's court, this city, will answer charges of reckless driving when in police court Monday morning.

The charges will be prefered following an automobile accident in which cars driven by the two men figured at the top of Goshen Hill, Sunday evening. Morris was released on bonds of $100 furnished by his father George Morris and Carlson was freed from custody for his appearance in court, his Dodge touring car being held as surety. Motorcycle Officer Pierre Marriette and State Policeman Henry Heinold, of Stafford Springs barracks, investigated the accident.

According to information gathered, Morris, driving a Hudson sedan, had come along Windham road from South Windham and was turning into Pleasant street. Carlson had ascended Goshen Hill and was turning to the right to proceed along Pleasant street when the collision occurred. The Morris machine struck the left rear fender of the Dodge, crowding it into a ditch on the right-hand side of Pleasant street just past the intersection. Investigation by the police showed that the car driven by Morris had skidded for about 100 feet after the application of the brakes. The Morris car is the more badly damaged, the two front wheels being torn off and one of the spindle arms being broken. The damage to the Carlson car was slight. The occupants of the cars escaped injury. Mrs. Morris and daughter with two other persons who are working with Mr. Morris in New Britain were in the Hudson. Carlson was accompanied by a young woman.

STORRS FAMILY IS TO HOLD REUNION

The thirty-sixth annual reunion of the Storrs family will be held at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Wednesday at 10 a. m. standard time, with lunch at 11 o'clock. The present officers of the association are Wayne L. Storrs of Mansfield, president, and Mrs. Abbie Storrs Olds of South Willington, secretary.

The original home seat or habitation of the English family is Suttoncum-Lound, Nottinghamshire, England. It is supposed that the Storrs family were of old Norse descent, and their arrival in England was by way of Normandy at the period of the invasion by William the Conqueror in 1066.

About 20 members of the Norwich Vegetable Growers association enjoyed a clambake Saturday afternoon at Quonchontaug beach on the property of Professor A. E. Wilkinson, who is the vegetable specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college. Frank E. Peckham of this city, renowned as a past master in putting on bakes, provided a menu which the vegetable growers declared left nothing to be desired.

George W. Stanton of Hamilton avenue and Frank Steinke of Orchard street have returned home from their two weeks vacation spent at Block Island. While at the island both young men were called upon for solo and duet numbers at various shore resorts, singing at Spring Hall, the New National and the Tea Room, receiving applause and compliments of their large audiences for their delightful renditions.

TELEPHONE INCREASE IS RECORD FOR SEVEN MONTHS

A record increase in the number of telephones in service in this state is reported by the Southern New England Telephone company for the seven months ended July 31 last. On that date there were 261,954 telephones in the territory served by this company, a gain of 11,951 during the seven months of the current year and the largest telephone development Connecticut has ever experienced in a like period.

Telephone growth is general about the state. It is confined to no city or section and indicates unusual business activity everywhere in Connecticut for it is generally accepted that telephone growth is a reliable barometer of business conditions and that the greater the expansion by this utility, the greater is the business activity of the community.

To keep pace with this exceptionally heavy demand for its service, the telephone company is carrying out an extensive program of plant enlargement, pushing to completion as rapidly as possible the large projects which it announced at the beginning of the year would be carried on during 1926 and involving an outlay of about $5,000,000. Telephone development of this unusual kind means a much wider range of service to the subscribers in every city and town in the state, but it means also that the investment of the company, as represented by its outside plant and its central office equipment, has been greatly enlarged at a very considerable expense.

This year promises to establish a high record in telephone growth in this state. During the seven months the gain in telephones has averaged about 1,700 a month and if that average rate is continued during the remaining five months of the year, about 20,400 telephones will have been added to the service this year. The high record to date has been held by the year 1923 when the increase reached about 17,500 telephones.

The following figures show the number of telephones in use on July 31 last and the net gain during the seven months, in some of the principal cities of the state:

Hartford, in use, 44,959, gain, 1,841; New Haven, 42,757, 1,373; Bridgeport, 24,580, 957; Waterbury, 15,720, 601; Stamford, 10,614, 72; New Britain, 9,828, 454; New London, 8,723, 475; Meriden, 6,625, 163; Norwalk, 6,865, 441; Norwich, 5,857, 172; Middletown, 5,071, 229; Danbury, 5,420, 447.

MISS HOLLOWAY PRAISES STATE WORKING GIRLS

Attractiveness and good looks among the working girls of Connecticut is far above the 72 per cent., accorded English work girls by Sir Thomas Legge, medical inspector of British factories, according to Miss Charlotte Molyneux Holloway, of New London, industrial investigator for the Connecticut department of labor.

"Beauty and attractiveness here would average 100 per cent. if it were not for the frumps who are too indolent or too conceited to add to the good points they possess or subtract from the bad, by skillful dressing," Miss Holloway says.

"There is no American or Connecticut type," she says. "However, it holds true that those "not beautiful are good to look upon." Factory workers here cannot be distinguished as such on the streets nor can stenographers, bookkeepers and clerks be picked as working girls when not busy at their occupations."

While she finds that the majority of working girls in Connecticut measure up to the modern accepted standards of beauty Miss Holloway is of the opinion that the girls of the demure Pilgrim or semi-classic type, found more often in New England than elsewhere, are particularly attractive.

"There is no mistaking the type," she says, "and it has a quiet beauty, unlike any other, but which has to be viewed detached fully to appreciate it, even though it is first to strike one in a throng, because of its dissimilarity."

Miss Halloway, who has travelled widely in her work was an industrial investigator and lecturer, says that the almost universal verve and chic of the American girl adds much to natural endowments, so far as attractiveness is concerned. She is of the opinion that the American girl is impressing her qualities on the girls and women of other lands, principally by reason of the great amount of travel done by Americans in recent years. American girls use more cosmetics than those of most other countries, she finds, but skill in the use and better appreciation of these aids is increasing.

For Playground Prizes

The winners of prizes in the bicycle, tricycle and scooter parade which was held last Wednesday under the supervision of the local playgrounds may receive their prizes by calling at the office of Supt. of Recreation Earle E. Brigham in the city hall today Monday. Supt. Brigham's office is on the third floor of the city hall.

Thomas J. Cavanaugh was appointed prohibition administrator for eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

TWO SUNDAY CALLS FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

The firemen were called twice Sunday, once for a chimney fire, the second time for a fire which was extinguished before the company could leave the central station.

The first fire call was shortly after 4 o'clock Sunday morning when the chimney at the Chelsea lunch caught fire. This was soon extinguished by members of Squad A, who responded to the call with Deputy Chief Henry L. Taft.

The second call came shortly after noon Sunday for a fire in the Martin House. Before the apparatus left the station however the telephone operator informed the firemen that their services would not be needed as the fire had been extinguished.

Theodore Bacheler, his wife and three children.

Thursday afternoon, Miss Adelaide Hallen entertained the members of her Sunday school class of Goshen for their third reunion. Eight members were present coming from Buffalo, N. Y., Lisbon, Goshen and Lebanon. In spite of the terrific thunder shower a most enjoyable afternoon was spent in the old Trumbull home looking at the beautiful hand made lace and embroidery, which has been in the home for generations, some pieces being over 100 years old. The visitors also had the honor of sitting in the chairs owned by Gov. Jonathan Trumbull and his wife, Faith Trumbull. Miss Hallen was assisted in entertaining Miss Ellen Huntington and Mrs. Earl Hallen. Miss Julia Standish assisted in the dining room in serving the lunch.

CAMP MEETING DAYS CROWDED WITH ACTIVITIES

ton, Mass., with Miss Marjorie G. Stephens, of Vernon, assistant.

The evening services in the Tabernacle attracted a congregation that took nearly all the seats in the building. The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. W. D. Woodward of Staffordville and prayer was offered by Rev. Frank W. Gray of Burnside. The quartette of Willimantic Methodist church sang Rock of Ages. The quartette gave as an offertory selection, Just As I am Without One Plea. The hymn Rescue the Perishing was sung by the choir and congregation.

Dr. Rees asked the congregation to repeat together the watch word so often recited during the week and it sounded forth, "Not by might nor by power but by my spirit saith the Lord of hosts. God answers prayer." He announced his subject as The Passion for Souls. He urged the value of the soul (1) because of its spiritual nature; (2) its wonderful power as shown in the working of the mind; (3) its indestructibility; (4) the price paid for its redemption; (5) its immortality; and (6) it is all we have. What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

It is a sad moment when one loses his passion for souls. There can never be a revival on Norwich district nor anywhere else until we get the passion for souls. How shall we get this passion? Our great weakness is we do not pray enough. We gain interest by attention.

A man who loves fishing gained that after he caught that first fish. Then he wanted to catch more. Let him neglect to fish, he will lose interest and cease to care for it. When we, as ministers, cease to catch men, we lose interest and the passion is soon gone.

The service closed with a helpful altar service.

School children from this town, with those from Somers and Union, will form the beginning of

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY BUSINESS REVIEW

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—(AP)—Late summer has found the vitality of business unimpaired and a note of confidence marking the outlook for fall trade. On top of exceptional summer activity in all lines of industry have come indications that the autumn demand for goods would sustain the present high rate of buying and compare favorably with the corresponding seasons of recent years.

Testimony regarding the country's prosperity was laid before President Coolidge, last week from several congress. Of especial significance was the report that the agricultural regions generally to be sound, although a few unfavorable factors still remain to be eliminated from the farm belt, as well as the textile and bituminous coal industries.

Considerable attention was devoted in financial circles to various suggestions for farm relief, some of which were said to be under consideration for official action by the administration. In view of the satisfactory credit conditions prevailing in all parts of the country, talk of forming a $100,000,000 pool to extend loans to the farmers was not taken seriously in banking quarters, although it was admitted that such a plan could quickly be put into execution if the need arose.

Operations in the steel industry proceeded on the high plane which has made the summer such a remarkable one for the industry. An undiminished flow of orders and reports of increased production were noted by the trade reviews, which also found that because of the rounded out spread of heavy consumption, expectations of producers for the remainder of the year have grown more confident. At the same time leading steel interests were said to be guarding against over confidence in view of the record summer business and to be shaping their plans along conservative lines.

Reassuring news affecting the railroads included prospects for an upward revision of class rates in the west following the recent denial of a general rate increase and the maintenance of freight traffic above a million cars a week through the early part of August. Several of the western rail executives expressed the opinion that the carriers in this section had turned the corner toward better times.

Dangers which confronted the rubber industry through the inflation of crude rubber costs have been almost entirely eliminated, most of the leading manufacturers in this field took occasion to point out in their semi-annual reports that normal operations were close at hand after a year or more of uncertainty.

COPPER MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—(AP)—No improvement has been reported in the demand for copper and a somewhat easier tone developed toward the end of the week owing partly to the failure of negotiations for a settlement of the British coal strike. Most of the larger producing interests have nominally maintained their asking price of 14.50 for electrolytic but this figure has been shaded and metal was said to be available at concessions of 5 to 10 points.

NOANK

Noank Fire Co., 40 members, Friday morning took the train to New London. While in that city the members were guests of North West Hose Co., and when the parade started the smallest fireman in the state, 39 inches high, Charles Ellis, led the Noank Fire Co., swinging his arms and keeping time with the music. People on the sidewalks gave him a great hand. The Noank men wore white shirts, black ties, blue trousers and firemen's hats. The old gasoline engine, drawn by two horses and with gold trimmings, was also in the long line of march. When the prizes were given out, at Ocean Beach, Charles Ellis had to beat a small fireman from Derry. Judge C. Costello was one of the judges and he brought the two small firemen on the stand to show the people who was the smaller and Charles won by three inches. He was carried on the shoulders by firemen.

Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell of New Brighton, N. J., are visiting in Noank for a few days.

Miss Sarah Anderson was in Clinton for the day last week.

Harold Rathbun has left for a few days' visit in New York with friends.

Dave Johnson of Fall River was in Noank Friday.

Mrs. J. Andrew of Chicopee Falls, is visiting in the village.

Deer and Ball of Essex are visiting Harold Putnam for a week.

Boat Reliance is having a new 55-horse power Bridgeport engine installed at the ship yard by Earl Foster.

The Sardines club tennis team played the Golden Rod club team at Sawer field recently before a large crowd. The Golden Rod team won three matches out of five. The scores for Golden Rod were 6-0, 6-4, 6-2; for the Sardines club, 6-0, 6-3. In the last set, the fans saw some pretty playing. Ebbett for Golden Rod team was a hard man to beat; he played close into the net and his backward shots were clever, while Johnston for the Sardines was good on long shots. Golden Rod team: Robbetts, Phelps; Sardines, Johnston, Lanplin; Coon, referee.

Prof. Everett Fitch of New Haven spent the week end in Noank.

The boat Baby has left for a few days' fishing trip to Block Island.

Thomas Grant of Springfield is spending a few days at Mouse Island.

An automobile was coming down Devil Foot hill and the driver thought the road was straight, so started to go across the bridge, but when he found the going too rough he had to back up and make the turn to the village. He got a flat tire by his mistake. This, the third machine to try to cross the bridge in a short time. A sign is at the foot of the hill, "Danger—Curve Ahead."

George Banks has returned from Block Island.

Peter Banks, after a visit in the village, has returned to Taunton, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. James Steele are at nome after a visit of three weeks in Prince Edward Island.

The old gasoline engine was on its way home after the parade and when on Main street the driver hit the trolley track, breaking the wheel. Every spoke was broken. After working on it for several hours, it got back to the village at a late hour.

Charles Rogers has resigned at the Ship and Engine plant in Groton.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Good Comrade

I love him well. He loves me, too,
His eyes tell me this heart is true,
A hundred ways he speaks to me.
His dear head resting on my knee,
Full of joy when I am glad,
Sorrowful when I am sad,
A sympathetic, loyal friend,
My life with his he would defend.
Wistful he looks when I go out,
But of his welcome there's no doubt,
He wags his tail and with one bound,
Greets me with such joy profound,
And though I never can forget
That I owe him an honored debt
Naught from me does he demand
But just a pat or kindly hand.
He coaxes me with lifted paw
And yet, my word to him is law.
He understands my slightest nod.
Indeed, "Good Comrade" is my dog!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

During the past few weeks our Wide Awake circle has received letters from those whom we usually call "youngsters." Some of our recent writers are as young as six years. Their little stories are written only after much thought and hard work with the pen or pencil. Surely every older Wide Awake reads these with no little pleasure as they cannot fail to recognize that the newcomers will someday become contributors of articles of great interest to the other members.

Our little circle has an age limit and many of the members seem to reach it only too quickly. Today they are "youngsters" writing in to Uncle Jed as the Wide Awakes, seeking to join our happy circle and become contributors as well as readers; then, in a few days they are big boys and girls and we lose them in the Wide Awake circle.

Who knows but that someday some of our former members shall become known in the literary world. However, whether or not they reach this goal in life, the habit of writing interesting and with an aim to entertain, is certain to develop within them that quality of writing interestingly and this is a faculty few people possess.

We often receive letters from friends who are away. Some of these tell us little of the pleasures of the trip. In other words they lack the punch to make them interesting. Others read just like story books and we cannot stop reading them until they are finished. These letters are the ones we all love to receive.

In some of us the faculty of interesting story telling on paper comes as a natural gift, but to most of us it is a thing reached only after constant striving. Let us therefore hope that those former members and all of us writing at present become interesting writers, for these are the people who make and hold friends.

The training to become an interesting writer cannot fail to make us careful to become interesting speakers, and when we reach older years, makes it possible to command attention of others when we speak, for they will know that what we are saying is certain to be interesting and they can gain knowledge by paying careful attention. This gift is one well worth cultivating and we all have it in us if we will give time to developing it in childhood.

To My Danielson Friends

Two letters have been received this past week, each writer requesting that their article be printed without having their name appearing. This cannot be done as it is against the rules of the Circle. Both letters are excellent and would be published. Won't you change your minds Danielson friends and allow the letters to be published with your names.

UNCLE JED.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Contemptible Trick

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to the Wide Awakes and tell them what I'm doing on my vacation.

One day my friend, my brother and I were taking a walk along the state road. We met a farmer going to hoe his garden. He asked us where we were going, and we said we had no particular place in mind. He wanted to know if we wanted to earn some money of our own. We told him we would be glad to earn some money. The next day he told us what to do and we kept on working for two weeks. We did not get any wages paid for the two weeks. We thought we would stop working for him and see if he would be thoughtful enough to pay us. We would start working again after paid. He has not paid us yet and we did not ask for the money either. Some day we are going to look right into his face and tell him just what we think of him for fooling us that way.

Jacks Birthday Picnic

Dear Uncle Jed: The Smither's children were as pleased as ever they could be when Uncle Harry sent Jack a big cake for a birthday present. Jack had wanted tin soldiers, but he was as pleased as anyone of them to see the cake and at once suggested that there should be a picnic in the woods, they could take the big lunch basket and have the cake for lunch.

Everybody got more and more excited when mother found some potted meat, buns and chocolates to go with the cake and a very happy crowd they were that started for the woods. Oh what a day they had! By 12 o'clock they were all as hungry as hunters and they should eat this minute. The whole party except Jean and Bettie went off to the brook to get some water while the other two got their lunch ready.

When they opened the box that contained the cake it as gone! They searched everywhere but with no success. They ate the other things, but they missed the cake just the same. When they reached home they found the dining room decorated and what should they see but the cake in the middle of the table!

ANTOINETTE ST. GEORGE. Age 7.
Willimantic.

The Peace Monument

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about the Peace Monument.

The Peace monument, more correctly known as the Naval monument is situated on Pennsylvania avenue at the foot of Capitol hill. As the eastern terminus of that stretch of the avenue between the Capitol and the Treasury, it has become a landmark in the congregation or processions for national festivals. It was designed by Franklin Simmons and erected from funds contributed by members of the navy in memory of the officers, seamen and marines of the United States navy, "who fell in defense of the Union and Liberty of their country, 1861-65." The upper figures on the monument represent America weeping upon the shoulder of History, who contemplates a table upon which is engraved: "They died that their country might live." Below are two single figures: Victory with a laurel wreath, Peace with an olive branch.

ELIZABETH VALIER, Age 14.

The Birthday Party

Dear Wide Awake Circle: Situated midway between Norwich and New London, is a pretty white house surrounded by shade trees, and green lawns running from the state highway to the beautiful river Thames.

The day was perfect, with blue sunny skies alone, cool green grass below, wooded hills to the back, sparkling rippling river to front and a delightful cool breeze blowing from the northwest.

There was a bustle and bustle within the quaint house, especially so in the kitchen, where a splendid meal was being prepared in honor of the birthday of my dear aunt. It just made me feel hungry to inhale the odors of the good cooking and that birthday cake baking. Covers were set under the spreading apple tree for 13 guests. Clean white clo

BODY OF DROWNED SAILOR IS RECOVERED AT QUAKER HILL COVE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23.—James McShean, seaman first class, stationed at the submarine base, was drowned Saturday afternoon in the cove between Richards' grove and the main road at Quaker Hill. The body was recovered today and after being viewed by Medical Examiner Rose F. Black, was ordered removed to an undertaking establishment.

McShean and two companions, it is reported, had been drinking and about 5 o'clock started from the submarine base in a row boat. Each was dressed in uniform and they proceeded across the Thames river and passed under the Central Vermont railroad bridge leading to Best View. After the bridge passage the boat continued to the trestle where the trolley cars pass over, at Richards' Grove. Passing under this structure, the occupants of the boat continued toward the shore, approaching the main highway. In some manner one of the occupants of the boat caused it to become unsteady and a few minutes later people in the cottages along the shore noticed the boat overturned and with its occupants floundering in the water. Cottagers rushed to the shore, but by the time that they arrived there two of the sailors had managed to reach land, but McShean was nowhere to be seen. A grappling party was organized in an effort to recover the body, but without success. This morning another grappling party began the effort to recover the body and about 10 o'clock McShean was located and brought to the surface. The body was brought ashore and Medical Examiner Black was summoned. He pronounced death as occurring from accidental drowning.

PARKING LAWS OBSERVED AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Better attention was paid Sunday at the four masses in St. Patrick's church to parking cars parallel to the curb, also in single lines, late comers driving into the school grounds.

The rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May and his junior assistant, Rev. John J. Reilly returned at the week end from the annual spiritual retreat of a week, attended by the senior priests at Manresa institute Keyser Island, off South Norwalk. The senior assistant, Rev. Myles Paul Galvin will attend retreat this week.

All efforts of the parishioners are centered just now in the success of the annual lawn fete, to be held on the grounds at the K. of C. home. It was announced Sunday that the big afternoon and evening affair is to end with fireworks.

Yesterday was the thirteenth Sunday after Pentecost, the epistle read at all the masses being Galatians 3. 16-22 and the gospel Luke 17.11-19 the latter the miracle of the cleansing of the ten lepers.

The Sisters of Mercy in the parish convent on Perkins avenue have completed their courses of study at summer school, also have finished retreat and since the 16th are having vacation, a number going to the homes of their relatives for rest and relaxation before the opening of their year of teaching in the parish school. The superior, Sister M. Ricardia has returned and opened the convent and has with her several visiting Sisters who are on vacation in this section from other state cities.

In spite of vacation, church activities continue as usual and at the early masses each Sunday two priests are required to administer holy communion to the large numbers punctual weekly about receiving the sacrament.

NORWICH DOLLAR DAY WAS COMPLETE SUCCESS

Saturday was Dollar Day in this city and from early morning until late in the evening hundreds of people came into the city to make their purchases. The merchants had lived up to their promise to provide bargains and those who visited the stores reported that the merchandise offered was of the best making the day one of the greatest sale days Norwich merchants have ever provided.

There was a noticeable increase of out-of-town buyers Saturday and the traffic officers reported many cars from out of town. It was also noticed that out-of-state cars stopped during the day and that occupants stopped in the various stores to make purchases.

The rush began soon after the store doors were opened in the morning, some stores being jammed, while others reported a heavy but steady business until closing time in the evening.

Late in the day the bargain counters in many stores showed a tendency to become somewhat bare, thus indicating that the buying public had been quick to seize the opportunity to purchase the offerings in that department.

It was the day of the dollar bill and the ground work laid earlier in the week through newspapers posters and special dollar day handbills brought forth the usual response from those who had been waiting for another Norwich Dollar day. The next day for the dollar bill to reign supreme comes in February 1927.

CRASHED INTO WALL AT LAUREL HILL BRIDGE

The heavy retaining wall at the foot of the incline on Laurel Hill avenue, placed there two years ago by the city, proved its worth again Saturday morning when a New Jersey car driven by Mrs. Francis Davis of Weehawken N. J. crashed headon into it. Only for the wall the car would have gone over the embankment and dropped down some 75 feet into the Shetucket river.

The front of the car driven by Mrs Davis, who had lost control of the machine as she drove down the hill, was a complete wreck and the occupants were cut by flying glass. All were taken to the Backus hospital by William C. Noyes, garage man of Laurel Hill, and their injuries were treated.

Those in the party were Mrs Davis, Mrs. Anna Duffy and son, Robert Duffy, all of Weehawken Heights, N. J. Lacerations comprised the injuries to the three people, although Mrs. Davis also suffered from the shock of the accident. They were discharged from the hospital during the afternoon.

It is stated that the party had been visiting at Groton Long Point before starting the trip which ended with the accident.

5 1-4 POUND PICKEREL CAUGHT AT BEACH POND

John Ladoux of this city received the surprise and thrill of his life Sunday afternoon as he was fishing at Beach pond, Voluntown, where he had caught more than a dozen pickerel and had decided to call it a day. He was rowing toward shore and letting his line trail out behind when something grabbed the bait and started for deep water. In the battle that followed between the fisherman and the fish the former was the winner when he brought into the boat a pickerel 23 inches long that weighed 5 1-4 pounds. Mr. Ladoux declares that he has caught dozens of pickerel but this is his record fish, as it probably is for the ponds in this part of the state.

Norwich Produce Market

(Furnished by the Commissioner of Agriculture of Connecticut).

The market was quiet Saturday morning and buying sluggish. A limited number of huckleberries were offered but no other berries were seen. A moderate supply of apples with a fair demand for good grades but poor stock sells slowly. An offering of native pears sold for $1.00 per 14 qt. basket with shipped in stock $3.00-$3.25 bushel. The supply of shipped in peaches is considerably more limited and higher at $2.35-$3.00 per crate or bushel and no natives are yet offered on this market.

Native shell beans are scare at $1.50-$2.00 bushel and the quality of brought-in stock does not satisfy the demand. Sweet corn and tomatoes are abundant and have reached about the lowest prices for which the producers can afford to pick. Squash is also abundant and cheap while excellent native celery is offered in moderate quantities.

Broilers and fowl are steady with eggs of all grades and butter holding firm. Other dressed meats and grain remain unchanged.

The feature of the trading in city markets was the firmer condition of white potatoes. Information from outside markets indicated that higher prices were being received. New Jersey stock is being received in larger markets and selling from $4.00-4.50 per sack. Native potatoes corresponding with U. S. Grade No. 1 brought $1.50-1.75 per bushel. Stock sold for lower figures consisted of inferior, ungraded or scabby potatoes. Arrivals of sweet potatoes were light and prices held at $3.00-3.50 per bushel.

Native tomato supplies increased and several markets were flooded with early stock. Prices received for early tomatoes were 25-30c. per basket lower than for high quality mid-season varieties. Supplies of sweet corn increased but demand was equally active for white and yellow varieties. Demand was poor for lima beans, shell beans and string beans showing age. Beets and carrots sold slowly. Prices quoted on onions are now confined to native stock. Demand for cabbage was moderate. Lettuce prices were firm and offerings of high quality native stock light. Shipped-in lettuce is now being offered on several markets and prices ranged $1.50-1.75 per box holding two dozen heads.

Apple prices were holding steady with the quality of native stock improved over earlier in the week. Considerable trading was being done at $1.00 per 14 quart basket for large well-graded clean Red Astrachans. The market for shipped-in peaches was slightly firmer and good stock sold for $2.00-$2.50 per crate or bushel. Offerings of native peaches were light and demand poor for all grades exceping fancy Greensboro. Arrivals of huckleberries and blueberries were liberal, demand good and prices unchanged. Cantaloupes from southern sources were received in car lots and a few native melons appeared in Hartford and New Haven. The market for all classes of stock was weak.

THIRTY MINUTES PARKING LIMIT FOR NEPTUNE PARK, NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 22. — City Manager William A. Holt has issued another edict tending to improve parking conditions at Ocean Beach. The new order permits parking on Elliott and Mott avenues in Neptune park for only 30 minutes. Heretofore parking has been permitted on the two avenues indefinitely.

Despite of chilly weather today the patronage at Ocean Beach was more than was expected by proprietors of restaurants and confectionery concessions as a large crowd visited the shore. The number of bathers was not as great as during the week. The restaurants and soda and confectionery places did a good business.

Edward Fitzgerald, of Springfield, Mass., formerly of New London, spent today with relatives in this city.

The excursion of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad from Norwich to New York today carried several hundred diversion seekers from this city. The special train left here at 8 o'clock and arrived back in New London at 10:15 o'clock.

An automobile owned by Mrs. Frederick Brooks 66 West Cutt street was found by the police apparently abandoned at Ocean Beach Friday night and when no one appeared to take charge of it Saturday morning the police caused the automobile to be driven to the home of Mrs. Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drago and family, Hartford, formerly of New London, spent the week end at the Golden Spur.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, Hartford former resident of New London, are spending a few days with Mrs. Miller's mother, Mrs. Mary Kelley, 40 Reed street.

MUST FEED PRISONERS WHILE THEY ARE LOCKED UP

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23.—Captain of Police Charles A. Finney issued an order Saturday which will provide in the future for all prisoners locked up at the police station other than those arrested by New London officers, to be fed during their incarceration. The New London department sees to it that their own prisoners are fed when they are locked up for any length of time, but prisoners brought to the police station by Waterford police and state police, are always locked up, but with no provision being made to feed them. Recently a prisoner was locked up for three days without the arresting authority providing a solitary meal for the prisoner. The order of Captain Finney is that hereafter the arresting officer must arrange for the feeding of each and every prisoner.

Coast guard sailors ran wild about the city Saturday night, and as a result of their having imbibed too freely, four of their number engaged in a free-for-all and landed in cells at the police station. All are charged with intoxication and breach of the peace except one, who is charged with carrying a concealed weapon. All were released upon furnishing a surety on their respective bonds. The submarine base sailors did not escape the clutches of the law, either, for three of their number were arrested, two of them charged with breach of the peace and intoxication and a third charged with intoxication and resisting an officer.

The coast guard sailors, one a chief petty officer, James McDermitt, two others being Filipinos, and all in civilian clothes, became involved with a fourth coast guardsman, Matthew J. Ennis, on Green street. The gang entered a blind alley and finished their altercation by a fist fight. Patrolman William Manice was less than a block away when the fight started and going to the alley he found the battle waging in real earnest. Manice managed to grab Ennis and Gerado D'Tolenlino, but McDermitt and Milacio Patrico escaped. Sergeant Patrick Murphy, off duty and Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Louis Wheeler appeared on Golden street as Manice was on his way to the police station with his prisoners. They observed Patrico with a lacerated head in the crowd that collected and McDermitt, who was seen to throw an object into a nearby yard. Sergeant Hick arrested Patrico and Sergeant Murphy, recognizing McDermitt as a sailor who had been guilty of breach of the peace a few nights before, with Patrolman Wheeler, arrested McDermitt. The yard into which McDermitt threw an object was searched and a .32 calibre revolver, but not loaded, was found.

At Ocean Beach late last night and early this morning the police were kept busy handling three intoxicated submarine base sailors. Charles Smith and Gus Farmer, the latter a member of the crew of the submarine, O-2, engaged in a fight near Bentley and Stuart avenues and were arrested by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky. About 12:45 o'clock Anthony Puccerrelli, 23, a member of the crew of U. S. S. Richmond, was making a nuisance of himself and refused to leave the beach when ordered to do so by Patrolmen Dennis Murphy and Walter O'Neil. Puccerrelli was arrested, and then started to fight the officers, but the battle was of short duration for Puccerrelli was quickly subdued and locked up.

Gerald DeSanters, 16, of Waterford, was arrested Saturday by Constable Charles Brigham, Waterford constabulary, charged with the theft of an automobile tire.

John Hasler, after the experience of a couple of days in jail, will come into the police court Monday morning and tell why he pleaded not guilty Saturday, when charged with intoxication. The police who arrested him said he was drunk while in court, but John evidently was of the opinion that he could disprove what the officers represented to be the truth, so he would not admit that he had imbibed freely of liquor. The arresting officer was not in court so Hasler was compelled to wait till the officer does appear.

Liberato Buenersje, a Filipino, was charged with a breach of the peace, Saturday, in interfering with a photographer, who was endeavoring to secure for motion pictures a view of the firemen's procession as it moved along State street. The photographer was stationed near the monument in front of Bank street and the Filipino insisted upon standing in front of the lens so that the picture could not be secured. Frank Burns, his accuser, declared that the Filipino would not move to the right or left. Indeed when he was asked to step aside, he waded into the man with the photo machine and grabbing him, nearly tore the coat he wore from his back. The pair were separated and the Filipino was locked up. Burns had Charles Simmons to substantiate what he alleged and the latter told the same story that Burns related. The defense of the Filipino was that his accusers were mistaken. He said there were other men who looked like him in size and color, and he vigorously denied that he had been an offender. Burns and Simmons were very positive and they contradicted the Filipino in every assertion. Judge Crandall concluded that the Filipino was guilty and a fine of $5 was imposed.

The condition of Owen Murtha, critically ill at his home, Squire street, is reported today as being slightly improved. Mr. Murtha's son, John, formerly of New London, now residing in New York, visited his father over the week end.

Harry Kaplin, Clover court, made complaint to the police, Saturday afternoon, that the driver of automobile of New York registration, IC-5024, was guilty of evasion of responsibility. Kaplin stated that his automobile, which was parked on Main street was struck by the New York automobile and the driver failed to stop to determine the extent of damage occasioned.

The New Haven police Saturday night requested the New London police to maintain a lookout for three automobiles stolen from the streets of New Haven earlier in the night. One of the automobiles was a Jordan sedan, 1924 model, registration, A-8071 Connecticut, another was a Hudson coach, 1926 model, registration, SX-535 Connecticut, and the third was a Dodge coach, 1923 model, registration Y-604, Connecticut.

Joseph Paridis, 39, of Hartford, where he claims to be employed as a watchmaker, was arrested on Main street, Saturday night, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He was locked up and will be presented in the police court Monday morning. Paridis was near the corner of Main and Church streets, where he was loud and boisterous in his conduct. Patrolman Henry Sylvia found Paradis in that condition and arrested him.

John Billings of Waterford, who has a long police court record for intoxication, will be presented with a score of other prisoners in the police court Monday morning. Billings, who is a laborer, was about the city Saturday night and became intoxicated. He was not picked up on the street and arrested, for he managed to reach the police station and request lodging for the night. He was accommodated by being locked up, instead of being placed in the tramp room.

To Whom Shall We Go?

What avails man's "big success!"
Fame, and coveted renown,
If the way to God is lost,
And all hope is crumpled down!
What are houses in the town,
And on mountain height, or shore,
If the flame of love burns low
And the home is home no more?
What avails a world's applause
If your self-respect is dead,
And conscience pours accusing streams
Of torture on your head?
And whither can one go for aid,
With every fountain dry,
And all the gates of mercy closed,
At least to human eye?
Dejected Brother Man, look up!
God's ways are higher ways;
His gates of mercy never close
To one who humbly prays!
—Rev. William Wood.

The Scissor-Man

The beat of feet comes up the street,
The vagrant beat of a rover's feet,—

It nears, it nears, as Dan appears,
As Dan the scissor-man appears!

He bears a pack upon his back,
A novel manner of knapsack!

And as he nears, with nomad swing,
The laughing children following,

You catch a fragment of his song—
A bit of rhythm borne along

Upon the wind that wanders by,
A fond wayfarer of the sky:

"Scissors to grind! Scissors to grind!
The echoes reach before, behind.

Now a window's opened wide,
Now a curtain's thrust aside,

And now a little lady waves
Her dusting-cloth—and ends his staves

He faces toward her quizzically:
"Scissors to grind today?" asks he.

She nods and holds aloft a pair
Of scissors to his saucy stare.

He smiles. "Now I must work, alack!"
He muses and unstraps his pack.

The children gather in a ring;
They crowd about, they laugh, they sing

"Dan, Dan, the scissor-man, Sharpens things the best he can!"
—H. Thompson Rich, in "I Come Singing."

The seaweed collected along the Breton coast brings in about $5,000,000 a year. The first factory for the manufacture of iodine, its most valuable product, though seaweed is also an important source for potassium and sodium, was established as long ago as 1829 at Conquet in Britany. Since it takes a ton of fresh seaweed, approximately to make a pound of iodine, according to figures given by M. Maurice Deschiens in a recent address before the French Society of Industrial Chemistry, the huge amount of seaweed necessary to make the 50 tons of iodine turned out in Brittany in 1925 causes its collection and transportation to be one of the heavy factors of cost.

DEATHS OF SEN. FERNALD AND RUDOLPH VALENTINO

Bert M. Fernald, Crippled in Childhood, Overcame Many Obstacles in Carving His Career—Rudolph Valentino, Rose From a $50 a Week Job as a Movie "Heavy" to Become the Greatest "Matinee Idol" the Stage or Screen Has Ever Known.

WEST POLAND, Me., Aug. 23.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Bert M. Fernald died late today at his home here after an illness of ten days. He was in his 69th year.

The end had been expected for several days and all the members of his immediate family were at the bedside. These included Mrs. Fernald, their daughter, Mrs. Maurice T. Eveleth of Kennebunk, and their son, James H. Fernald of West Poland. Senator Fernald had been unconscious several hours before his death.

The first intimation that Senator Fernald's condition had become serious came ten days ago when he informed the republican state committee that he would be unable to fulfil speaking engagements during the state election campaign. After the adjournment of congress he returned home early wearied from the long and arduous session. Recently intestinal indigestion developed and on August 17 his physician, Dr. W. W. Bolster, announced that his condition was critical.

His heart became affected as a result of the intestinal malady and he passed from one crisis to another, since Saturday physicians had held little hope of his recovery.

Ever coming obstacles was a steady companion with Bert M. Fernald, who became governor of his state and one of its representatives in the United States senate. As a child he built up a crippled body until he became a skilled athlete. As a man he developed a run-down farm into one of the best in the state of Maine and taking hold of an infant industry pushed it to success. In politics he was never daunted by opposition.

Senator Fernald, who was born in West Poland, on April 3, 1858, was crippled from babyhood. After undergoing three operations he took his first steps at the age of six years. Steadfastness and gymnastic work enabled him to gain such health and strength that he became a leader in schoolboy sports.

His entry into politics came with his election to the legislature in 1897. Later he served two terms in the state senate and in 1909 he was elected governor. Maintaining an active part in republican party affairs, he was first elected to the United States senate to fill out the unexpired term of Eugene Hale of Burleigh. He was re-elected in 1914 and 1924. In the senate he served as chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds and as a member of the Arlington Memorial Bridge commission.

He was married in 1877 to Annie L. Sawtelle. His wife and his daughter, Mrs. Eveleth, secretaries during each of his political campaign. His son, James H., assisted him in his business activities. He always maintained his home on the West Poland farm.

SENATOR FERNALD HELD HIGH PLACE IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Senator Bert M. Fernald, of Maine, had nine years of service in the senate and held high place on some of its most powerful committees.

As chairman of the public buildings and grounds committee he piloted through the senate at the last session the $145,000,000 public buildings bill, the first omnibus buildings bill to be passed since before the war.

Besides this committee post he was the ranking member on the interstate commerce committee, the commerce committee, which deals with shipping problems, and also on the pensions committee.

Senator Fernald early interested himself in water way development and was foremost among those seeking development of an inland route from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico.

WILL ELECT SUCCESSOR TO SENATOR FERNALD

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Although Governor Brewster will issue no official word until after the funeral of United States Senator Bert M. Fernald who died this afternoon at West Poland, a special primary and election will be called to select a successor. The date of the primary will probably be some time in October, with the election in November.

PEN PICTURE OF DEATH OF RUDOLPH VALENTINO

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino, the greatest lover of them all in the history of motion pictures, died today.

For eight days he had waged battle with disease such as he never had to fight to vanquish his opposing forces on the screen.

In the hospital, as on the silver sheet, he had fought valiantly, his determination to win never clouding the essential cheeriness of his disposition.

The last words he ever spoke, but a few hours before he died, were said in friendly conversation with one of the doctors who had tended him since his operation for appendicitis a week ago Sunday. He said then that "the greatest thing I am looking forward to" was a fishing trip on which he invited the physician to accompany him.

Soon afterwards he lapsed into coma from which he never roused. From time to time he strained and tossed, as though there were words he wished to utter. His three doctors and two nurses bent low above him, trying to catch his meaning from the faint muttering which was all that passed his lips.

But they could make no sense of it and if Rudolph had a last message, some word to send to family or friends, to actor companions or fan admirers, his weakness forbade its delivery.

As the end approached and the priests had paved the way that Valentino might make his last journey in the manner of his faith, his business manager and close friend, S. Lucien Ullman, left the room, unable longer to withhold his grief.

And so the sheik of filmdom passed from the screen of life in the company of the tireless workers who had done all that sympathy and science and religion could do to save his life.

Valentino, who rose from a $50 a week job as a movie "heavy" to become the greatest "matinee idol" the stage or screen has ever known, came here recently to attend the premiere of a new picture in which he was starred and to see his brother off for Italy. A week ago yesterday he collapsed in his hotel suite and was rushed to Polyclinic hospital.

Examination showed him to be suffering from appendicitis and gastric ulcers and immediate operation for both was determined on. The double operation was a success but the actor's condition had become so aggravated by the time he collapsed that peritonitis set in and for several days he remained in critical condition.

By last Wednesday, however, his natural vigor semed to have won the battle and his doctors announced that no more bulletins would be issued unless there were a sudden change for the worse.

This change came Saturday night, a severe relapse due to pleurisy that developed in his left lung and gained rapid headway because of the patient's weakened condition. Throughout last night his life was held together by the slenderest of threads, every resource of the medical profession being resorted to sustain him.

At 3:30 o'clock this morning Valentino roused, smiled, and talked of the time when he would be up again. And then darkness closed in on him. Never to lift. Until the end he was without knowledge that he was to die, and death stole upon him as he lay peacefully as though in sleep.

When his condition became grave yesterday a priest heard confession and granted absolution. At 10 o'clock this morning the last rites were administered and at 12:10 o'clock, Eastern daylight time, death ended one of the most impressive careers in screen history.

Valentino's popularity, from the time of his first appearance in a leading part in "The Four Horsemen of The Apocalypse," was never dimmed. His mail was enormous and his pictures adorned the walls and dressing tables of countless boudoirs. Wherever his pictures were shown crowds of women flocked to see him fight his way through obstacles that love might triumph over all else.

Always he was a favorite with women, from girls in grammar school to elderly ladies. But the one taunt he could not stand was the suggestion that he was a "ladies' man," an effeminate. This would rouse him to wrath which sought an outlet in physical combat that his manhood might be proved.

Because he dressed in the height of fashion, or sometimes considerably in advance of it, affecting such adornments as slave bracelets and other trinkets, he was occasionally lampooned in print and picture as an exquisite with little of the "he man" in his makeup.

The most recent instance of this occurred while the actor was on his way here from the west coast on the trip that ended today in his death. While passing through Chicago he had read an editorial in the Chicago Tribune in which the writer was discoursing closely about some new theater in which pink powder puffs were available in the men's wash room. The name of Valentino was mentioned in the editorial, and the actor considered that his manhood had been insulted.

He wrote a fiery letter to the editor of the paper asking that the identity of the writer be revealed so that he might be challenged to an "American duel," boxing gloves to be used instead of pistols or swords. Receiving no reply, and being unable to delay his journey, Valentino came on to New York fuming at what he saw as a personal insult. Later he announced that he would drop the matter a sthe editorial writer's silence could only be construed as "tacit apology."

Valentino died in a room banked with the flowers that admirers had sent him from all over the country. During the eight days of his suffering, letters, telegrams and telephone calls were received at the hospital by the thousand. His illness became a matter of national interest and his hourly condition was displayed on the first pages of the newspapers. any change warranting a "steamer," so great was the public interest in his welfare.

Statesmen and men of science, great teachers and men who have swayed the masses through the spoken and written word, have been stricken and died with far less public notice than was given Valentino.

The actor had the power to inspire strong admiration and affection both in those who knew him only on the screen and those who were in close and constant contact with him. Mr. Ullman, manager and friend, had not slept for four days and nights prior to the star's death, so closely he had watched at the bedside on the chance that he might do some service. When the end came doctors ordered Mr. Ullman into complete seclusion so that the strain of the past few days might nto result in a breakdown.

VALENTINO'S BODY TAKEN TO A FUNERAL CHURCH

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—(AP)—The body of Rudolph Valentino, young lover of the silver sheet, was removed from the hospital where he died today to a funeral church through crowds which became so large that police reserves had to be called to restore order.

Covered with a cloth of gold the body was taken from the private entrance of the Polyclinic hospital in West 51st street to a Broadway funeral establishment. As word spread of what was happening hundreds flocked in from all around and when the conveyance reached the funeral church the crowds were blocking all traffic and causing great and growing confusion.

At the funeral church it was said that no plans had yet been announced for the funeral but that the gold room of the establishment where the bodies of such celebrities as Oscar Hammerstein, Anna Held and others lay in state, had been reserved. It was said that the body was being prepared by the same special process used after the death of Enrico Caruso, insuring perpetual preservation.

Before the body was removed from the hospital the death certificate, signed by the chief resident physician, was filed with the board of health. It gave the cause of death as ruptured gastric ulcer and general peritonitis with septic pneumonia and septic endocarditis as contributing causes. The certificate was made out in the name of Rodolfo Guglielmi, the screen star's real name.

It was revealed today, after he was dead, that the condition from which Valentino died, first evidenced itself six weeks ago. Doctors would not express an opinion on what chance there might have been for him to live if more immediate action had been taken.

Dr. Harold D. Meeker, one of the doctors who attended the screen star, said that six weeks ago the actor complained of stomach trouble but had not considered it anything serious. Dr. Meeker believed that this was in fact the first appearance of the gastric ulcer which caused collapse and ultimate death.

VALENTINO EXPRESSED DESIRE TO DIE YOUNG

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino, who died today in New York, had a premonition of an early death and welcomed it in preference to living to a decrepit old age, it was revealed here today by John W. Considine, producer of his pictures.

Considine said: "Valentino several times remarked to me, 'I shall die young. I know it, and I shall not be sorry, I would hate to live to be an old man.'

"Valentino's prophecy has been fulfilled, but it has been a terrific blow to his friends. I found Rudolph a man of great courage and unquenchable spirit. He will be greatly missed."

The death of the "movie shiek," occasioned a signed statement of sympathy from his close friend, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco.

"He was one of those men who captivated me and his death will be a shock to everyone," said Mayor Rolph.

Gouerner Morris said that Valentino's passing "means a terrible loss to art." "He was an excellent actor and a fine fellow," the author added.

FARMERS STRONGER THAN EVER FOR PROHIBITION

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The farmers of the United States are "stronger than ever" for law enforcement, particularly the prohibition law, President Coolidge was told today by Louis J. Taber, of Columbus, Ohio, master of the national grange.

The grange, Mr. Taber asserted, supports the efforts of General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, to enforce the eighteenth amendment. It is Mr. Taber's opinion that Mr. Andrews is "beginning to plug up the rat-holes."

Discussing his prohibition views after talking with the president, Mr. Taber said a recent visit to Europe had convinced him "America must stay dry." After observing the low living standards, low wages and long hours of labor that prevail in some of the European countries where liquor is sold, Mr. Taber said he had returned to the United States "a lot drier," than he went.

His travels abroad, Mr. Taber continued, had convinced him that "we can do everything else better in America except drink liquor and obey the law."

Nothing he had tasted in Europe, he observed, could compare with "a glass of Mrs. Taber's unfermented grape juice."

DECISION MAY REOPEN CASE OF RUM SHIP UNDERWRITER

HARTFORD, Aug. 23.—(AP)—With the decision of the Boston circuit court of appeals, handed down last week, to the effect that American ships may not be seized beyond the 12-mile limit, U. S. Attorney John Buckley, of Connecticut, predicted today a re-opening of the rum-runner Underwriter case, this time, the third, in the U. S. supreme court. Counsel for the defense in this case has communicated with the federal attorneys his intention of appealing from the decision of the New York circuit court of appeals, in which seizure of American vessels anywhere on the high seas was ruled legal.

The decision of the Boston court, according to Attorney Buckley, will force consideration of the Underwriter case by the supreme court. At present, ships may not be seized outside the 12-mile limit off Massachusetts shores and dry cruisers operating from Connecticut bases may seize anywhere.

Labor Leaders Guests Summer White House

Made an Informal Report of the Industrial Situation to President Coolidge.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP)—A report on the industrial situation of the country was made informally to President Coolidge today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and members of his executive council, showing that in most trades conditions are "reasonable satisfactory."

The federation officials were guests of Mr. Coolidge at luncheon at White Pine camp, coming here from Plattsburg where they have been for several days prior to going to Montreal for a council meeting.

With them at luncheon also was Louis J. Taber, master of the national grange, who was a guest of the president today and who reported on conditions in the farm sections while the labor men spoke of the situation in the manufacturing centers.

Among the courses served was pickerel, which Mr. Coolidge explained he had caught in Lake Osgood.

Asserting that no politics was discussed, Mr. Green said:

"It was a purely social visit in response to the president's invitation. We don't want anything, and we merely came to pay our respects."

The labor leaders later accompanied the president to the executive offices and were photographed with him, after which they turned to newspaper correspondents and discussed conditions.

Some unemployment and some depression exists in the industrial field, Mr. Green said, mentioning bituminous coal, textiles, shoes and trucking and hauling as examples.

It was suggested by Mr. Green that both the textile and bituminous coal industries were still feeling the effects of greatly stimulated production during the war, while Daniel J. Tobin, president of the Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, said over-production, due to modern machinery, coupled with a lowering of the purchasing power of Europe had brought about a depression in trucking and hauling.

It was not whether the principles of the Watson-Parker railway labor act for government supervision in certain contingencies of the adjustment of labor disputes by joint committees or the carriers and the men, could be applied to other industries, Mr. Green answered in the negative. It is a satisfactory arrangement for the railroad industry, he added, but would "have no chance" in the coal or other industries. So far as he knew, he said, no efforts were being made to extend it from the railroad to other fields.

With Mr. Green as white house luncheon guests were Frank Morrison, secretary, and Mr. Tobin, treasurer, of the Labor Federation; Peter J. Brady, president of the Federation Bank and Trust company, of New York city, and the following vice presidents of the labor federations: Frank Duffy, secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners; T. A. Richert, president of the United Garment Workers; James A. Wilson, president of the Pattern Makers league of North America; Martin F. Ryan, president of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

They returned to Plattsburg late today, being escorted by state troopers, who have been ordered by Governor Smith to accompany the delegation during their stay in New York state.

Turning to other questions tomorrow, President Coolidge is to receive Representative Madden, republican, Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, who is to discuss the 1928 budget situation.

Political questions will be considered Wednesday when Representative Will R. Wood, republican, Indiana, chairman of the republican congressional campaign committee, will arrive at the summer white house for a report on the campaign.

BREAK IN THE STRIKE OF BRITISH COAL MINERS

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The suspension of coal digging in England which has lasted four months was broken today, and coal was brought up from the mines in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire. About 6,000 miners, in defiance of their official leaders, descended into the pits and resumed work on the 7 1-2 hour day basis.

In the meantime A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners' federation, and his associates, are working hard to prevent the growth of this breakaway, which, however, has not been on such a big scale as the owners had hoped.

The break in the miners' ranks is limited to the two counties named; there is still no sign of the men yielding in Northumberland, Yorkshire or South Wales.

It is evident that there is no present intention on the part of the government to intervene in the dispute in any way, the belief prevailing among the owners and ministers that the example of the miners in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire, will soon be followed in other coal fields.

Mr. Cook, in a review of the situation, asserted that the breakaway had been definitely stemmed. While many thousands had signed on, he declared they did so under his apprehension of the terms and we reconsidered their action.

$45,000,000 SUIT AGAINST ALUMINUM CO. OF AMERICA

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—(AP)—The Aluminum company of America must defend itself against a suit for $45,000,000 brought by George D. Haskell, of Springfield, Mass.

Haskell, president of the Bausch Machine and Tool company, today started suit in federal court for that amount, alleging that as a result of an alleged conspiracy between officers and directors of the Aluminum company and the late James B. Duke, he suffered damages estimated at $15,000,000.00. Three times the estimate of actual loss is demanded under the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Haskell alleged that the Aluminum company "maintains a monopoly of trade and commerce in crude and semi-finished aluminum." The suit is brought under this allegation of monopoly.

Other defendants named are Arthur V. Davis, president, George H. Clapp, David L. Gillespie, Roy A. Hunt and Alvah K. Laurie, directors, and Richard B. Mellon, secretary-treasurer of the Aluminum company of America, George G. Allen, of Scarsdale and New York city, and two other executors of Mr. Duke's last will—William R. Perkins, of Montclair, N. J., Nanaline Dyke, of Hillsboro, N. J.

Greek Currency is Showing Stronger

Exchange Market Reflects Confidence in Financial Quarters in New Govt.

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Greece is settling down comfortably with her eighth revolution since the beginning of the century. Demonstrations have been held in the principal cities acclaiming the coup of General Condylis, who overthrew President Pangalos and his government early Sunday, and denouncing the shortcomings and errors of the Pangalos regime.

Pangalos has been brought back to Athens as a prisoner, having been captured after his attempt to escape from the island of Spetzae on the Destroyer Pergamos.

Greek currency, which the policy of the deposed government failed to improve, has quickly responded to the new conditions, showing a strong upward tendency on the exchange market today, reflecting confidence in financial quarters.

The newspapers which suffered heavily under the suppressive policy of Pangalos, are pleased at their new-found freedom.

The circumstances of the deposed president's attempt to escape aboard the Pergamos and his efforts to hide in the wireless turret on the destroyer, as related here, have made him ridiculous in the eyes of the general public. Almost the only governmental action for which he is given credit is the conclusion of the Balkan agreements, particularly with Jugoslavia, and it is understood that General Condylis intends to carry out all these agreements and maintain the foreign policy on the same lines as Pangalos so far as the Balkans are concerned.

Two of the president's aides were also arrested aboard the Pergamos, which was overtaken by the Battleship Leon and threatened with destruction if it did not surrender.

SUITS AGAINST GOODYEAR TIRE AND RUBBER COMPANY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 23.—(AP)—G. Walter Booth, prosecuting attorney of Summit county, today field suits in the state supreme court, one to oust the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron from doing business in the state and the other to oust the board of the directors of the company, consisting of eight men, on the ground that the company's reorganization in 1921 was unlawful.

The illegality complained of is in the issuance of 10,000 shares of "management stock" to three persons as joint tenants who are allowed to exercise control in the management, electing the board of directors. This stock with $1 value per share, according to the prosecutor, is in fact only preferred stock which should have $5 par value. The issuance of such stock is declared to be illegal.

The directors sought to be ousted are E. G. Wilmer, P. W. Litchfield, J. R. Nutt, F. K. Espenham, Karl H. Behr, C. F. Stone, R. C. Schaffner and A. A. Schlesinger.

In a statement Prosecutor Booth said the suits were instituted on complaints and on the request of a stockholder of the company and are for the purpose of taking control of the company "away from Wall street."

2,000 AVIATORS TO ATTEND CONVENTION IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Two thousand aviators will attend the annual convention of the National Aeronautic association, which will be held here beginning September 7 in conjunction with the national air races.

One of the important matters to come before the convention will be the appointment of a national committee to draft a plan whereby the youth of the country may be taught aeronautics in high schools, state colleges and similar institutions. The plan, as outlined, will provide for a membership campaign and a nation wide system of organizing courses, students' clubs and lecture bueaurs. It is expected that state boards of education will be asked to draft their own program to be incorporated in future legislation.

The annual election of officers will take place September 9. Among those mentioned as presidential candidates are Colonel William Mitchell and Commander Richard E. Byrd, Colonel Mitchell is sponsored by the New York delegation and Commander Byrd by the Boston chapter.

CANNING OF FRUIT AND VEGETABLES ADVOCATED

HARTFORD, Aug. 23.—(AP)— Home canning of vegetables and fruit is advocated by the state department of health, which urges "preserving" to insure balanced diet during the winter in a bulletin issued today. "One of the good results of war-time propaganda," the bulletin says, "is the widespread custom of canning all surplus fruits and vegetables. Wise families have increased their garden area to include extra rows of vegetables for this purpose."

Accepted methods of canning and schedules for various processes, compiled by the Connecticut Agricultural college, are explained in the bulletin.

BRIDGEPORT GIRL WAS ATTACKED BY A MAN

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Robert Brown, 53, Washington terrace, reported to the detective bureau tonight that his daughter, Mary Brown, 19, had been attacked by an unknown man at Washington terrace and Park avenue. The incident occurred at 10 o'clock but was not reported to the detective bureau until after 11 o'clock.

The girl continued on her way home and told her mother who relayed it to the father who then called the police. Detectives investigating found that the girl had been accosted by the man who grabbed her after she had passed him. Detectives do not ascribe him as being the "phantom stabber."

FRANCE HAS OBTAINED A LOAN IN SWITZERLAND

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—France has obtained a loan in Switzerland.

A ministerial decree issued tonight approves a contract entered into between Raymond Poincare, premier and minister of finance, and the Swiss credit bank of Zurich for a 60,000,000 Swiss francs loan. The current value of the Swiss franc is 19.20 cents.

The loan agreement provides for seven per cent interest and amortization within 25 years.

RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSY IN MEXICO IS NOT SETTLED

The Roman Catholic Episcopate Has Unanimously Decided Not to Resume Church Services for the Present—Situation is to Remain the Same as Before the Conference Saturday Night—Action Was Influenced by a Statement Attributed to President Calles—Boycott Will Continue While Catholic Church Leaders Discuss Plans for Congressional Campaign With the Object of Amending the Constitution.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Hopes for a speedy settlement of the religious controversy were crushed today when the Roman Catholic episcopate unanimously decided not to resume church services for the present.

The situation as regards the church and the government remains the same as before the conference held Saturday night between President Calles and the representatives of the episcopate. The boycott will continue, and in the meantime the Catholic church leaders will discuss plans for a congressional campaign with the object of amending the constitution.

No date has been fixed for further conferences with the president and there is some uncertainty as to whether there will be any more.

Bishop Diaz, secretary of the episcopate, in announcing the decision, declared that it was considerably influenced by the statement attributed to President Calles by the newspaper El Universal this morning, in which the president was quoted as saying: "If the priests return to the temples they must do so subject to the laws."

In view of the episcopate, this does not harmonize with the attitude taken by the president Saturday night, and the episcopate at its meeting this morning decided that it leaves the situation precisely as it was before, and that the church's constant and unqualified position was that it cannot accept these laws.

There are indications that the decision was also influenced by the strong belief in certain Catholic circles that the episcopate's statement regarding Saturday's conference was issued too hastily and that the church should not commit itself to the resumption of services without more definite promises from the government. The original statement declared that the conference with the president had been "truly satisfactory," and that after the regulation requiring registration of priests had been complied with it was hoped church services could be resumed.

The episcopate's formal statement after its meeting today says:

"The situation continues the same as before the conference with President Calles. Services will not be resumed, because it is necessary not only to discover a method to give instructions to priests without sacrificing the rights of the church, but also to discover how to obviate the destruction of liberty of conscience by these laws pending their amendment or repeal through congress. Methods of taking this question to the chamber are being discussed."

STEVENS AND CARPENDER LOSE FIRST MOVE FOR BAIL

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Willie Stevens and Henry De La Bruyere Carpender, held in Somerset county jail at Somerville, on charges that they murdered the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, today lost their first move for release on bail.

It was pointed out by Chief Justice William S. Gummere of the supreme court, before whom the appeal was made, that the motion should be made before Justice Charles W. Parker, whose circuit includes Somerset county, the scene of the murders and where the prisoners were held last week, committed without bail for the grand jury.

Robert H. McCarter, chief of defense counsel, made efforts to communicate with Justice Parker in Northeast Harbor, Maine, the justice could not be reached personally on the long distance telephone, it was said at McCarter's office, and a reply was not expected before tomorrow morning.

Justice Parker is spending his vacation in Maine. He had advised Justice Gummere, following the latter's action in releasing Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, also charged with the double murder, in $15,000 bail, that he desired to act personally on any further motions and that he would curtail his vacation if necessary.

Mrs. Hall is the widow of the slain minister, Stevens is her brother and Carpender her cousin.

Associated defense counsel, embarrassed by the also brusque refusal of Justice Bummere to listen to the motion, retired to the McCarter offices for a conference.

"Why bring the application before me?" the chief justice had asked.

"I had been told your honor, that Justice Parker would not be home until Labor Day," replied McCarter.

"I might have heard your application if you had advised me before of your intention to make it," the court declared.

McCarter, flushing, replied that he did not want to bother the chief justice at his summer home. This was interrupted with the remark: "Which I remember."

CAMP MEETING WEEK ENDS WITH MANY AT SERVICES

The closing servicds of the camp meeting was held in the tabernacle at 7:30 Sunday evening. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Norwich and prayer was offered by Rev. Frank W. Gray of Burnside.

District Supt. Genter, in making the announcements, expressed his sincere gratification that the offerings of the morning and afternoon had gone beyond the figure asked for. Signor Mario Capelli sang "There Is No Death" (sung at the burial of the unknown soldier in Washington); "I Have Done My Work", and "O Dry Those Tears," receiving a very insistent encore at the close of each number.

The preacher of the evening was Rev. Milton S. Rees, D. D., whose subject was "Pilate's Question", which, when the crowds had asked for the release of the notorious Barabbas, was presented in the words: "What shall I do then with Jesus who is called Christ?" The trial of Jesus did not end with Pilate's action. It is going on now. We all have an attitude toward Jesus Christ and we belong to one of five groups:

1. The group represented by Judas who sold his Lord for $16.66.
2. The group represented by Peter, who was frightened and denied his Lord.
3. The group represented by Pilate, who tried to be neutral.
4. The group represented by the mob which cried, "Away with Him!"
5. The group which accepts him as Friends to crown Him as king of kings and lord of lords. The preacher made an earnest appeal to his hearers to decide this question with due consideration of what our decision will mean to our children and others whom our lives will influence. An impressive altar service followed. The service closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" the benediction was pronounced by Rev. M. E. Genter, district superintendent.

The crowd attending camp meeting on Sunday was the largest seen on these grounds in many years. There were four policemen on duty, but no disorder of any kind claimed their attention. Besides the regular officer, F. H. Bushnell of Norwich Town, the following were added: S. Leonard Geer, George Palmer and Kingsley Luce, all of Willimantic.

The boarding house served 300 at dinner Sunday. It has been a good week there; the manager, A. D. Zabriskie told the Bulletin representative and the patronage has been the best in years. Complimentary remarks overheard, indicated that the service has been eminently satisfactory to patrons.

The flowers which have beautified the preachers' platform in both the tabernacle and the outdoor auditoriums have been greatly admired. They included, petunias, begonias and coleus and were arranged by the committee which included Mrs M. E Genter of Norwich, Mrs. S. M Dunstan of Willimantic and Mrs William Ellwood of New London.

The executive committee of the Stafford Springs House association for the ensuing year has been chosen to include the following: Rev. Frank Chamberlain, of Hope, R. I.; Rev. J. M. Von Deck of Oneco; Everett Huntington of East Thompson; L. P. Walmsley of Quidnick, R. I.; and Mrs. W. A. Bruce of Stafford Springs.

The Saturday evening service at 7:30 was held in the Tabernacle. Following the song service, prayer was offered by Dr. Rees. Following the offering, Dr. Frick gave his lecture on Nightingale Island. It was an eloquent and interesting discourse which held the audience spellbound to the close. Signor Mario Capelli, distinguished world concert tenor, was introduced. Preceding his numbers, he spoke words of greeting in which he mentioned that he is a graduate of the Methodist college in Rome and in a recent visit to Italy had learned that the Italian government, including Premier Mussolini, contrary to some rumors in this country, is not only viewing this great school with favor but has given assurance that this school will be allowed to remain in its present beautiful location, so long as the Methodists desire to keep it there. He then sang a group of songs greatly appreciated and long and continously applauded.

The Sunday) Love Feast was held at 7 a. m. in charge of Rev. F. C. Baker, who read Isaiah 12:1-1-2 and offered prayer. One who sat in the audience and kept account reported that there were 97 testimonies and 32 songs in the course of this very inspiring and helpful service.

A large congregation gathered in the outdoor auditorium for the public service at 10:30. Rev. M. E. Genter, district superintendent offered the invocation, and the hymn, Holy, Holy, Holy, was sung. Following the recitation of the Apostles' Creed, prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. G. H. Spencer of Boston and the Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Mr. Davenport of Mystic. A solo was sung by Mr. Capelli.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Spaulding was presented as in charge of the offering and he announced that he was entrusted with the privilege of raising the balance needed to pay all the bills and only the small sum of $1,000 was needed. He admitted that this was double the amount asked for last year, but this is accounted for by the fact that repairs have been made at the entrance during the year where nothing has been done before for 14 years, these costing $425; the program this year has cost $75 more than last year. Then for several minutes of impulsive appeal, jubilant expressions, and singing of thanksgiving the work proceeded keeping busy the nine lieutenants whom Dr. Spaulding had appointed and requiring the naming of a tenth one to complete the task of bringing in the offerings from the people. This part of the service closed with a prayer and the announcement that a little more than $900 had been received in cash and subscriptions.

Mr. Capelli sang another selection and the hymn, I know whom I have believed was sung.

Rev. Philip L. Frick, D. D. of Schenectady, N. Y., was the preacher. His able sermon based on words found in Revelation 2:17. To him that overcometh, to him will I give the hidden manna, and I will give him a white stone and upon the stone a new name written which no one knoweth but he that receiveth it." Posterity knows Polycarp as Martyr, Cromwell as Com-

CORONER ORDERS HUGHES HELD FOR COUSIN'S DEATH

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 23—Thomas Hughes, 28, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, was ordered held by Coroner Arthur G. Bill today and eventually is likely to face a charge of manslaughter, the coroner said. Hughes, who has a fractured skull, was regarded today as likely to recover from the effects of an accident that happened while he was driving a car Sunday morning at Attawaugan, in which accident his cousin, Lawrence Hughes, 30, of Webster, was instantly killed.

At the inquest started by Coroner Bill this morning at his office here Stanley Kulbracki, Webster, who escaped uninjured from the wreck of the car Hughes was driving, told of events leading up to the accident and of how the members of the party had engaged in a debauch that began Saturday night in Webster and during which quantities of moonshine and beer were consumed. Kulbacki told the coroner that he and the Hughes men went to a carnival and then proceeded to consume liquor and beer. They spent a part of the night in a secluded place, sleeping off partially the effects of the liquor, and then were aroused by Kulbacki and started out after more stuff to drink.

Having procured it and indulged themselves, the car was headed down toward Putnam, where considerable time was spent before starting off on another jaunt toward Danielson. They came to this place, rode around for a time and then started back toward Putnam. According to Kulbacki's story to Coroner Bill, Thomas Hughes, the driver had by this time become so grossly intoxicated that the car was zig-zagging along the highway and traveling at an excessive rate of speed. Kulbacki testified that he pleaded with Hughes to drive with more care, as did Hughes' cousin, but the two were told to mind their own affairs as he would drive to suit himself. Soon thereafter the car made a swerving plunge and crashed into the car of John Perry that was parked and unoccupied beside the highway at Welch's store in Attawaugan. Kulbacki, riding in the rear seat of the car alone, escaped without injury of any consequence. Kulbacki appeared wholly frank in relating to Coroner Bill the various incidents leading up to the accident. Among other things he related that the car in which his party was riding had been rented in Webster.

Coroner Bill will proceed against Hughes at the earliest opportunity.

WAUREGAN EX-SERVICE MEN DENOUNCE K. K. K. VANDALISM

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 23—Twenty-four members of the Sacred Heart parish of Wauregan, who are former service men, have drawn up resolutions denouncing the act of vandalism committed at the church property last week when the letters K. K. K. were painted on the church walk. These resolutions, it was said today, may eventually become a part of the records in the case against the three Brooklyn young men who were arrested for the painting at Wauregan and who have since been fined and sentenced to jail and have taken an appeal to the superior court. Orville Baker, who has admitted he is a captain in the Ku Klux Klan, has stated that he participated in the painting done at the Sacred Heart church property.

In Wauregan, indignation is at a high pitch and it is not all confined by any means to people of the Catholic faith in fact it appears to be very general and this is true also of much of the surrounding territory. The village of Wauregan, founded by dignified and refined men who were leaders in this industrial section, has been brought into very unenviable notoriety by the recent transaction. The Hartford Transcript, which circulates among the 500,000 Catholics of Connecticut, said editorially in regard to the low occurrence: This gratuitious painting throughout eastern Connecticut is being done, let it be remembered, in the twentieth century—at the beginning of the second quarter of said century. It is being done in the state of Connecticut, a Revolutionary colony, a state which justly prides itself upon its enlightenment and fidelity to every American ideal. The Wauregan Klan is beyond all doubt an exceptionally distinguished body. Its patriotism, if it continues to run to white paint, will afford a splendid example in citizenship not only to the town itself but to all the towns and villages throughout eastern Connecticut.

Residents of the town of Brooklyn will learn with pleasure that the forthcoming annual town reports will show a reduction of $3,571.15, in the indebtedness of the town during the fiscal year just closed. The following statement prepared by E. C. Babson shows the town debt, as of August 17, as $22,826.31:

Liabilities

New bonds, payable $1,500 yearly, $20,000; old bond due 1926, $5,00; interest on old bond to Oct. 1, 1926, $100; interest on new bonds to Oct. 1 1926, $875; checks out not cashed, $704.65; total $42,739.65.

Assets

Sinking fund old bond, $5,151.11; due from W. Slater, $88.85; due from C. Weldon, $35; due from W. Lapike, $250; due from St. James' mission, $30; due from Hawkins & Son, $35; due from Hobbins est., $950; due from Hampton, $25; estimate return dog tax, $300; estimate return for high school, $3,000; estimate return for enumeration $900; cash in Danielson Trust Co., $9,331.22; cash in Windham County National bank $7,246.65; cash on hand $349.50; total $22,913.34; net indebtedness, Aug. 17, 1926, $22,826.31; debt, Aug. 7, 1925 $26,297.46; debt, Aug. 17, 1926, $22,826.31; being a reduction, $3,571.15.

There is good news for numerous residents of Danielson and other sections of the town of Killingly in the announcement of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company that it is discussing plans for the adjustments of deferred dividends on its preferred stock, considerable amounts of which are owned in this vicinity. No dividends on this particular issue have been received since 1920, though dividends on other issues have been paid. A letter mailed to stockholders reads as follows: "Your company," the letter said in substance "is not now in a position to pay off these deferred dividends in cash. One possible adjustment under consideration is to issue to holders of preferred stock a preferred stock with a value substantially equal to the amount of these dividends.

"Whatever plan may be devised will be submitted with full details and explanations to stockholders for their individual consideration. No plan will be adopted unless approved by large percentages of the company's stock."

Goodyear, the world's largest tire manufacturer, also reported earnings for the first half of 1926 showing a net income of $4,014,873 after all charges but before payment of dividends. Net sales of all Goodyear companies, including foreign, were $114,758,954 for the period. Net sales of the company exclusive of subsidiaries were $97,885,-136.

In this statement to stockholders, P. W. Litchfield, president, in part says: "These earnings were attained without the use of any part of the special raw material reserve set aside on Dec. 31, 1925. However, inventories on hand June 30, 1926, have been written down to market by applying $5,185,936 of such special raw material reserve which has been correspondingly reduced to $2,314,064. This remains as provision for such contingencies as may arise in the last half of the year."

The condensed consolidated balance sheet as of June 30, 1926, shows total assets of $189,483,136. Current assets totaled $72,878,743, including including inventories of $49,463,513; accounts and notes receivable (less reserve) $18,868,-337 and cash amounting to $4,547,192. Current liabilities amounted to $15,-526,049, including accounts payable $7,-167,526; rubber acceptances payable $7,389,000 and accrued interest, etc., $969,521.

At the plant of the Jacobs Mfg. company it was stated Monday afternoon that W. Irving Bullard will be in Danielson a greater part of his time in the future than he has been for a number of years. Mr. Bullard has resigned as vice-president of the Merchants National bank in Boston and is to open an office in the chamber of commerce building in that city. Considerable of his attention will be given to the affairs of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, with which he is closely identified. Mr. Pullard is the vice-president and general manager of the Jacobs Mfg. company, a director of the Connecticut Mills and of the Quinebaug and Wauregan companies. These connections and a directorship in the Danielson Trust company will claim a considerable part of the time in Danielson.

AN OPEN MIND MAY LEAD TO A FIND

UNLESS you have crammed a load of Prince Albert into that favorite pipe of yours, you simply haven't given your pipe a chance to do its stuff. No matter how contented you may think you are, there's a revelation in store for you—in the store where they sell P. A.!

On a sporting chance, you might say, thousands of others have tried Prince Albert. They've stayed with it! Because—they found P. A. cool as a breeze on a hill-top; sweet as a raise in pay; fragrant as springtime flowers. It didn't bite and it didn't parch.

There's one big reason for all of this! Prince Albert is real, blown-in-the-bottle quality tobacco. No other tobacco is like it—in fragrance, taste and performance in a pipe. That's why P. A. is known as the National Joy Smoke wherever pipes are smoked.

Keep an open mind on this subject. Maybe, after all, there is something to the wonderful tales you've been hearing about jimmy-pipe joy. Maybe? Why, there's no question about it. We know you've been missing the time of your life if you don't know Prince Albert.

P. A. is sold everywhere in lilty red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

THIN CHILDREN ARE SICK

O'Brien Boy Gains 11 Pounds With New Form of Natural Flesh Builder

It is not natural for children to be thin and scrawny. If they are well and healthy, they should be gaining weight right up to their twentieth year.

Many children, however, with their young delicate digestive organs do not get from their daily food the vital elements of life itself—the important vitamins and the organic salts of lime, iron and phosphorous.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months he gained eleven and one-half pounds and feels and looks one hundred per cent better. And what brought him back to sturdy strength was the new concentrated form of Cod Liver Extract known as McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Every physician, and mother, too, knows that as a body builder and appetite creator that nothing can compare with Cod Liver Extract. But its nasty, fishy taste and odor have prevented many children from enjoying its benefits. Now Science has removed all the disadvantages for in McCoy's Tablets you can give them all the vital food factors of Cod Livers and at the same time other valuable and well-known body builders.

The results from the use of McCoy's Tablets have been so remarkable in literally thousands of cases that they are now sold by Lee & Osgood Co. or your favorite druggist anywhere with a specific guarantee that if you do not add at least 5 pounds of healthy flesh after 30 days' use your money will be instantly refunded.

Don't let the lack of the vital elements of strength and health spoil your child's future life. Remember as his health is built in youth depends his health in old age. Assure him of a sound foundation, for a strong virile body, by giving him McCoy's Tablets today. 60 tablets 60 cents.

ROBBING THE FARMERS

Attention is called by the Bristol Press to the gross injustice that is done the farmers by the automobilists who drive into the country and raid the farm lands of whatever they desire, whether it be fruit, vegetables, berries or other crops and concludes with these words: "The farmer does not complain of the littering of his premises with picnic parties who leave all of their refuse lying near his home to be cleaned up by him, but he does strenuously object to being robbed of the fruits of his labor."

What the Press has to say about the exploitation of the farmers because of the acts of the pilfering autoists is by no means exaggerated. They suffer large losses every year at the hands of those who would be highly incensed should a person remove any piece of the equipment of their car while it happened to be standing by the roadside, but in addition they are obliged to stand the tearing down of stone walls, the leaving open of gates and barways for the cattle to stray into the highways or enclosures where they can do much damage to crops, the cutting down of trees and the starting of fires which may or may not do much damage. But we do not believe that the farmer welcomes the picnic party which displays its gratitude for privileges allowed by leaving tin cans, papers, boxes and other rubbish along the roadside or in the groves where the picnic is held.

The farmer doesn't like to be imposed upon any more than he likes to be rooked. In most instances he is tolerant and generous but it is only natural that he should resent being robbed of his possessions were subject to the whims and acts of others without protest.

Because it is easy for the autoist to leave and get away from fields where the crops of the farmers are for most part unprotected makes such a course all the more displicable. The farmer has the best of reasons for commencing at such treatment and to censuring the practice of leaving refuse on his property.

HIGHWAY SIGNS

Those who use the highways will be hearing in sympathy with the appeal which has been made by the American Automobile association for the improvement of the practice of commercializing warning signs with business signboards. The objection is raised to such signs as those which urge drivers to slow down to get refreshments or persons just ahead, and the objection is based on the fact that because such warnings are for business purposes no proper attention is paid to those warnings which are intended to call attention to bad curves, grades and narrow bridges. The idea that the Shell may or may not refer to a road condition causes too little attention to be given to danger signs.

Without doubt there are many instances where there should be more signboards giving warnings of bad curves, dangerous hills and intersecting highways. It is only fair in the interest of high..ay safety that the drivers should know what they have to contend with and even to have the direction of the curves given in order to prepare themselves and others, but with numerous business signboards the danger lies in the similarity between those which do should obey and those which do need pay no attention to, with the result that sooner or later they are all being disregarded.

The combination of the big signboards which obstruct the view and now the scenery as well underway. There are a few enough which need to be removed but no new ones are being erected. As to the small signs giving information as to hotels and eating places they serve their purpose and render a certain amount of assistance, but all that is possible without placing signs which interfere, perhaps unintentionally, with the legitimate and necessary highway warnings. The effort to have them removed should be a sufficient notice to those who are responsible for them to remove the objectionable features. If they do not act upon the appeal thus given they are likely to be forced to comply with that and possibly other restrictions through legislative action.

SOCIAL EFFECT IN ELECTRICAL POWER

Years ago certain economists of individualistic leanings predicted decentralization in industry as one of the results of the cheapening of electric power. The socialist schools of economics, on the other hand, perceived in electric power a coming serious physical obstacle to state monopoly of industry, which they had held to be inevitable because of the public's fear of private combines. The forecasts of the theorists are being confirmed by the course of events. The public utilities of the middle west report after a joint investigation, that electricity is decentralizing industry and checking the drift of the country population to the cities.

Factories and shops can be established in the country amid pleasant surroundings. The workers need not be deprived of fresh air, and the city itself can be made clean and wholesome by the abolition of smoke and soot and the cultivation of trees and grass. Thus the use of electric power and of the motor car and motor truck as well, makes life in small towns and villages more agreeable and stimulating, and at the same time decentralizes industry and business in the city itself.

There are some industrialists who believe that in time the farms and factories will be joined; that farmers will devote part of their enforced leisure to remunerative employment in small industrial establishments, and that industrial technique will be revolutionized by electric power and automotive vehicles.

This may sound utopian, but already significant facts and figures foreshadow the transformation of the farm, the village, the suburb and the city by rapid development of superpower and new instrumentalities of transportation and communication.

COUNTY FAIRS

The county fairs are right in front of us and for the next month will hold forth quite generally. In Canada they have already started. In northern New England they are underway this week and from now on there will be few localities in New England where it will be impossible to find a state, county, local or grange fair from now until the last of November.

Fairs are the great gathering places for the people of the countryside. They are the magnets that draw for miles around for purposes of recreation, visitation and education.

Fairs, like other things, undergo their changes. They must keep up with the demands of the times and they must meet as far as possible the competition of other similar attractions. They have been maintained for scores of years and there should be no thought that they are not going to be maintained and made bigger and better in keeping with conditions and demands.

No community of county can afford to be indifferent to such an attraction. The value of a fair needs to be recognized and its benefits cultivated. The increase in the number of the fairs indicates the reaction of public sentiment. There is need for such get togethers. It is important to the agricultural interests that they have a chance to exchange views and see what others are doing in their particular lines, whether it is truck gardening, dairying, sheep raising or the production of corn and potatoes.

And yet there is need for a day off now and then from the farm routine and a fair furnishes an admirable outdoor entertainment with its displays, shows and horse races. The fairs serve an excellent purpose and there should be every encouragement given to make each succeeding one better than that which has gone.

DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT

For many years Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Havard, has stood out as one of the great leaders of the country. His career has been a most creditable one. How well he was qualified for educational service is indicated by his selection at the age of 35 to be the president of Harvard university, a distinction of no slight importance. But the judgment that placed him in that position was thoroughly justified during the 40 years which he served as the head of the institution. But when he retired 17 years ago his services as a leader in the public eye was by no means finished. He continued to give expression to his views upon public questions and his counsel and judgment were persistently sought upon all matters of national importance.

It is a magnificent record which he has created for the institution and himself in the matters of national importance.

It is a magnificent record which he has created for the institution and himself in the manner in which he administered the university at Cambridge. The estimate which the institution itself placed upon it is shown by the action in making him president emeritus, and his death means a distinct loss to university, state and nation. A man of strong convictions, of highest purposes, of straight thinking he was permitted to shed his influence for more than four score and ten years to the benefit of those who came in contact with him and to the edification of those who studied his views. He was a remarkable man in his declining as well as in his early years. The country is better because he lived and there will be widespread regret at his passing.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

After reading an article on Music as an Essential in Life, I realised that I was not being fair to myself in regard to good music, that I was not hearing nearly so much of it as is necessary for the development of a really well-rounded character. That was on last Thursday, and, as a first move in the right direction, I called up Frank Freeman and asked him to come out in the evening and play to me.

"How so?" he said laughing.

"Perhaps it does seem a funny request, Frank, but the fact is my soul craves music, and I thought it would be delightful to hear you play some this evening. I have no other friend whose touch on the piano is so satisfying as yours, and I'm just in the mood for Chopin."

"Oh, do you love Chopin, too, Lucile? I'm almost maudlin over Chopin myself." There was so much pleasure in his voice that I felt repaid for having remembered his favorite composer. It does pay to make mental notes of the hobbies of one's friends, I think.

"I'm sorry, though," he continued, "that I can't accept your flattering invitation for tonight, Lucile, for I have a business engagement, but if you're still in the same mind I'll run out some time next week and let you hear me drum. In the meantime, how about the Symphony concert on Saturday evening? I have tickets, and I'll be mighty glad if you can go. I think the program is going to be extra extra, so I hope you have no previous date."

"Indeed, I can go, Frank, and I shall love to," I answered enthusiastically, and later in the day I telephoned Betty that something important had arisen that would prevent my going to her house to dinner on Saturday.

"But, Lucile," she said petulantly, "if you hadn't encouraged me by offering to help I should not have invited all the clan to celebrate Bob's birthday. I don't see how you can stay away."

"It's just too bad, dear, but these mixups will happen sometimes, no matter how hard we try to keep all our engagements, won't they?" I replied sweetly, although I was secretly glad to escape a tiresome family dinner.

Mother gave an exclamation of pleasure as she was going through her mail on Friday morning. "How nice; Mrs. MacDermine has sent her ticket for the concert this afternoon."

"For the symphony?" I asked eagerly.

"Yes, Lucile. She says for any one or us to use it."

"Oh, mother, may I have it? I've just been longing to hear some good music. I do wish that dad would get us season tickets for next year, I feel that I don't hear half enough real music."

"How about you, Fannie; aren't you hungry for music, too?" asked mother smiling.

"Oh, no, thank you; I don't care especially to go," answered Cousin Fannie. "Why don't you go yourself?"

"Well," mother laughed indulgently, "my daughters heart appears to be set on the concert, so if you really won't go, Fannie, I'll resign in her favor."

"What a darling dear you are," I said kissing mother, and I was really delighted, for I thought how intelligent I could be about the concert with Frank if I heard it in advance.

When the family were starting for the birthday dinner and mother discovered that I was not going she showed much annoyance.

"Why, Lucile, your absence will hurt Bob's and Betty's feelings," she said. "It's outrageous of you not to go when you really suggested the party."

"But, mother, you know I can't disappoint a good friend like Frank Freeman, and he is counting on my going to the Symphony with him."

Mother stared at me strangely. "Lucile, did you know you were going tonight when you took that ticket yesterday?"

"Why, yes, dear. Cousin Fanfie didn't wish to go and you didn't care much about it apparently, and, as I told you, I was just about starved for music. I felt that it would be good for my soul fairly to saturate myself in it."

"Well, I hope that something will be good for your soul," remarked mother sarcastically. Poor dear, she never does seem to understand me.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Cancer in Women

By W. A. Newman Dorland, M. D., Chicago Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Cancer remains the one predominant plague which has resisted the most strenuous endeavors of the medical scientists. Not only does it persist as the outstanding cause of human mortality, but it has assumed an ever increasing menace. It is now estimated that after the age of forty, one man in eight and one woman in twelve will perish from cancer in some portion of the body.

That cancer is capable of complete eradication if it can be discovered in its earliest stages is the important thing for you to realize. Unfortunately when cancer develops in the internal organs, it is unaccompanied by symptoms in its earliest stages. It is only when it has become well advanced that it makes its presence known, and then it has passed beyond the possibility of radical surgical intervention in most cases.

While woman, like man, may be subject to cancerous degeneration in almost any organ or part of the body, she is especially prone to develop the disease in the womb or in the mammary glands. Every woman should know that a nodular formation in the breast, whether attended with pain or not, is a serious matter. Such a growth should be immediately shown to the attending doctor. In most cases, probably, it is not malignant; but these hidden growths should be removed and studied under the microscope in order that malignant change, if present, may be detected in its incipiency. The great danger lies in delay.

Cancer in the womb generally although it may develop as early as pears after menopausal period, also as the forty-fifth year. Incessant watchfulness to detect the earliest symptoms of cancer and immediate radical surgical intervention are the surest means of arresting the spread of the disease and effecting a cure. Radium and X-rays are of value in the grave, inoperable cases, when they may prove effective in prolonging life for some months. They may also be employed to advantage in the early cases after surgical removal of an effected organ has been accomplished. They may then aid in preventing a recurrence of the disease by destroying any cancer-cells that may have been left inadvertently.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Whenever King George is indisposed and public bulletins are issued as to his conditions the bulletins are signed by Lord Dawson of Penn, who is the king's physician. As a consequence nearly everybody has heard of the name of Lord Dawson but few know that the story of his marriage reads like a first-class film romance. Soon after he had begun his careers as a doctor he was employed in a London hospital when an English girl fell ill with typhoid fever in Constantinople. She was the daughter of Sir Alfred Yarrow, the millionaire shipbuilder and inventor, and Sir Alfred determined to send out a reliable English doctor to pull her out of danger. His choice fell on young Dr. Bernard Dawson, because, it is said, he felt that if his daughter should happen to fall in love with her doctor—as so often happens in story-books—the match would be a suitable one. Sure enough, the two did fall in love and a happy marriage resulted.

CHILD TRAINING

THE YOUNGEST

Hastings White

Bobbie was only the youngest—sweet, round and rosy, his mother's "baby." But he did not always want to be the "baby." At times he would watch his older brother, who seemed able to accomplish almost anything, with a little admiration and much envy. The family never doubted this one's ability, with the result that he never doubted his own.

Bobbie would wonder, in his strange little mind, if he could do any of these things. Whenever he tried to help his mother would say, "Get away, Bobbie, you can't do this. Let your brother do it." Sometimes the little fellow would cry and then his mother would take him in her arms and say, "You're just my little baby, and Mother loves you so."

But Bobbie would go off quietly and grieve. There is nothing in the world more cruel than love without understanding. He could not do anything! They had told him that so often he had come to believe it. What little self-confidence he had was continually shaken. He was not expected to be able to do anything; he was just the "baby."

One day company had come and Bobbie was playing in the parlor. He did not like visitors because they were like his mother in that they looked upon him as the "baby." He was learning to dislike that word very much.

He decided to try to build a great skyscraper with his little blocks. He started slowly, a little diffidently, to place the blocks in position, but was fearful that he would err and the structure come tumbling down. The guests watched him in amusement. One asked if it was to be a large skyscraper he was building, and when he nodded agreement, they all smiled indulgently. But there was a light in their eyes which seemed to say, "You cannot do it."

Children are sensitive and impressionable and are quick to see and be hurt by these things. Lack of confidence is contagious and Bobbie gradually felt that he would fail and perhaps do something crude—something they would laugh at, and then kiss him.

Things happened as they all expected—Bobbie included. His little hand awkardly struck a block and the structure came tumbling down directly upon a doll which was lying upon the floor, and which belonged to a little girl who was one of the visitors. The company all looked at Bobbie as though he were a great disappointment, and his mother came forward, saying, "You can't seem to do anything right, Bobbie. I don't know what's the matter with you! You seem to have no confidence in yourself."

Bobbie believed everything. They all thought it was his fault and he was sure they were right. But they forgave him and kissed him. He was "only the baby," they said, and they wondered why he cried.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Reddy Sees the Nest of a Fish

A difficult to doubt your eyes,
But sometimes you will find it wise.
—Old Mother Nature.

This is just Old Mother Nature's way of saying that not always can you believe that "seeing is believing," but there is nothing that can be fooled more easily than eyes. So even though you see a thing, it is sometimes wise to be slow in believing.

Reddy Fox felt just this way when he first saw the nest of a fish. He was sure he saw what he thought he saw, but it was so hard to believe that a fish could really build a nest, that it was just as hard to believe what he saw, as it was to believe that his eyes might be fooling him. Graywing the Gull had shown him that nest. You will remember that Graywing had promised he would. He had made good that promise. In fact, it wasn't more than an hour after he made the promise that he came circling back over Reddy. "Are your eyes good?" he called.

"I'll admit that it looks like a nest," said Reddy

Reddy looked up and grinned. "My eyes are always good," said he. "What have you on your mind now, Neighbor Gull?"

"That nest I was going to show you," replied Graywing. "If you'll follow me, I'll show you the nest of a fish, just as I said I would."

"I'm always ready to be shown," replied Reddy, and trotted along the beach, keeping his eyes on Graywing the Gull, who flew ahead of him. Graywing flew over the sand dunes toward the marsh. Reddy trotted along over the sand dunes. He saw Graywing alighting by a tidepool on the marsh beyond the dunes. It was a pool that the water never ran out of. Rather gingerly Reddy picked his way through the wet marsh grasses over to where Graywing was waiting for him. He didn't like getting his feet wet that morning.

"How are your eyes?" demanded Graywing as Reddy came up.

"Just as good as they were when you asked me that a little while ago," replied Reddy.

"All right," said Graywing. "Look down in the water where those grass stems are coming up out of it. If your eyes are really good you will see fastened to those stems a little round ball."

Reddy leaned over and looked down into the water. "I see it," said he.

"Well, that is the nest of a fish," replied Graywing.

Reddy stared very hard. Attached to the grass was a little round soft-looking mass about the size of a big glass marble. It seemed to be made of tiny bits of plant growth, fastened together in some way that Reddy couldn't understand. There was a round doorway. It did look like a little nest, but it was the nest of a fish, for he saw no fish about.

"I'll admit that it looks like a nest," said Reddy, "but you haven't prove to me yet that it is the nest of a fish."

"Be patient," retorted Graywing. "You have been out in the Great World long enough to know that to see things one must be patient. If you haven't any important engagement, I suggest you watch here a little while. I think you'll see something that will surprise you and will convince you that this is the nest of a fish. Huh! You won't have to have patience. Here comes the owner of that nest now. It is Mr. Stickleback."

For the Thrills

There are dangers and dangers. A westerner, out shooting rabbits with an easterner, said:

"This is pretty tame work. Out west, where we shoot bears and mountain lions, there's a spice of danger to the sport."

"So," said the easterner, "you like danger with your shooting, do you? Well, then, you must go with my brother-in-law some day, last week he shot his cousin."

A Fighter goes into battle

when this oil goes into your motor

EVERY minute you drive your car—an endless war is waged in your motor. Those two relentless allies, blinding heat and grinding friction, constantly threaten the vital motor-parts. Only a thin film of motor oil holds the fighting line and guards your motor from damage.

But far too often the film of ordinary motor oil fails under the punishment. It quits under fire. Frequently there follows a burned-out bearing, a seized piston, a scored cylinder—big repair bills.

The fighting "film of protection"

That is why each day new car owners are turning to Veedol, the motor oil that gives the "film of protection"—thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel—the fighting "film of protection" that safeguards your motor from deadly heat and friction.

Stop at the familiar orange and black Veedol signs—they're signs of a good dealer. Ask always for Veedol by name. Then you can be sure that every mile you drive, the Veedol "film of protection" is fighting for the safety of your motor.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it neutralizes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

TREASURES CORNET GIVEN HIM BY QUEEN VICTORIA

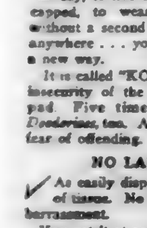
McPHERSON, Kan., Aug. 23—(AP)—In a comfortable Kansas home here reposes a silver cornet, the gift of Queen Victoria to Harry Hapgood. Only one other like presentation was made by Queen Victoria during her reign and that was to Buzier Dunn, Boer war hero, to whom she gave a silver bugle.

Hapgood of a musical family, began learning a cornet at the age of eight and was a member of the famous Dunbar band of Kansas, served with several bands, and in 1891 went to Montana. Later where he joined the Grand Victor an Army band.

When Hapgood, after seven years of service, resigned to America, the Queen at a public gathering presented him with a silver cornet with a suitable inscription.

HIGHER THAN WOOLWORTH BUILDING

The Yearly Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is our highest building.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in one year could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building with enough left over to extend from Lynn, Mass., to Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have lots of work to do and I am not very strong, but I was getting worse all the time until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used to lose my appetite completely at certain times, but I feel very well since I began taking this medicine. I think so much of it that I would go before a Notary and swear to its merits. You could step into my home any time and you will find a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." —Mrs. FRANK M. CASEY, 220 South 11th Ave., Mount Vernon, N. Y.

ROCK NOOK COMMITTEE'S TRIBUTES TO MRS. AUSTIN

The members of Rock Nook Home committee met Monday with their chairman, Mrs. E. D. Fuller of Broadway, and together attended the funeral of Mrs. Willis Austin. It was the desire of each one to express her love and appreciation for her fellow worker and the following tributes were given;

"In the death of Mrs. Willis Austin, Norwich sustains an irreparable loss and to her many friends it comes as a personal bereavement. Mrs. Austin has been a member of the Rock Nook Home committee for 18 years, and, since the death of Mrs. George W. Lane, has served as its invaluable secretary, bringing to this office unusual endowments for such service. Her associates on this committee desire to express their deep sense of personal loss and their appreciation of her rare ability and devotion to the exacting labors of the work she undertook with such unselfish consecration." We cannot describe a beautiful flower or an exquisite perfume. We rejoice in them. "Hers was a life of such charm and grace that words of praise do not enhance, but in its presence we tone our lives to a higher key. A life like hers, so rich in native endowments, so rare in refinements and high intelligence, and so dedicated to the community's best life is an inspiration which cannot die. Her charities were many but rendered modestly and in secret. She loved her native town and no appeal for any project which would improve or benefit Norwich failed to reach her tender heart. In her passing Norwich loses one of its foremost women and one of its most beloved."

A second tribute was the following: "The Rock Nook Children's Home has had on its committee a long list of women identified as leaders in benevolent and charitable work of this city and no name stands higher than that of Mrs. Willis Austin whose death causes irreparable loss to the Home.

For years she has given of her best in service. Always faithful, efficient, generous, wise in thought and kind in judgment her advice has been most valuable in the problems incident to the Home. Peculiarly gifted in the art of expression her work as secretary has been remarkable. However difficult a letter, when written by Mrs. Austin it became a kind friendly message with the point still clear and positive. In her hand reports of all kinds became attractive and a pleasure to those who listened. Her manner so attractive, her personality so beautiful and kind and with all so true and firm for the right will remain as beauty in the memory of those who had the privilege of association with her."

ABENDROTH IS ELECTED BARBERS' VICE PRESIDENT

Walter D. Abendroth of this city was elected first vice president of the Connecticut Master Barbers association at its convention at New Haven Sunday, and John Eno of New London was elected one of its trustees.

During the convention a decisive step was taken in its fight against the state law prohibiting barbers from practicing women's hairdressing, and other beauty parlor methods without a license, when the association passed a motion appointing a legislative committee to engage the services of an attorney to fight the law.

PINEHURST HAS NEW OWNER; TO BE SUBDIVIDED FOR BUILDING

Another one of the fine residence properties of Norwich, which has long been one of the show places of the city, is to undergo a transformation, according to the plans outlined by Samuel Taylor of 219 Broadway, who has just purchased Pinehurst on Washington street from the estate of the late Mrs. Charles W. Gale, although the papers have not been passed yet through Judge Arthur F. Libby, executor of the estate.

Mr. Taylor said Monday that he did not intend to occupy the place as his residence, but would develop it by sub-dividing into building lots, and at present has no plans for remodeling the handsome mansion into apartments.

The property is on Washington street at the corner of Broad street and extends through to Yantic street on the rear. The plot contains 7 1-2 acres and has on it the large and handsome main residence, one of the finest in the city, servants' quarters, large barn for garage and a greenhouse.

Before its occupancy by Mrs. Gale, the place was the residence of the late E. N. Gibbs, long prominent in banking circles in this city.

The price paid by Mr. Taylor is not stated, but it is understood that it is considerably less than the $60,000 at which a New London man at one time offered to buy the property from the executor of the Gale estate, posting a sum of money as a binder which he forfeited when he declined to complete the purchase.

FLOYD IS ENDORSED FOR SENATOR FROM 20TH

At a conference of republican leaders of the 20th or Shoestring district, comprising 16 towns of New London county, held in New London Saturday, Prosecuting Attorney J. James Floyd of Waterford, who represented that town in the state house of representatives at the last legislative session, was agreed upon as the party's choice for the nomination for election to the senate from that district, succeeding Senator Fred Beckwith of Niantic, who declined to become a candidate for renomination. In political circles it had been expected for some time that Representative Floyd would be agreed upon as the most logical candidate for the nomination but announcement to this effect was withheld until all of the towns of the county could be thoroughly canvassed.

Representative Floyd made his debut into state politics two years ago when he defeated Dr. Gurdon S. Allyn for the republican nomination for representative from the town of Waterford. Dr. Allyn had represented the town at the previous session of the legislature, and his defeat by Floyd for renomination was accomplished only after a vigorous campaign and a bitter battle that exceeded any that had been seen in Waterford for many years. As a member of the lower house, Floyd was named to membership on the judiciary committee, the most important and busy committee of the house. As a member of this committee, Representative Floyd had a hand in the passage of some of the most important pieces of legislation. He introduced and secured the passage of the Waterford town court bill, and since the establishment of the court has served as prosecuting attorney. He also played a prominent part in the drawing up of the boxing bill, which abolished the three-commissioner form of athletic supervision, and put professional boxing under the jurisdiction of one man. He proved at all times to be a champion of the rights of the fishermen of the state, supporting and aiding in drawing up bills designed to aid them, and also was active in the passage of other beneficial legislation. He was a member of the sub-committee of the judiciary committee that investigated the price of gasoline in this state, and considered ways and means of regulating it.

Mr. Floyd is a lawyer by profession, and a graduate of Middlebury college and of the law school of the New York university. Socially he is very prominent and popular, and is very active in fraternal circles, being esquire of the New London lodge of Elks and a member of the Thames, John Winthrop and other clubs and lodges.

Caucuses will be held by the republicans in the 16 towns of the district on Friday night for the election of delegates to the district senatorial convention that will name the party's senatorial candidate. The date for this convention has not been set, but it will be held as soon after Friday as is advisable To date Representative Floyd remains the sole candidate.

WATERFORD HOUSE BURNED WITH $4,000 LOSS

Damage estimated between $3,000 and $4,000 was caused by fire which almost destroyed the residence of the Thomas L. Connell family at Station 5, Boston Post road, Waterford Sunday afternoon. The house is owned by Salvatore Sabilio of Station 6, Waterford. The damage to the house is covered by insurance, but the furniture owned by the Connell family was not insured and represents a total loss to them.

The fire was discovered shortly after 3 o'clock when members of the family detected the odor of smoke and upon investigating found a blaze beneath the attic roof near the chimney. Owing to the sudden coldness Sunday afternoon, a wood fire had been lighted in the kitchen stove. Soot in the chimney, ignited by overheating, is given as the cause of the fire.

Alarms were immediately sent in to the Waterford and New London fire departments. The Waterford chemical truck and the Niagara and Nameaug Engine companies from the department responded. The fire had gained considerable headway when the firemen arrived.

The New London firefighters laid several hundred feet of hose from a hydrant a few feet east of the city line. A. J. Perkins, chief of the Waterford department, and a detachment of men, concentrated a stream of chemical extinguishers upon the front of the house and the hallway. It was necessary to chop away a large portion of the porch roof to get at the stubborn fire beneath. The attic was destroyed and the entire building extensively damaged. Only a few articles of furniture that could be carried out by members of the household were saved.

During the fire scores of automobiles lined the state highway for a quarter of a mile in either direction. So congested did the highway become that passage was practically impossible. Police officers were stationed at points to unsnarl the traffic tangle.

LATE JUDGE WM. H. WILLIAMS NOTABLE AS SELF-MADE MAN

At the Congregational parsonage on Elm avenue, Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey have as their guest for a week, Rev. Mr. Bailey's sister, Mrs. William H. Williams, of Derby. Mrs. Williams is widow of one of Connecticut's best known trial lawyers, for 18 years states attorney or New Haven county, six years a superior court judge, and since health decline approximately 11 years ago and up to his death in July of this year, a state referee.

The late Judge Williams who on several occasions visited Norwich Town relatives, was what is termed a "self made man." Although becoming famous for attaining such a brilliant career, Judge Williams never went to college, or attended a law school, not even as much as a high school.

For a self-educated boy to become a leading lawyer and a judge of a high court was signal achievement and added to the distinction of Judge Williams' career.

Mrs. Walter Brooks has returned to Salem, after a visit with relatives in Brooklyn.

DRIVING NEW YORK TRUCK WITH CONNECTICUT LICENSE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Aug. 23.—Austin J. Kittredge of New Haven, operator of a Pierce-Arrow five-ton truck, one of a fleet of a New York corporation with New York registry, was arraigned at a special court session tonight before Judge Oliver H. Williams on two complaints, charges preferred by Donald North, Rhode Island state policeman, alleging reckless driving on the Noose Neck Hill road and operating without proper registration.

The heavy truck, with a six-ton load coasting down hill, struck the rear right wheel of the automobile driven by Postmaster Elbert W. Scobie of Orange, Conn., who was accompanied by his wife and small daughter. Mr. Scobie was thrown out but not injuried, but the automobile was badly damaged.

Kittredge was fined $25 and costs. He had a Connecticut operator's license and was driving a New York registered truck in Rhode Island. Sentence on this complaint was deferred by Judge Williams for advisement.

Attorney John Ferguson had an attachment placed on the truck for Mr. Scobie, served by Constable Michael J. Burke. The truck was placed in a garage.

Postmaster Scobie returned home on the federal express in the evening after leaving his automobile in a Hope Valley garage for repairs.

ADAMS GIVES ANSWER TO ROTARY CRITICS

An explanation was given Monday by Donald A. Adams of New Haven, immediate past president of Rotary International, of why Henry L. Mencken and others criticise the Rotary club. Speaking at the luncheon of the Hartford Rotary club in Hotel Bond Monday afternoon, at which representatives of 28 clubs in the 30th district were present, Mr. Adams declared that "a man who has been through such an experience as I have in Rotary, or any man who goes through these experiences as president of such an organization as the Rotary International and comes in contact with Rotary clubs all around the world, becomes so enthusiastic that it is difficult to talk without using superlatives—therefore, the language we use seems fantastic and gives men like H. L. Mencken something to hang their hats on."

Mr. Adams' subject was "The Ostend Convention and its Influence on the Future of Rotary." He advised Rotarians who intend to be passengers on the six Cunard line steamships chartered for the convention in Belgium next June to go over "with a spirit of friendship and good will, not to make comparisons, and although the Rotary clubs in Europe may not do the things we do at our meetings, they may know more about the six Rotary objects than those who sing and call each other by their first names."

"If they (men like H. L. Mencken) could see the inside and know what Rotary was accomplishing, they would have a different story to tell," Mr. Adams declared. "Last year I visited Rotary clubs in 11 different countries. King Alphonse of Spain predicted that if the work of Rotary continued to spread through Europe as it is now doing, it would not be long before Rotary would displace diplomacy in Europe. The Rotarians of Europe on an average rank a little higher than they do on the North American continent. They have classes and distinctions that don't trouble us here, but that is only one reason. They are taking Rotary seriously and are accepting it as the truth. They pick out only high grade men. The minister on finance of Italy is president of the Venice club and cabinet ministers in other countries are members. Our sixth object appeals to the most—a hope that it will be a remedy for some of the evils they have."

The sixth object refers to the establishment of world peace.

Mr. Adams criticised the conduct of some Rotarians touring Europe. He cited the case of a manufacturer of motor cars who entered a ballroom in Italy where Rotary clubs were enjoying themselves and heralded himself as an "international Rotarian." Others, he said, speak at European clubs and say the members know nothing about Rotary because they don't call each other by their first names or sing songs. These instances have left sore spots in Europe, Mr. Adams asserted. The speaker explained the program for the Ostend convention. He expects 4,000 to attend from North America, 2,400 from Great Britain, and many from 35 other countries. King Albert will open the convention and welcome the guests.

George Cooper of Springfield, past district president, urged a large attendance at the district convention in Lenox, Mass., on September 28. The district comprises clubs in Connecticut and eastern Massachusetts. The guests were presidents and secretaries of clubs in the district.

THREE UNDER ARREST ON CHARGE OF THEFT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23.—One sailor, two others who were formerly sailors and a civilian, were arrested this afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh. Three of the arrested men were charged with theft and the fourth is being held as a witness against the trio. Recently clothing and personal effects were stolen from the locker room for sailors conducted by Michael Salvagne, 64 Bank street. A week ago two sailors complained to the police that two suits of clothes and a suit case had been stolen from their lockers, which had been forced. An investigation by Sergeant Cavanaugh resulted in suspicion pointing to Allen Ogle, Frederick Benoit, former sailors aboard the U. S. S. Camden, but who were dishonorably discharged from the service a few weeks ago and George Allen, also a sailor aboard the Camden. Allen is still an enlisted man, while Ogle has been about the city since his discharge and Benoit resides in Occum. When Sergeant Cavanaugh concluded his investigation this afternoon he arrested the three, also arrested George Baine as a witness.

Esther Henrietta Riese.

Following an illness of three weeks the death of Esther Henrietta Riese, daughter of Albert H. and Henrietta Bidwell Riese of Waverley, Mass., occurred Monday in this city. With her mother and brother, Albert H. Riese, Jr., the little girl had been visiting at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gurdon L. Fines in Police Court.

In the city court Monday morning Judge Arthur F. Libby found the usual over-the-week-end cases of intoxication and breach of the peace. A majority of them were settled by payment of fines and costs, but two out of town drifters were sent to jail to work out their fines.

Mary Krysiewicz of Montville and Louis Richmond of New London paid $5 each for failure to obey city ordinances concerning traffic.

The case of Joseph Poulliot of Montville, arested last week, is to be tried before the Montville court.

Flavor

is everything in breakfast oats

WHEN you find a person, especially a child, who "doesn't like oats," chances are they haven't tried the right kind.

Get Quaker Oats. Once you taste "Quaker" flavor, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That rich and toasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years milling experience. No other oats approximates it.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. Thus those who eat Quaker Oats find laxatives seldom needed. Combines protein, carbohydrates, vitamines and "bulk" in excellent proportions.

Costs the same as ordinary brands. You alone lose when you accept a substitute.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. Your grocer has it; also Quaker Oats as you have always known them.

SUSIE'S CIVIC PRIDE HAS BEEN WOUNDED BY NEW LONDON'S CLAIMS

Susie during the past week attended the parade of the firemen in New London, which she thoroughly enjoyed, but in reading over the souvenir, all the joy was taken out by the sweeping claims made by New London for itself. Her weekly letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed:—

I don't know as a firemen's parade comes under the head of sports or not, but they was a lotta sports at that parade and I don't mean perhaps. Them fire laddies sure did look fine marching up and down them "beautiful" streets of that whaling village. When I say beautiful I say it 'cause New London herself admits she's got the most beautiful streets in America. Now Ed., don't go pulling that old wise crack about not knowing New London was a part of America.

Well, me and the boy friend goes down the beautiful Military highway to the beauty stop of Eastern Connecticut. Everybody knows what a beauty spot it is so I ain't going to make no slurs on that, or I ain't going to throw no mud at our sister city, 'cause that don't get nobody nothing, and besides, New London's got all the mud she can handle now. Well, as I said before, we goes to New London and while we is waiting for the parade of them fire ladders to come along we gets one of them programs and starts to give it the once over. Like all women I starts at the back and after I'd read a coupla advs. I comes to a page what's headed "New London Has——."

I peruses that page and then I begins to laugh and as I reads on I laughs some more till I thought I'd have gastritis. The boy friend gives me a nasty look and says what you laughing so foolish about and I hands him the book. He's got a cents of rumor too and he busts out laughing, it's so funny.

Gosh, to read that page you'd think New London was bigger'n New York, Chi and 'Frisco all rolled into one. The fellar what made up that page don't know no more about peography than my aunt's cat. I suppose you is wondering what it's all about so's I am going to tell you and maybe you'll get a lick two.

The first item what gives me a laugh was that New London among her recreational facilities (what ever that means; I simply quoting from the book) has the $300,000 Shenecossett golf course. Now if I remember rightly the Shenecossett golf course is about three miles over in Groton, across the river, at Eastern Point. Gosh! while they was claiming something why didn't they claim the Westchester-Biltmore course or the St. Andrew's course over in Scotland and then they'd be doing something? Then a coupla items further down they say they has got the "best hotels on the Atlantic coast here——" and naming "The Griswold," "The Mohican," "The Seowescatchie," "The Crocker" and others. I suppose that "others" means the Wilbrahop and the old Royal. The Griswold is at Eastern Point, or was the last time I was down that way and the Oswegatchie is out on the Niantic river, or was, unless they moved the river. The only poplar hotels what they missed was the Copley-Plaza up in Boston and the Commodore in New York. Gosh! I hafta laugh when I thinks what boobs some folks is to believe what you read on them folders.

Then there was another line what said "Shaded drives into interesting back country." I suppose the back country to New London means the great open spaces between New London and Canada, which would include Norwich, Hartford, Springfield and a coupla other small burgs like them. Reading on we comes to the manufacturing what New London claims. Right up close to the top is the New London Ship and Engine Co., which when my old man worked there during the late war, was over in Groton. I suppose just because the word New London appears in the name they own it. Gosh! I know a lotta New York shoe shine parlors and hat cleaning stores and clothing stores but I never see where no New York fellers ever claimed 'em as belonging to New York. Then they claim the Robert Gair Co., which plant is located at Montville abut seven miles from New London. They is a coupla other plants what's located at Montville; the Eastern Conn. Power Co., and a coupla paper mills, so I guess I better claim them for Norwich before Hartford or Mystic or Noank gets a crack at 'em.

Then we comes to the historical and scenic spots of interest which New London claims title to. They claim the Groton Monument but they give credit to Groton for it instead of saying it's the New London monument. They musta forgot the Bunker Hill monument and the Washington monument. Them two must have got by them somehow.

The prize number of the lot was these claiming the "ancient burial ground of the Mohegan Indians." Gosh! of all the nerve of some people's children this number takes the well known berries. If our history of the Mohegan injuns is anywhere near correct as some fellers try to make us believe, then that old burying ground where all the good injuns is pushing up the daises is right down in Mohegan, about 10 miles north of said New London and about three miles south of Norwich. But you dont notice Norwich claiming it; the Norwich folks ain't got them "Gimmes." They forgot the grave of Uncas and Miantonomo up here in Norwich. Don't you go telling them New London folks or they'll be stealing it on us some dark night just like Norwich folks stole the New London court house years ago when my old man was a kid. That was a big joke on New London, but you can't find nobody in New London what remembers it. My old man told me how his old man, that's my granddad, and a lotta other fellers from Norwich went down to New London and picks up their city hall or whatever they called it in the good old days and brung it on a tug up to Norwich. It'll take some time before New London'll ever laff that one off. New London don't need to be afraid of anybody's stealing their court house now.

Then I reads on a little farther and under the heading "Governmental and Marine Activities at New London," we find that somebody has moved the Submarine Base over into New London. Then we find that some of them fishermen must have dragged Fisher's Island, Gull Island and Plum Island right up into New London cause they is listed as belongings to New London. Too bad that when they was moving them islands around so careless like they didn't drag in Long Island and Block Island too, to say nothing about the Bermudas and the West Indies.

Then at the bottom of all this there is a line which lets the cat out of the so-called bag. It says: "Above information furnished by the Chamber of Commerce." The people of New London oughta get right up on their hind legs and shout "Hurrah for the Chamber of Commerce"! ,ala Jim London. That Hammond feller is sure a great booster for New London. Say Ed., be sure them typesetting fellers don't make that word booster into boaster, 'cause I don't want my old friend Jim to bawl me out with that deep bass voice what he's got.

Well, Ed.—It was a good time anyway, and the parade was O. K. and New London ought to have a lotta credit for that parade. While I'm about it and before I close this letter, I think the Norwich Chamber of Commerce oughta get busy and file some claims of its own. How about claiming Niagra Falls, Gardners Lake, The Woolworth building, a coupla good hotels, a few more railroads, a coupla steamship lines, all them historic things what New London ain't all ready got. But just the same, Ed., that stuff what was in that paper makes everybody sit up and take notice. There ain't nobody goin' to blow your horn unless you toot it yourself, so's they can hear how good it sounds.

Yours as ever,

SUSIE

TUNNEY HAD ONLY LIGHT WORK YESTERDAY

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 2—(AP)—A virtual lay-off was the program today for Gene Tunney, challenger of Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship.

The weather was responsible for a large part of the inactivity. It rained almost all day, and Tunney's handlers decided there should be no sparring. The contender went out on the roads awhile in the morning, did ten miles more on the roads in the afternoon, and then called it a day.

It was decided that Tunney will not leave Lake Pleasant before Labor day. Where he goes then is yet to be determined.

RUTH M. CHENAULT WINS RICH PURSE AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 23—(AP)—Ruth M. Chenault, a heavy favorite, won the $14,000 Rainy Day sweepstakes in the opening Grand Circuit program at North Randall today while the veteran Single G., entered in the 2:03 pace thrice faltered and lost his first Grand Circuit appearance this season.

Ruth was bested by Hollyrood Sheila in the first heat of the main division of the Rainy event but came back to win the next two and deciding heats in easy fashion.

EAST ENDS TAKE LOOSE GAME FROM THE WARRIORS

The East Ends took a loosely played game from the Warriors in the Twi league at the Duwell field on Monday evening by the score of 8 to 1. Although errors were frequent the game was played in quick time with eight innings being played the first time this has been accomplished this year in the league.

Harry Mills pitching for the winners was in rare form and held the Warriors in complete submission throughout. He should have been credited with a shutout but loose playing by his teammates allowed a run to cross the plate in the last inning. He fanned nine and neither walked nor hit any.

Segal was on the mound for the Warriors and was hit when hits meant runs although miserable support by his teammates contributed largely to the scoring. The warriors showed a complete reversal of form in Monday evening's game over previous contests in the league, putting up a wretched exhibition.

The East Ends entered the scoring column with two runs in the third on hits by Ramford, Gaudette and Mills along with a base on balls and an error, and kept up the attack with two more in the fourth on a hit by E. Papineau, two errors and two bases on balls. The total was brought to six runs with two more in the fifth on a hit by Allard, a hit batsman and two errors while in the seventh another run scored on a hit by Allard and errors with the final run coming on a hit by Coughlin and error.

The Warlors lone tally came in the eighth when with two out Segal and Hamil singled and Segal scored on an error.

Coughlin with a double and single out of five trips to the plate and Allard with two singles out of four trips to the plate led in the hitting for the winners while Bill Burns with two singles out of three trips to the plate led for the losers.

Dinty Moore furnished fielding features with three nice catches in center field.

TILDEN FEATURES OPENING DAY OF NATIONAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The historic Newport Casino courts, once the scene of the National Tennis championship, today welcomed back William T. Tilden at his best after a seven year absence.

Coming here to the Casino's tenth annual tennis invitation tournament with all his marvelous battery of strokes, the national champion contributed one of the opening days' most convincing victories in a love set triumph over Edward G. Bendict of Boston. Soaring with him to victory in an impressive display of stroking, William M. Johnston, Tilden's foremost rival inother years, Brian I. C. Norton of San Antonio, and Watson, M. Washburn of New York brought off straight set victories without being pressed, Norton making pace for the field by advancing to the fourth round.

Johnston, whose play in this event is likely to determine how much may be expected of him in the forthcoming defense of the Davis Cup, encountered the most serious opposition of the seeded players. After receiving a default from Joshua Wheelwright in the first round, the little Californian was called upon to match strokes with the veteran Boston player, Nathaniel Niles.

Never apparently extended, Johnston came through impressively in straight sets at 6-4, 6-1. His terrific forehands carried so much pace and such excellent direction that the Pacific coast star did not feel called upon to move into his favorite position in the forecourt.

Norton, who is seded in the tournament play, gave indication today he may make trouble. He was serving and driving with more pace than he has hitherto displayed this season, despite the fact that Edward D. Toland of Philadelphia carried him to fourteen games in the final set of their round match. The former Wimbledon finalist always gave the impression that he held plenty in reserve, however, and when he settled down to his task the allery was treated to a brilliant exhibition of deep court driving.

Malcom D. Hill of Waban, Mass., joined Norton in the fourth round Hil scored two easy victories over C. H. Beasley and John Duncan, both home club players.

Washburn, another of the nine seeded players, was not taxed to turn back his opponents in the first and second rounds, while Manuel Alonso of Spain, Dr. George King of New York and Alfred H. Chapin of Springfield, Mass., were advanced to the third round by defaults. Francis T. Hunter of New York and Cranston Holman of Leland Stanford, the remaining players who have been seeded, are expected to play their matches in the second round tomorrow.

Two of the day's six extra set matches gave S. Howard Voshell of New York an over-abundance of tennis, and he cracked in the second of the tests against Hugh C. M. Kelleher, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5. Kelleher's steadiness in the backcourt proved the deciding factor as his foe lapsed into a period of errors which cost him the match after some spectacular volleying in the opening set.

INJURED HARTFORD DRIVER DIES AT NEW LONDON HOSPITAL MONDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23—Frank A. Gallagher, 22, of 303 Wallingford road, Hartford, a recent graduate from college, was fatally injured Sunday morning when he received a fractured skull, the automobile he was driving colliding with an automobile owned by Caser DeCarlo, of Thompsonville and driven by Edward Trobercher, also of Thompsonville. In the latter car was Edward Carson, Thompsonville. The accident happened on the steep grade of Logger Hill, Waterford. Gallagher died at Lawrence hospital this morning. Trobercher was arrested by state police from Groton barracks, charged with violation of the motor vehicle law in not having a driver's license, but he may be arrested now on the more serious charge of manslaughter.

The automobile driven by Trobercher was headed toward New London and Gallagher's automobile was descending the grade. When but a short distance from the top of the hill and where a curve exists, the automobiles came together head on with terrific force. The collision threw Gallagher to the highway, he landing upon his head and receiving the fracture which rendered him unconscious. He was picked up by a passing autoist and he and Miss Esther Cohen, of Ward street, Hartford, one of several passengers in his automobile, were rushed to the hospital. Gallagher remained unconscious until his death at 9 o'clock this morning. Miss Cohen sustained lacerations of the head, but her condition is not considered serious.

Other passengers of the Gallagher automobile were Miss Jane Meuser, 30 Hamilton street, and William Livingstone, 92 Wadsworth street, both of Hartford. These received only minor injuries.

SAILORS GET GAY SUNDAY, GROW SAD ON DAY AFTER

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23—Uncle Sam's sailors made a lively time for the police of this city, Saturday and Sunday, but the police survived it and the tars who were so jolly prior to Sunday were in the doldrums today. Some of them are in jail, others are at liberty because they could raise the money to pay fines, while still one other is at liberty on the appeal of his case in which he was sentenced to stay in jail three months for having in his possession steel knuckles with which he evidently intended to pursue a fellow with whom he was engaged in a scrimmage. The fellow out of jail by appealing his case is Melicio Patricio, a Filipino, appearing in a new role for men of his race. He was mixed in a fight in Golden street in which sailors were involved. Policeman Manice was called to subdue the trouble and rushing there found Patricio in a doorway in conflict with others. The officer got one of the belligerents, but Patricio made his escape temporarily, he running to the rear of the Barrows building on Green street where he hid among boxes. He was followed and was seen to throw away the steel knuckles by a newsboy who identified him as the person who threw the knuckles away. He declared however that the witnesses were mistaken and that he did not have nor throw away the dangerous fighting appliance. As the judgment was severe the Filipino appealed and gave a bond of $750 to appear in the common pleas court.

James McDermott, another sailor, was convicted of carrying a loaded pistol of .22 calibre, a dangerous weapon if used, without having obtained written permission from the chief of police to carry it. McDermott admitted that he had the weapon, but set up the foolish defense that he took the gun from a boy, whom he didn't know and could not name. He was sent to jail for a stay of three months.

A case against Aleck Wiezcrock, alleging the sale of liquor, was abandoned because there was no evidence to convict the accused.

Matthew Ennis, a sailor, with a Filipino sailor, engaged in a fight, they being the men that caused the arrest of Patricio. They were fined $10 each for disturbing the peace of the city.

Tony Puccerelli, a sailor, was fined $25 for resisting an officer and $10 for intoxication. Puccerelli was clubbed into submission to get him to the police station.

Charles Smith, a sailor, was fined $5 for intoxication, as was John Trebes, also a sailor. A couple of other sailors were charged with drunkenness, but were released on suspended judgment.

Talmage E. Dean, of Greenmanville avenue, Mystic, was fined $3 for operating an automobile without having a license in his possession. He got mixed up in traffic and that led to an inspection of his license. He had such a card but he did not have it with him.

Walter S. Garde, of Mott avenue, Neptune Park is nursing a fractured arm, which injury he sustained Friday afternoon when he slipped and fell. The fracture is of the right arm, close to the shoulder. It is believed that Mr. Garde will be unable to use that member for two months.

Mark Hicks, 17, colored, of 28 Moore court, was painfully injured, last night, when struck by an unidentified automobile, as she alighted from a trolley car on Montauk avenue to go to her home. She is now a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from severe abrasions of both legs and lacerations of the forehead.

Miss Hicks signalled for the stopping of the car at the corner of Montauk avenue and Darrow streets. As the car came to a stop she alighted, but hardly had she and other passengers stepped to the ground when the automobile speeded by. Miss Hicks was struck and knocked down. She was picked up by other passengers and Patrolman Ernest Opperman arriving at the location of the accident, the girl was taken to the hospital. Patrolman Opperman returned a short time afterwards, but could not locate anyone who could tell the registration of the automobile.

The funeral of Mrs. Isabella Ballantyne, wife of Alexander Ballantyne, formerly of Groton, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John J. Sheridan, 65 Morgan street, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including a delegation of members of Daughters of Scotia and New England Order of Protection. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Members of Clan Cameron acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Mrs. John Bendee, of Groton; Mrs. Fannie Dorne, Quaker Hill; George Hoyas, Pawtucket, R. I.; Jeremiah Shea, 11 Mountain avenue; Lois Scott, Groton Long Point; Kenneth Cummings, 9 Viets street; Miss Margaret Bennett, Hadlyme; Mrs. Earl Mason and infant daughter, 75 Howard street; Mrs. Thomas O'Connor, 810 Montauk avenue and Augusto Saisan, (member of the Peruvian Naval commission, residing in New London several months assisting in the supervising of the construction of two submarines by the New London Ship & Engine company for the Peruvian government) patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

Mrs. Laura Pryor, wife of Floyd Pryor, United States Coast Guard, state pier, was taken ill at the Union street this morning and because of her apparent serious condition the police had her removed to Lawrence hospital. The woman was not a patient at the hospital long for her case did not prove serious and she was discharged this afternoon.

OPENING OF GREEN STREET FAVORED BY COUNCILOR MAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23—Councilor James A. May believes in taking time by the forelock and providing against the congestion of Bank street in the future. The councilor moved at the meeting of the council this evening for the opening of Green street to Tilley street, saying that the work could be done cheaper now than at any time in the future. He suggested that the city manager obtain an estimate of the cost of cutting through Green street. Green street could be made 40 or 50 feet in width and by so doing an end would be put to congestion.

The mayor suggested that the matter be referred to the committee on public works to investigate and suggest a plan of procedure. He said the matter as to what was to be done was too indefinite under the suggestion of Mr. May.

Councilor May said that such action was agreeable to him, but his purpose was that the matter should not be allowed to lie dormant and the city council fail to act. Property owners along the street and especially those whose property might be taken were aware that the city must make the improvement sooner or later, but the councilor believed that the longer the work is delayed the more expensive it will be. The mayor advised keeping clear of condemnation proceedings as was intimated by the councilor. There was no farther discussion of the matter and it was referred to the committee on public works for a report and for discussion by the council in committee of he whole.

HUSBAND, WIFE AND SON GET PENALTIES AT WATERFORD

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23—Joseph Cappozza and his wife, Mary, were presented on continuance in the Waterford town court, this afternoon, charged with violation of the liquor law. Each pleaded guilty and each was fined $100 and costs, the latter amounting to $51. Both pand. Cappozza's son, Joseph Cappozza, jr., was presented on a charge of theft and after pleading guilty was sentenced to six months in jail, but the execution of the sentence was suspended six months. Cappozza and his wife were arrested two weeks ago by Waterford constables following John Kellen, former Waterford quarry worker, being struck and killed by a New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad train near the Waterford station. Kellen had been drinking and staggered in front of an east-bound express. It was known that Kellen had obtained his liquor at the home of Cappozza and when officers raided the place a large quantity of home-brew beer and wine was seized, as was a good-sized still.

Cappozza's son was charged with the theft of a large quantity of copper wire from the railroad, the arrest of the father and mother and the raid upon the Cappozza home revealing the wire theft.

BRIEF SESSION OF COUNCIL BUT MUCH BUSINESS DONE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23.—The city council held a meeting of half an hour's duration this evening. There were a few requests for permission to build, and as usual the erection of garages were contemplated, rather than the construction of dwellings. However, permission to erect two cottages was sought and given.

The council voted to purchase an air compressor, at a cost of $2,675.

The leasing of voting machines for the city was deferred till April, that legislation on the matter might be secured from the general assembly.

The purchase of a strip of land between Ashcroft road and Jefferson avenue, running along the Mondelci property on Colman street was authorized, the cost of the land to be $1,000. The land is owned by H. D. Barrows.

The council voted to sell at public auction the standing grass on the city's watershed, the best bid made to be accepted as the price for the grass.

An ordinance was read for the first time which transfers to the city manager powers now devolving upon the selectmen. The city manager is to have the authority to do all things which the selectmen have done in the past, except those which are specifically conferred on them by the city charter, such as the registration and making of voters.

The public works committee, through Councilor Woodruff, reported recommending that the city manager proceed to get contracts for the laying of a sewer and outfall sewer in the Riverside section of the city. The council approved the report and the city manager was authorized to proceed to carry out the suggestion of the council.

The ordinance providing for the sewering of Henderson, Washburne and Worthington roads was approved by the council for the second time. The cost of the work is to be something more than $2,600 and the abutting property is to pay the entire expense. The ordinance providing for the extension of the sewer on Maple avenue was read for the second time.

Councilor Whitton asked for the improvement of Beckwith street, when it developed that the street had not been accepted by the city. Now it is understood that only a strip some 140 feet long remains to be improved

Food Carried on Polar Flight

What kind of food was carried by the airship Norge on its recent historic flight over the North Pole?

This interesting question, which has been asked by thousands, concerns one of the expedition's major problems to which Captain Roald Amundsen gave his close personal attention.

Captain Amundsen drew on his long experience in polar exploration in selecting foods which gave the greatest concentration of nourishment in the least bulk, combined with easy digestibility and delicious flavor. Among other precautions, he paid a special visit to the plant where Horlick's Malted Milk is made to make certain that he obtained a supply of this food which he had found so valuable on his other expeditions, including the one which discovered the South Pole.

"Of course, we are going to take Horlick's with us—as usual!" Captain Amundsen said. "Our way to the South Pole was littered with boxes stamped 'Horlick's,' giving evidence of the liberal use made of this splendid malted milk."

Peary, Steffansen, Scott and other explorers, also have carried Horlick's as a mainstay of their expeditions. They valued it for the same qualities which make it a favorite lunch of working people, a fine between-meals food for children and an ideal drink at night to calm the nerves and induce restful sleep.

The supply of Horlick's was shipped direct to Capt. Amundsen at Spitzbergen, to be loaded on the Norge there for use during the flight.

Walter Jewell in a balloon ascension with triple drop, each afternoon of the fair is another feature.

Nine fine horse races, three each day, make up another attraction, the program including three races daily, one stake race each day for a purse of $800 and two races for purses of $500 each.

Another special feature is the appearance on Tuesday of the Boy Scout band of St. Joseph's church or Willimantic, with 45 pieces. This bad, led by W. N. C. Wheeler is the New England juvenile champion band, winning this title at the Eastern states exposition last year. Besides the Scout band, Swahn's Military band or Norwich is to play each day of the fair.

Merchants Row, so called, will again be used by merchants and manufacturers of eastern Connecticut, displaying their wares and showing why this section of the state remains a leader in the textile industry.

Breed Theater

More than 1000 soldiers, all of the 10th U. S. cavalry many of whom have service records of 25 years and over, played prominent parts in The Golden Strain, Fox Films version of Peter B. Kyne's gripping story, which comes to the Breed theater Wednesday.

The picture was filmed at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, under the direction of Victor Schertzinger. Madge Bellamy, Kenneth Harlan, Hobart Bosworth, Ann Pennington, Frank McGlynn, Jr., Grace Morse, Lawford Davidson, Frank Beal and others are among the featured players.

These soldiers, under command of Colonel James C. Rhea, of the famous 10th, come from all sections of the country. A sergeant, William Dickerson, was born in Staunton, Va., and has been in Uncle Sam's service 25 years. Sergeant George Johnson, of Bessemer, Ala., has been in the army 29 years.

Other members of the famous Tenth Cavalry, which had a prominent part in the Fox production, include James Banks, of Macon, Ga., Sergeant William Banks, of Eatonton, Ga., and Joseph Gant, of Macon. These men, as well as scores of others have served their country for years.

States represented in the 10th, include Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Tennessee, Texas, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, South Carolina, Tennessee, District of Columbia, California, Florida, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Michigan, Mississippi, Maryland, Massachusetts, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, North Carolina, New Mexico and others.

Military training, with its strict regulations, had much to do with the strikingly perfect performance given by these men.

Crown Theatre, New London

The masterful directing of Rex Ingram, the powerful story by Blasco Ibanez, the performances of Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno and the pictorial and historical beauty of Europe all blend together to make "Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea), which had its first showing at the Crown, New London Sunday evening, one of the finest pictures that has ever been filmed.

Ibanez and Ingram are the author-director combination responsible for the famous production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" as well as "Mare Nostrum."

Ingram has taken the strong Ibanez drama of the sea at the time of the great World war and transferred it onto the film in a manner of which only he is capable of doing. The fine thread of his handling of situations, people and the pictorial beauty run through the entire picture and give it the Ingram flavor which the public has tasted of and approved many times before.

Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno rise to dramatic heights in "Mare Nostrum" as when they have never before reached during their careers before the camera. By her handling of the difficult role of Freya Talberg, the clever spy, Miss Terry firmly establishes herself as one of the leading actresses on the screen today and one of the most versatile. The sudden change from the queenly parts she has enacted in previous pictures to that of the beautiful spy is one that reflects great credit to her ability.

Antonio Moreno has long been recognized as one of the most romantic figures of the stage or screen. At times he has been unfortunate in the parts he has played, but in "Mare Nostrum" has a role which he has long awaited, and he takes advantage of the opportunity.

As Ulysses Ferragut, the Spanish sea captain, Moreno will long be remembered. Moreno is a Spaniard and Captain Ulysses Ferragut in the screen version of "Mare Nostrum" is as near a living character as it is possible for him to be.

Ingram has assembled a well-balanced and most creditable supporting cast for "Mare Nostrum." Hughie Mack, the fat comedian, is excellent in his comedy role. The remaining members are foreign actors and actresses, who make their first appearance on the American screen in this picture.

The number of murders committed every year in England and Wales has remained almost constant at 150 for the last 70 years, and in 1923 and 1924 the figure was exactly correct.

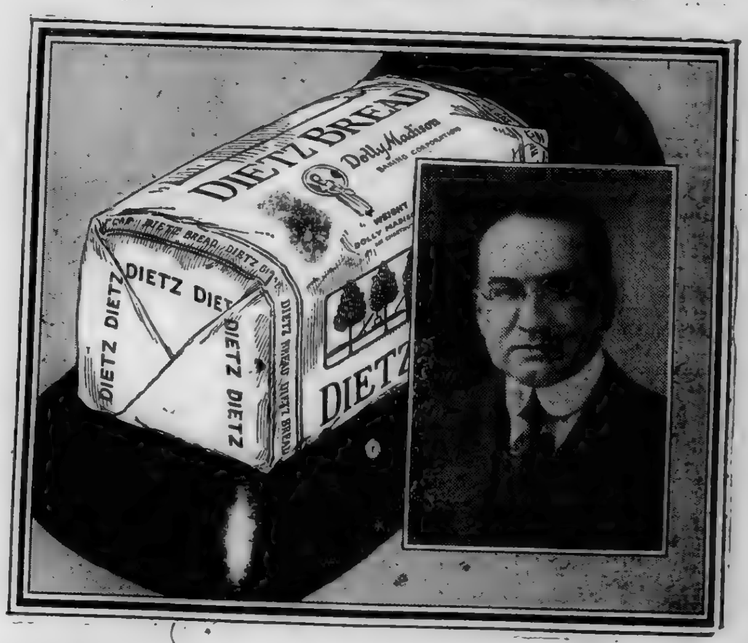
Dietz skill in a still more perfect loaf of bread



THROUGH the purchase of the Dolly Madison bakery, Mr. Walter Dietz is again rendering Springfield and neighboring towns the splendid baking service so long associated with the Dietz name.

More—in this new bakery he has perfected a new and still better loaf of bread.

Mr. Dietz used to think that in his old loaf he had realized his ideal of baking perfection. For it was as perfect as years of experience, the finest ingredients, and a wonderful recipe could make it.

But new experience has brought him even further skill—taught him the secret or new improvements which his purchase of this new bakery has given him an opportunity to carry out.

Among other things, he has installed the very latest type of oven—a marvel of baking science. It insures a new uniformity and dependability in baking which gives added tenderness to the firm loaves—greater crispness to the evenly browned crust. And it makes possible two bakings a day, so that the delicious loaves reach your grocer twice a day, fresher than ever before!

GET DIETZ BREAD from your grocer today. Its red and green wrapper with the homey farmhouse and New England maples is an invitation to enjoy Mr. Walter Dietz's marvelous baking skill in the best bread he has ever made. Dolly Madison Baking Corporation, Springfield, Mass.

moner, Washington as Father of his country, and Lincoln, Emancipator. In an effective peroration in which, with Livingstone as an example, the preacher pictured the way in which the simple devotion of an earnest life wins the tributes of a grateful posterity and seems to show the very heart of God.

The service closed with Benediction by Rev. Dr. Spaulding.

At 2 p. m. there gathered a congregation which filled the large outdoor auditorium almost to capacity. Following the song service led by Mrs. Rees and the chorus choir, prayer was offered by Dr. Spaulding. The announcements were followed by the offering which was again in charge of Dr. Spaulding. Mr. Capelli sang Handel's Largo. The hymn The Old Rugged Cross was sung. Mr. Capelli sang The Lord is My Light. The preacher for the afternoon was Rev. George H. Spencer, D. D. of Boston. His sermon was based on words found in John 14:6. No man cometh unto the Father but by me.

The Children's meetings held at 9 o'clock each morning in the New London House have been in charge of Mrs. F. W. Gray, of Burnside. The closing meeting was held Sunday morning.

The Bulletin's representative learned that the offering at the afternoon service assured the management that the needed $1,000 had been secured and no offering would be needed at the evening service.

The closing service of the Camp Meeting was held at 7:30 p. m. Sunday when Rev. Dr. Milton S. Rees was the preacher.

The annual meeting of the Camp Meeting association was held at 4 p. m. Saturday. The following officers were elected. President, Rev. Myron E. Genter, dist. Supt.; vice president, Rev. Joseph Cooper, South Manchester; secretary, Rev. Frederick C. Baker, North Grosvenordale; treasurer, Edward M. Wheeler, Providence, R. I.

Executive committee (for 3 years) W. W. Gordon, Hazardville, Rev. S. F. Maine, Attawaugan, A. T. Miner, New London.

Trustee (for 5 years) W. W. Gordon, Hazardville.

To fill out the unfinished term of Van R. Wheeler, deceased, Rev. C. E. Spaulding, New London.

RALLY IN STOCK PRICES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(By The A. P.)—With General Motors resuming the leadership of the market, prices rallied briskly today after another unsuccessful attempt had been made to unsettle the general list by hammering a few of the so-called "pivotal industrials." Trading was largely of a professional character, public buying apparently having been discouraged by the recent sharp decline in U. S. steel common following soon after the raising of the New York federal reserve rediscount rate.

Outside the stock market, chief speculative interest centered in cotton, which rallied $5 a bale on publication of a government report showing both the expected yield and growing figures below expectations, coincident with reports of crop damage by a tropical storm in Texas. The rise in cotton helped to create bullish enthusiasm for stocks, and reports of a strengthening of pig iron and steel prices and a further drop in California crude oil production.

Renewal of activity in General Motors was generally attributed to buying for the account of William C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, who was to have sailed for Europe last Saturday, but postponed his trip. The stock was bid up nine points to 210 3-8, closing within a fraction of the high, with buying undoubtedly encouraged by the prediction of President Sloan that August sales will set a new monthly record and that plants are operating at capacity. After slowing up somewhat due to the preparation for the new model Dupont, the large General Motors jumped 8 1-2 points to 205. Steel common, after a tendency spell during which it declined down to 145 5-8, rallied 7-8 for a net gain of 1 7-8. Total transactions in that issue came to 240,000 shares, or one-eighth of the entire volume of the day. General Asphalt continued its sensational advance by moving over two points to a new high at 111 7-8 while the preferred hit a new top at 139.

Public apathy in the market proper operations were conducted on a few issues which hold promise of dividend developments in the near future. Anhuhi Power, Lambert and Wagner Picture A all were lifted to new peak prices for the year while substantial gains were recorded by Allied Chemical, Butterick, Case Threshing, International Cement, Engineering, Pressed Steel Car and U. S. Realty.

Most were favorable July earnings anticipated to make their appearance this week the railroad group is expected to firm undertone. Pacific Northern Pacific and Southern preferred all broke to new 1926 highs while Western Union was lifted over two points on predictions of an early increase of dividends at the $4 rate.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper were unchanged but a slight firming was noted in the bill discount rates on bankers' acceptances.

Trading in cotton overshadowed other commodity markets. Wheat showed some irregularity higher after an early spurt of heaviness due to selling by the absence of pressure and Raw sugar was steady, one office declined 10 to 15 points.

Transactions were heavy Delivery was steady 3-16 of a cent lower despite the efforts of the bull element to maintain the recent parity by shipping operations. Australia French Equatorial points, being quoted at 5 cents. Italian lire were down 3-32 cents, or within 7 points of the new low. Moderate reductions took place in most of the other European rates.

TAFTVILLE

Dupuis-Desmarais

One of the prettiest weddings of the summer took place Monday morning at 8 o'clock at Sacred Heart church, when Miss Rachel Antoinette Desmarais, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anatole Desmarais of Pratte avenue, became the bride of Wilfred Joseph Dupuis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dupuis of Norwich avenue. Rev. Wilfred Desmarais of Bristol, formerly of Taftville, an uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony and sang the nuptial high mass that followed. Many people were present at the church to witness the nuptials.

The bride wore an attractive gown of white georgette trimmed with lace. She wore a veil and carried a bouquet of bride's roses and white carnations, with a shower of white sweet peas. Her maid of honor, Miss Irene Desmarais, a sister, wore a gown of salmon georgette and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and carnations. The best man was William Dupuis, Jr., brother of the groom.

After the church ceremony, there was a reception at the Naturalization club, which had been attractively decorated for the event. This was followed by a wedding breakfast served to many guests, many coming from out of town. During the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Dupuis left for an automobile tour of the New England states. The bride's traveling gown was tan georgette with hat to match.

Mr. Dupuis is in the employ of the J. B. Martin Co., Ltd., as a velvet weaver. His bride is popular among the young people of the town. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dupuis have a large circle of friends who extend to them best wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

Miss Eva Lambert and Miss Ida Lambert of South A street have been recent visitors at Atlantic beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Pingree and daughter Lois of Saylesville, R. I., are the guests this week of Mrs. Pingree's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg and family of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Linderson and daughter Janet of Providence street, and George Marthers of Norwich, have returned from a week's stay at the Graham cottage at Fisher's Island.

Joseph Langlois who is employed at Montauk Point, spent the week-end with his family on Merchants avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewhurst of Milbury, N. J., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey of North Second avenue.

Miss Sadie Jackson of North B street was at Atlantic beach Sunday.

Miss Mary J. Lirette of Westbrook, Maine, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Kean of South Second avenue.

About 100 Taftville people enjoyed the excursion trip to New York Sunday. On Monday it was not difficult to tell which of the party had climbed the Statue of Liberty, as those who did so appeared to be afflicted with lameness accompanied by a decided limp.

Mrs. Samuel L. Armitage of Central Falls, R. I., has been a recent guest of her mother, Mrs. Jane E. Rennard, and her brother Herbert Rennard of Norwich avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fletcher of North A street spent the week-end with relatives in Pawcatuck, R. I.

Walter Wajda of Norwich avenue has been discharged from the William W. Backus hospital where he has been a patient for about a week.

AVIATOR REPORTS SEEING BODY IN THE SOUND

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 23.—Aviator Argles, employed by the Fox Pictures company, operated his plane from New York to New London this afternoon, arriving here about 5 o'clock. Argles communicated with the New London police upon his arrival and stated that when he was flying off the harbor about eight miles and between Plum Island the mouth of the Thames river, he sighted a body in the sound. The police communicated with the United States coast guard section base, and a boat put to sea in an endeavor to locate and recover the body, but it was not found.

Massachusetts has not built a prison cell in 30 years.

COMMITTEES DECIDE TO POSTPONE BARBECUE TO NEXT SUMMER

At the meeting of the Thames Valley citizens' committee held Monday night at the Mohican hotel in New London over 50 members, a majority from Norwich and vicinity, heard reports from the chairman of the seven main committees in charge of preparing for the monster barbecue: James J. Hammond reporting for the committee on time and place; Joseph Sternicib reporting for James L. Case for the committee on resources, Adelard Morin for the barbecue committee and Joseph Peduce for the committee on athletics.

A general discussion of the many problems facing the committees then took place and it soon became apparent to the general committee that it would be next to impossible to secure a proper place at this time for such a huge event as the barbecue has developed into, within the time limit necessary to stage the affair.

Owing to inadequate grounds conditions existing in all seven of the places proposed for holding the barbecue, namely the United States submarine base at Groton, the state military camp ground at Niantic, Ocean Beach and Browning's beach, Shantok park and the grounds of the New London County Agricultural society at Norwich, all of which would require a considerable outlay of money to put them in proper shape, the barbecue cannot be staged this fall. It was stated that an outlay of $1,000 would be necessary at the submarine base to put the track into condition; that the Norwich fairgrounds needed additional space for a baseball diamond and provided no means for aquatic events; that the Niantic camp grounds would need both a baseball diamond and race track, and that all other places proposed had no buildings or fields for the staging of the mammoth event.

The committee found that in order to make the barbecue a success the committee would be required to get out the program needed. This would require much time for compilation and for solicitation of advertisements necessary to make the affair free to the public as far as admission was concerned, for they wanted no charge for entry, the sole charge to be for the barbecue.

It was therefore unanimously voted to hold the barbecue in the summer of 1927, in order to give the various committees time to work out details and prepare proper grounds for the big event.

It was also voted that the Thames Valley citizens' committee lend its support in every way possible in participating in the opening of Fort Shantok in October and for the Nathan Hale celebration on September 22nd at South Coventry.

The action on the part of the Thames Valley citizens' committee in postponing the date of the barbecue in no wise means that there is to be any let-up in activities in committees between now and the summer of 1927. All committees are to be kept intact and details worked out to insure for next summer in the Thames Valley in eastern Connecticut, one of the largest get-together outings and barbecues ever held in this section of the state.

In fact it was for that reason that the committee, Monday night, was unanimous in deferring the time of the barbecue until the summer of 1927.

It was estimated that to provide resources for the barbecue of present proportions would require not less than eight weeks of preparation at this time and this would bring the day of the barbecue too late in the season. In planning to defer action until the summer of 1927 the committees will have ample time to work out their program and thus insure it as a success far beyond means available this year.

SUES CLARK ESTATE FOR $6,000 FOR SERVICES

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Bailey of Providence, a sister-in-law of the late John T. Clark of this city, is suing his estate for $6,000 for services rendered in taking care of Mr. Clark for the last 3 1-2 years of his life in which she claims he paid her but $300 and failed to provide for her in his will as he had promised. Mr. Clark left an estate that inventoried $10,060.38.

The suit is brought against William H. Shields as executor of the Clark estate, the Bailey claim having been presented to the executor and disallowed by him May 17, 1926.

The papers in the suit, which are drawn by the law firm of Brown & James, say:

On or about Aug. 19, 1922 and on divers days thereafter, the said John T. Clark requested the plaintiff to stay with him during the remainder of his lifetime and to render him services in waiting upon him, mending and caring for his wearing apparel, preparing his meals, cleaning his rooms and keeping them in order, and sundry similar services; and in consideration therefor said John T. Clark promised and agreed to furnish the plaintiff with board, lodging, clothing, necessary spending money and to pay all her other necessary expenses during her lifetime; and in the event that he should predecease her to provide by will or otherwise for her board, lodging, clothing, necessary spending money and for all her other necessary expenses during her lifetime.

The plaintiff, relying upon the said John T. Clark's said promises and agreements, rendered to him such services from said Aug. 19, 1922, continuously to the 6th day of January, 1926, when said John T. Clark was removed to a hospital where he died on the 24th day of January, 1926.

The said John T. Clark failed to furnish the plaintiff with necessary spending money and to pay her other necessary expenses, except the sum of $300, and failed to provide by will or otherwise for her board, lodging, clothing, necessary spending money and for all her other necessary expenses during her lifetime.

In the second count it is claimed that the services tendered by Mrs. Bailey were worth $30 a week and it is also claimed that she expended for Mr. Clark at his direction and request the sum of $85 for laundry work.

SLID OFF JAIL HILL WALL, LATER YALE'S GREAT READER

Norwich visitors of literary tastes who have been at the sesqui-centennial exposition in Philadelphia have found much to interest them in the fine exhibit of educational books made by the Maria Hosmer Penniman library. This library was presented the University of Pennsylvania by Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, as a memorial to his mother, wife of James Lanman Penniman, of an old Norwich family.

Some of the books shown at Philadelphia are between four and five hundred years old. The elder Penniman was a member of the Class of '53 at Yale. It is recalled in Norwich annals that long before he had ever shown any marked signs of an inclination toward the literary life he had made the unmatched record of coasting off Jail Hill wall on his sled—a feat which no other Norwich boy has ever duplicated, as far as is known.

After his college graduation he taught for a time in Maryland and Virginia, then went to Washington and was associated with the astronomical observatory; later for some years was head of a bureau in the department of the interior. In 1876 he moved to Philadelphia, engaging in the practice of law, specializing in claims against the government. Mr. Penniman was father of Josiah H. Penniman, present Provost of the University of Pennsylvania and of Dr. James H. Penniman, a graduate from Norwich Free Academy and donor of the Penniman Memorial libraries at Yale, Penn., and Brown universities.

Not long ago a check-up of students' reading was made by a writer in Yale Alumni Weekly, when it became known that James Lanman Penniman might really claim the title bestowed upon him by his son, of "one of the great readers of the world." Under the head, "What a Yale Student Read in the Fifties," Henry A. Beers, '69 advanced statistics to show the marvellous use made of the books available at Yale by members of Mr. Penniman's class which included Edmund Clarence Stedman, of Norwich, Hiram Bingham, Wayne MacVeigh, Gen. Edward Haviland, of Norwich, Andrew D. White and others of later national and international distinction.

Every volume given out was recorded; it was shown that J. L. Penniman had drawn 190 books, Hiram Bingham 94, G. R. Duelly, 143, L. S. Potwin 214. Mr. Beers analyzed the character of the books read by Penniman, finding that his choice embraced nothing trashy—all was high class, solid reading—history, popular science, narratives of travel and general literature. In fiction he read old standard novels; the latest fiction on his list is "The Scarlet Letter," published in his freshman year, (1850). He took out many volume of verse. He drew freely of British and American periodicals, read many French books, sometimes in translation, oftener in the original. Many German works in translation appear on his reading list, with important standard miscellaneous works.

Mr. Beers speculates as to the number of modern day Yale students feeding their minds on such a wide variety of reading, admitting that there is practically no reading by undergraduates at the present time—that is, reading for a literary education of the choicest kind of books which Penniman of '53 sought and read and pondered and digested.

Mr. Beers' check-up seems exceptionally timely, in view of the fact that the sons of the Yale man of '53 are taking such a prominent place in literature and educational book producing.

James Hosmer Penniman, in addition to being a writer of text books and historical works, is an ardent admirer of the French nation and over and over again has put into vigorous phrases his idea of what this country owes to her great and generous ally in the troublous times of Colonial uncertainty and struggle.

One of his most widely read works is his frank and fearless "Our Debt to France." Only the past week this volume which champions the country of Lafayette has appeared in America in a new form, having been printed in French for distribution in the French parliament. Its artistic cover, in the French edition, is bordered very significantly, with alternate hearts and dollars.

CHICAGO PASTOR WILL LEAD MINISTERS' CONFERENCE

The two-days ministers' conference for clergymen of all denominations will be held at the Hartford Seminary on Sept. 13th and 14th, in the institution's new buildings in Hartford. The leader will be the Rev. Dr. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago, and his general theme will be "The Vital Mission of the Church." In the five sessions to be held he will treat the theme in relation to the preacher, the pastor, the membership, the community, the nation and the world.

Dr. Stone is widely known as pastor of a large church, writer and college preacher. After pastorates in New York and Baltimore, he became pastor of the Chicago church in 1909. During his ministry there a new building was erected which is known as one of the most beautiful and most completely equipped church plants in the country.

As in other years, lodging will be provided at the seminary dormitories. The first session will begin on Monday, Sept. 13th, at 10 o'clock, standard time. The indications are that the large attendance of other years will be exceeded this year, as opportunities of this kind before the beginning of the winter's work in the parish are being more and more appreciated by the clergy.

WILL BE SPEAKER AT BILL LIBRARY MEETING

Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, New London, is to make the address at the annual Bill library annual meeting and dinner which will be held Wednesday at the well known library in Ledyard.

The exercises will be held at 11 o'clock, standard time, and will be followed by the dinner which will be at 1 o'clock, standard time.

POETRY

The Fortunate Isles

You sail and you look for the Fortunate Isles,
The old Greek Isles of the yellow bird's song?
Then steer straight on through the watery miles,
Straight on, straight on, and you can't go wrong.
Nay, not to the left; nay, not to the right;
But on, straight on, and the Isles are in sight,
The Fortunate Isles, where the yellow birds sing
And life lies girt with a golden ring.

These Fortunate Isles, they are not far,
They lie within reach of the lowliest door;
You can see them gleam by the twilight star;
You can hear them sing by the moon's white shore.
Nay, never look back! Those levelled gravestones
They were landing steps; they were steps unto thrones
Of glory for souls that have sailed before
And have set white feet on the fortunate shore.

And what are the names of the Fortunate Isles?
Why, Duty and Love and a large Content.
Lo! these are the isles of the waters miles
That God let down from the firmament.
Lo! Duty and Love, and a true man's trust;
Your forehead to God and your feet in the dust;
Lo! Duty and Love, and a sweet babe's smiles,
And there, O friends, are the Fortunate Isles.

—Joaquin Miller.

Calumny

A whisper woke the air,
A soft, light tone, and low,
Yet barbed with shame and woe.
Ah! might it only perish there,
Nor father go!

But no! a quick and eager ear
Caught up the little, meaning sound!
Another voice has breathed it clear;
And so it wandered round
From ear to lip, from lip to ear,
Until it reached a gentle heart
That throbbed from all the world apart
And that—it broke!
It was the only heart it found—
The only heart t'was meant to find,
When first its accents woke.
It reached that gentle heart at last,
And that—it broke!

KALEIDOSCOPE

Twenty cities have a population of 1,000,000 or more.

London's lord mayor receives a salary of over $50,000 a year, as well as the use of the mansion house as an official residence. In spite of this, holders of this office have been known to spend as much as $200,000 out of their own pockets.

Ten thousand school children from the provinces recently visited Bogota, the capital of Columbia. The tour was arranged by the ministry of public instruction, and the children, while in the city, attended a session of the national congress, visited schools and other points of interest, and were entertained by organizations and prominent citizens of Bogota.

From 90,000 to 100,000 acres of cotton will be dusted from the air this year in order to combat the foe of America's cotton, the boll weevil. A fleet of 18 airplanes based at Monroe, Ala., will be operated by a commercial concern, which last year sprinkled arsenical poisons on 50,000 acres of cotton. The insect-fighting airmen will operate throughout the southern states and will have the co-operation of Dr. B. R. Coad, of the United States bureau of entomology, and of the Louisiana college of agriculture.

Angora, Turkey, is believed to be the only capital in the world where there are no cinemas, no theaters, dance halls, cabarets or other places of amusement. Although the Anatolian metropolis has a population of 81,500 there are no recreations or diversions of any kind. This is not due to any restrictions of the Koran or Turkish religion, but to the fact that Angora is just emerging from a mud village to a modern capital. Mustapha Kemal, the Turkish dictator, promises that in time the Turkish people and foreign residents will have ample amusements. Plans are now under way for the erection of an opera house to seat 3,000 people.

In his search of the Pacific islands for records of the past, Dr. Herbert E. Gregory, director of Bishop Polynesium Museum at Honolulu, has made discoveries which lead him to believe that these lands were virtually treeless and plantless in comparison to the luxuriant growth of today. "The first visitors to Hawaiian islands," Dr. Gregory finds, "found almost nothing to eat. They faced hardships such as Columbus, Vespucius and the Viking never had to meet—hardships in lack of food and in the laborious method by which they were forced to travel across unknown seas. They traveled thousands of miles in outrigger canoes, carrying with them such fruits as the banana, breadfruit, the cocoanut and the vegetables that are found here now. They and the succeeding pioneers brought with them the fruits and vegetables that now grow in profusion in the South Seas and Hawaii."

BOMBED BANK WHEN DEMAND FOR $2,000 WAS REJECTED

Interior of Farmers' Savings Bank of Pittsburgh Was Wrecked—The Bomber, an Unidentified, Poorly Dressed Man of Foreign Appearance, Was Killed, a Policeman Fatally Injured and Four Others Critically Injured — Twenty-three Persons, Including Bank Employes, Were Admitted to Hospitals—An Unverified Report Was That the Bomber Was a Maniac, Who Recently Escaped From an Asylum.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24—(AP)—Carrying out his threat to blow up the Farmers' Deposit Savings bank if his demand for $2,000 was refused, an unidentified poorly dressed man of foreign appearance this afternoon set off a bomb in the institution, bringing instant death to himself, fatal injuries to a policeman, critical injury to four others and less serious hurts to more than a score of bank employes and pedestrians.

The blast came as special bank police hurried forward to arrest the blackmailer who had presented his demand in the form of a note to a teller. The bomber calmly placed a small black handbag at his feet after making the threat, and, when the officers approached, he gave the satchel a violent kick.

The ensuing explosion decapitated the bomber, injured many others and wrecked the interior of the bank, which is a branch of and occupies the lower quarters as the Farmers' National bank, one of the city's leading financial institutions

Pieces of marble ripped from floors and ceilings and the windows on the first two floors of the 24-story building at Fifth avenue and Wood street, Pittsburgh's busiest intersection in the downtown district, were blown out into the streets, engulfing pedestrians in a shower of glass and debris.

Thousands of persons in nearby theatres and other buildings, as well as afternoon shoppers, rushed into the streets when the blast rocked the district. Soon the streets radiating from the intersection were jammed, and fire apparatus and ambulances could not get through until police reserves from outlying sections arrived.

The crowds were driven back and order restored. Injured pedestrians, men and women, lying on the streets, were placed in police patrols and ambulances and sent to hospitals.

Within the bank, tellers and clerks, crowding from exits, worked feverishly behind the wrecked cages, attempting to gather up thousands of dollars in currency which had been blown about. Beside a shattered window lay the bomber, his head blown off, and the two special policemen, George Ortmann and Albert Anderson. Ortmann was standing within a foot of the bomber when it went off. He died later in a hospital.

Walter Miller, a messenger for the Pittsburgh stock exchange, had arrived at the bank shortly after 2 p. m. as the Farmers' National had closed, but the savings branch was open for business. Miller said that when he walked into the institution he knew something was amiss, for, he said, special officers had been stationed at points of vantage and the bank officials were hurriedly considering a letter. It was not know whether this letter had been mailed by the bomber previously. Miller said that about 3:15 p. m. the poorly dressed man appeared. Miller spoke to another messenger, asking that he be permitted to see one of the bank officials. He said he was told to "stick around for a while. There will be something doing here." He waited and was watching the teller considering the note when the bomb was set off.

The demand for $2,000 bearing a threat to blow up the bank, was handed to D. J. Jones, a teller. Jones turned it over to P. L. Adams, assistant cashier, who in turn called M. A. Kendall, vice president of the Farmers' National, acting head of the bank in the absence of A. E. Braun, newspaper publisher and president of the institution. The vice president called the two special officers and ordered them to arrest the blackmailer, but before they could overpower him he kicked the handbag and set off the death dealing blast.

Twenty-three persons, including a number of bank employes, were admitted to hospitals. Four were not expected to live. Many others, cut by flying glass were treated in nearby buildings and taken to their homes.

All available city detectives, under Inspector Clyde Edeburn, and six county detectives, were on duty tonight investigating the blast. Many wild rumors, all unsubstantiated, were being traced down by the officers. One unverified report had it that the bomber was a maniac who escaped recently from a city asylum. This mad man, it was said, had previously threatened city officials. There were no marks of identification on the badly mutilated body.

NAME OF THE MANIAC WAS JOHN T. COLLINS

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 2—(AP)—The possibility that a bad man was responsible for the bombing of the Farmers' Deposit Savings bank here late today, with a loss of two lives and injuries to more than a score of others, was being investigated by the police tonight.

The discovery of a note book near the spot where the decapitated body was found, led detectives to believe that a maniac who recently created disturbances in the city hall, and who escaped from a city asylum August 10, was the man who carried out his threat to blow up the bank, when his demand for $2,000 was not met.

The note book contained the name of the maniac—John T. Collins. After throwing bricks and breaking furniture in the council chamber some time ago, Collins was sent to Mayview asylum for observation. He escaped and has not been heard of since. The notebook contained the names of many prominent Pittsburghers, including councilmen, and a notation of the dates when council meets.

Collins was described as five feet eight inches tall and weighing 150 pounds. Efforts to compare his measurements with the bomber's body at the morgue were fruitless, for the victim's head and shoulders were missing.

After questioning bank employes present when the blast occured, the police said that undoubtedly, it was a nitroglycerine bomb.

WOMAN WINS TITLE OF CHAMPION CLAM EATER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Forty-five minutes of straight eating won the title of "champion clam eater of Rhode Island and eastern Massachusetts" for Mrs. Rose Roonan, of Central Falls, R. I., at the annual clam bake of the Antiquarian society of Rehoboth today. "Al" Cobb, of North Attleboro, Mass., was runner-up, having consumed about two pecks of clams. Mrs. Rooney downed approximately seven more clams than the nearest competitor.

More than 2,000 people gathered to witness the clam eating contest and to eat the bake.

Mrs. Rooney had a technique which consisted frequent application of butter and vinegar to the clams and she ate them with a fork. Her male competitors used their fingers.

"She's a good feeder," was the remark made by Al Cobb, runner-up, when Mrs. Rooney's victory was declared. She was awarded a silver cup. When asked whether she would eat anything else today, she remarked that "I might take a snack before I get to bed."

BOY CLIMBED 90-FOOT POLE AND WAS ELECTROCUTED

MIDDLETOWN, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A climb to the top of a 90-foot pole near the railroad station tonight brought death to Joseph Roccapriore, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roccapriore of 230 Pearl street.

The pole carries a number of wires, some of which are of high voltage of 2300 volts or less voltage. The boy touched one of the wires and was held fast as it by the electrical current. His calls for help brought a large crowd and the police and fire departments came to his aid, but before he could be reached his body came in contact with one of the high tension wires. This threw him to the ground

The boy was alive when picked up but died while physicians were working over him.

BEQUESTS TO 130 RELATIVES BY MRS. VIRGINIA M. MONROE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP)—One hundred and thirty relatives, many of whom were said to have been located by a genealogical "tree" prepared by the late Prof. Allen Marquand of Princeton university, were bequeathed legacies in the will of Mrs. Virginia Marquand Monroe, filed here today. She died at Tarrytown on July 11 and the value of her estate was unofficially estimated at $2,000,000.

The Pequot library association of Southport, Conn., was bequeathed $50,000.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The state today had ready 12 new witnesses to add to the testimony adducted at the commitment hearing before County Judge Cleary of Henry Carpender and Willie Stevens, charged with the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

Inspector Underwood of the Jersey City police in making this announcement said the witnesses would not be called unless Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker considered the evidence to be presented before him on Thursday insufficient for the holding without bail of the pair

Stevens and Carpender, brother and cousin respectively of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain clergyman who is free in $15,000 bail on the same charge, failed yesterday in their move for temporary liberty when Chief Justice Gummere declined to act on a plea for admission of the two men to bail pending grand jury action.

Methods used to combat the fixing of bail, Inspector Underwood said, would be determined by the procedure adopted by the defense.

If a move is made by the defense to refute the testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman," by placing on the stant of Mrs. Nellie L. Russell, Negress, Underwood said witnesses would who could prove that the latter was not at home the night of Sept. 14, 1922, when the murders were committed.

FIVE YOUG MEN KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

BRIDGEPORT, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Five unidentified young men are dead and two others may die as the result of an accident on the Bridgeport-Shelton state highway in Nichols tonight. Three of the men are believed to have been killed instantly, two others died in Bridgeport hospital, where all were taken in a bus, and the condition of the other two is reported as critical

The seven men, riding in a rented sedan owned by the Ray Renting company, of New Haven, were dressed in working clothes when they were found. No marks of identification were found on the dead men and the two injured, both with possible fractured skulls, were unconscious and dying at the hospital.

The car attempted to round a curve in Nichols Center and hit a large tree. The impact demolished the car and the resulting crash was heard for over half a mile. A passing bus took the seven toward Bridgeport.

Officials of the renting company said the car had been brought to Bridgeport to take care of trade here. The names of those who rented the car could not be learned.

CABLED PARAGAPHS

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Norge, Amundsen's airship which flew over the north pole, has been sold to the Italian government for a million lire, less the Italian government's expenses for gas and transport.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The funeral here today of H. Herman Harjes, the American banker and sportsman, was a remarkable tribute to the man. Rarely has a foreigner received in France the last honors that were accorded the partner of the Morgan banking firm who had a very wide social acquaintance in addition to his many business friends.

FEZ, Morocco, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Abdel-Krim, the fallen chieftain of the Riff, will get a short glimpse of southern France when he lands at Marseilles on September 1 on his way to exile on Reunion Island. The French government has chosen that isolated spot in the Indian ocean as the emir's future home instead of the enchanting Riviera which he himself would have chosen.

ROME, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini signed a convention with the Aero club of Norway defining the economic relations between the Italian government and the club in connection with the recent polar flight of the Norge. This flight over the pole was essentially the work of Italians from the technical side, and was financed to a considerable extent by Italy, from which the contributions exceeded 3,500,000 lire.

PRELIMINARY FUNERAL OF DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT

NORTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Aug. 24.—(AP)—For the last time, Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, left his favorite home today, after a gathering of neighbors and his family had paid a simple tribute at services in Union church. Tonight, his body was being taken, by train, back to Cambridge, Mass., where his world fame as an educator was made.

The brief service here was in the neighborly church with which President Eliot had spent some 30 summers on Mount Desert Island. Earlier in the day he had been brought from his home in Asticou, around the headwaters of the harbor to the little church, built of stone gathered nearby, some of them showing the wear of the tides. The casket was covered by the greenery and flowers which grow on the hills he had loved. Behind were banks of more pretentious tributes of friends.

There was nothing in the brief service to indicate that it was a man of world renown that they were honoring. "Neighbor and counsellor" were the terms stressed by the speakers. "We are here in the spot in which he was most glad to live," said the Rev. Dr. Francis G. Peabody of Cambridge, his brother-in-law. "Here in the spot where he wanted to die."

Dr. Peabody was assisted in the reading of the scriptures, which composed largely of the brief ceremony, by the Rev. Dr. Henry Wilder Foote of Belmont, Mass., a nephew.

At the close, Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, the only surviving son, rose simply in his pew and thanked the congregation for the honors they had done his father. "We should be grateful for his release from the weight of his many years," he said.

Dr. Peabody in his prayer, had stressed the same thought. 'Our neighbor, counsellor and friend," he began, "he was endeared to us by his interest in our common good. He taught by precept and example the way of simplicity, integrity and peace. For these abundant mercies our prayer is of thanksgiving and praise."

The ushers, all of Boston, were W. Rodman Peabody, Charles Edward Guild, Professor Theodore Lyman of Harvard, and Dr. Henry Lyman, all nephews.

Passing out, the congregation wound down the hillside into the little village. A gentle fog rolled in from the sound and Frenchman's Bay, and clung in fragments to the pine tree tops and hill summit. Later as the body was being taken to Ellsworth, where it was placed on the night train, due in Boston early tomorrow forenoon, a quiet rain fell.

Tomorrow afternoon in Cambridge, the place from which Charles W. Eliot had exerted world influence, further services will be held. Dr. Peabody will be assisted there by Rev. George A. Gordon, D. D., of the old South Church, Boston, who for 40 years was a close friend of the educator. From Apleton chapel, in Harvard yard, Dr. Eliot will be carried to Mount Auburn cemetery, his final resting place.

$1,000,000 CARGO OF LIQUOR SEIZED IN BOSTON LAST WEEK

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—An extensive investigation spreading from Boston to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and that may involve wealthy and influential citizens is now being conducted by government agents as a result of the seizure of a million dollar cargo of liquor here last month. Federal officials, investigating the arrival or the Steamship Cretan here on July 7 with the huge liquor cargo concealed in her hold, claim that a widespread conspiracy, reaching back six months, may be uncovered.

While federal officials refused to discuss the case it was said upon good authority that numerous agents at work in various cities have as their objective the wealthy heads of a ring said to be authors of the effort to flood this district with alcohol. The agents are working on the theory that none but a wealthy organization could finance a venture including the purchase of the steamer and its enormous cargo.

DISSIDENT BRITISH MINERS HAVE REJOINED STRIKERS

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The efforts of A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners' federation, combined with active picketing and some intimidation, especially by women, who appeared incensed against the "blacklegs," had the effect today of decreasing greatly the number of miners descending into the pits. Thus the owners' hopes of breaking the strike by an offer to maintain wages on a 7 1-2 hour day basis were dashed.

This afternoon the Mansfield district pits were almost deserted by the men who dissented yesterday, and the mine owners generally admit their disappointment. The drafting of numerous police into the district to afford protection to willing workers caused great resentment among the mining population and seems likely to infuse elements of disorder into the dispute, which up to the present has been exceptionally orderly and law abiding. Continuance of the strike necessitates the recalling of parliament to authorize the continuance of the emergency regulations.

A Flood of Tributes For Senator Fernald

Included Telegrams From President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes and Many Other Eminent Men.

WEST POLAND, Me., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Messages of sympathy and tender tributes to his personal qualities, as well as his services to the nation and state, poured in today as final arrangements were being made for a simple funeral service Thursday for United States Senator Bert M. Fernald, who died late yesterday, a victim of intestinal poisoning and a weakened heart.

These included telegrams from President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, Attorney General John G. Sargent, former governors of Maine, associates in the senate, and many others.

Complying with the senato's often expressed wish, the service will be very brief. It will be held at 1 o'clock, standard time, in the little country church, of which he was a member, as few hundred yards from his home on the farm, held by four generations of the family, which he attended regularly when here.

Rev. James F. Albion, D. D., of Brunswick, formerly pastor of Congress Square Universalist church, Portland, will deliver the only eulogy. The bearers will be business associates. Burial will be in the family lot. Already, with a host of grieving friends pouring into this little village, it is seen that the small church will be able to accommodate only a handful of the throng.

Appointment of the usual committee of senators to attend the service, by Vice President Dawes will be omitted in compliance with a request he received today from Mr. Fernald's secretary, Miss Olive Boynton. Senator Frederick Hale of Portland, Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the republican national committee, and the Maine representatives in congress will attend.

President Coolidge, in a message of sympathy to the widow, said in part: "It was a great shock to all of us to learn of the sudden and untimely death of Senator Fernald. He was an old and very good friend of mine and a man of large and commanding influence in the United States senate."

From Vice President Dawes was received the following telegram:

"I send deep sympathy to you in your great bereavement. Senator Fernald was a construcive force in the senate, and in all public life. His loss is great, not only to that body, but to the entire country."

Other tributes follow:

Attorney General Sargent: "Please accept my deepest sympathy in your loss."

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire: "Greatly distressed to learn of Senator Fernald's death and send you warmest sympathy."

Senator Royel S. Copeland, New York: "I loved your husband and mourn his death. Mrs. Copeland joins me in expressions of sympathy."

Rev. J. J. Muir, chaipain of the senate: "Sincere sympathy; may God comfort you and your family in your great sorrow."

Former Governor William T. Cobb: "I beg to offer to you and to the members of your family my sincere and abiding sympathy."

Former Governor Carl E. Milliken: "The shock although not unexpected, was a great one. He was an able representative of the state in the senate, and made loyal, warm-hearted friends."

Former Governor Percival P. Baxter: "He was an able, faithful and unselfish public servant. The people of Maine trusted him implicitly, as did his associates in the senate. He was a splendid example of an honest man in public life."

President Kenneth C. M. Sills of Bowdoin college: "Please accept my deep personal sympathy, and that of Bowdoin college on the death of your distinguished husband, for whom I have had for many years warm regards. The state of Maine will long miss his kindly, friendly, honest way."

HOWARD MISSING SINCE DEATH OF HIS WIFE

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 24.—(AP)—John F. Howard, the rich salad dressing maker from Haverhill, Mass., has disappeared following the death of his wife on Sunday. His son Albert suspects his father has fled to the United States to avoid coming to a settlement with him and his brother who are seeking to make the father divide his estate with their mother in Haverhill, the father's first wife. The sons declare they will press charges of bigamy and forgery against the father to force him to make a proper financial settlement. There is no suspicion whatever, that the second wife, who was Mrs. Eleanor B. Phillips of Milwaukee, died from other than natural causes. The American hospital reports the cause of death as double pneumonia and spinal meningitis. The body will be sent to Milwaukee for burial.

Mrs. Howard was the second wife of the Massachusetts manufacturer, whose divorce and remarriage in Mexico caused lawsuits between him and his two sons. The sons alleged perjury and bigamy against their father and in July had him jailed on a court writ at Cuernavaca. After a few days he was released on bail, the judge ruling there was not sufficient evidence to hold him. The senior Howard maintained that he had not violated any Mexican law and that any irregularities in his divorce were the fault of his attorney. He also asserted he had left a sufficient amount of property with his first wife in Haverhill.

The management of the hotel where the elder Howard lived do not believe he has fled from Mexico but think he is hiding from his sons lest they have him jailed again.

Views of Coolidge on Political Affairs

Chief Executive Declares Question of American Admission to World Court Will be Dealt With On Its Merits.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP)—There is no foundation, in the opinion of President Coolidge, for any suppositions that foreign countries will suggest propositions for economic trades in connection with the entrance of the United States into the permanent court of international justice.

It is the assumption of Mr. Coolidge, it was said, at the summer white house in his behalf today, that the question of American admission to the court will be dealt with on its merits, involving as it does acquiescence by other nations in the senate reservations to the protocol of adherence.

Referring to reports that reductions in the American tariff would be sought from abroad before consent would be given the United States to become a member of the court on the terms set forth, officials pointed out that proposals of that character would have to be taken up by congress, a course deemed impractical here.

The president doubts, it was added, that any informed authorities of other countries would think of making any such suggestion.

As for reports that the west would seek a revision of tariff schedules, especially an agricultural products in the congress to be elected in November, it was said Mr. Coolidge had heard little comment on that question from visitors at White Pine camp, many of whom recently have discussed the farm situation with him.

The president, it was added, had read the views of Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, as set forth during his call last week at the summer white house predicting that the agricultural west would move for such a revision but the senator did not discuss the subject with Mr. Coolidge.

Emphasizing what had been said earlier by Senator Wadsworth and Samuel S. Koenig, chairman of the New York county republican committee, after visits with Mr. Coolidge, officials said for the president that he had held no conference regarding the selection of the republican nominee for governor and didn't expect to. The chief executive, it was added, was perfectly willing to entrust any interest he had in the selection to the state convention.

The president, after devoting the morning to government business at the executive offices, returned to White Pine camp to receive Representative Martin Madden, republican, Illinois, chairman of the House Appropriations committee, for a discussion of government budget problems.

Mr. Coldge and Brigadier General Lord, director of the budget, make up the prospective budgets each year but it is for Mr. Madden and congress to pass the apropriations.

Recently General Lord brought the preliminary estimates for the fiscal year 1928 to White Pine camp and the president lopped $99,000,000 off the tentative allotments to the departments and bureaus, bringing the total down to $3,270,000,000. Final estimates on the revised basis are to be submited by the department on September 15 and soon thereafter the House Appropriations committee will begin its hearings on the appropriation bills that are to be framed under the budget.

A word of caution was sounded informally to the press of the country today from the summer white house on the effect the publication or "unfounded suppositions" concerning foreign affairs may have upon the maintenance of friendly relations by the United States with other nations.

Without specific reference to any recent despatches but a mention in general of some dispatches that had appeared both in this country and in Europe, officials said in behalf of the president that the press should "exercise care" in such matters.

Reference was made to the address Mr. Coolidge delivered at the laying of the corner stone of the National Press Building in Washington last spring when he pointed out the harmful effect on friendly relations among countries of unfounded reports in the press.

STEAMER AGROUND NEAR POLLOCK RIP LIGHTSHIP

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The steamship Steel Navigator, Boston for New York, went aground tonight on Sear Shoals, near Pollock Rip lightship The coast guard cutter Red Wing, responded to the vessel's call for assistance. The message from the Stee. Navigator said she was resting on soft bottom and in no immediate danger.

The Navigator stuck on the north side of the channel, entrance to the eastern end of Nantucket sound, according to her message to the navy yard here. The Wayanda coast guard section base 3, on Nantucket, 12 miles distant, sent the CG-224 to the scene but several hours later the picket boat reported she had been unable to locate the Navigator on account of dense fog.

The 224 reported she was circling the spot, while the coast guard vessels Red Wing and Paulding indicated they were proceeding immediately to the scene. Wayanda reported an exceedingly heavy fog, but a fairly smooth sea.

SEASON HAS PASSED FOR SWIMMING ENGLISH CHANNEL

FRENZIED MOB FOUGHT TO VIEW BODY OF VALENTINO

Surging Mass of Humanity Crashed in a Large Plate Glass Window of Funeral Parlor—Three Women Were Cut, Another Woman Was Injured Under the Hoofs of a Policeman's Horse and Several Fainted—Three Policemen Were Injured in Their Efforts to Restrain People Who Were Forced Toward the Broken Glass—Funeral Service Will be Held Monday in St. Malachy's Church.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino today attracted to his bier such crowds as gather to pay tribute to a dead president or a king.

Thousands of men, women and children throughout the day jammed the streets outside the Broadway funeral parlors where the body of the actor lay in state, following his death yesterday at the height of a meteoric career which lifted him from an humble position to stardom as the original sheik.

A rainfall that set in shortly after noon did not deter the crowd in its determination to view the body of its dead idol. Women wearing fashionable clothes vied with poorly dressed women of the tenement districts in the struggle to gain an advantageous position to be among the first to view the body.

By 4 o'clock, the time set for opening of the funeral parolr doors to the public, more than 12,000 persons were gathered on the streets outside.

Shortly before the doors were to be opened, a large plate glass window in the funeral parlor was crashed by the on-surging ranks. Three women were cut when they were shoved through the gap of jagged glass and another woman was injured under the hoofs of a policeman's horse and several fainted in the scrambling mass of humanity. Three policemen were cut in trying to prevent serious injuries to the people who were forced toward the broken plate glass.

Other persons were injured in the rush that marked the opening of the doors. Some of them were taken to hospitals, but most of them suffered only minor injuries and were given emergency treatment. During the onrush, a second plate glass window was broken, injuring several more.

In the confusion men and women tore at one another with their hands, kicked with their feet, and even attempted to climb to the shoulders of others. Clothing was torn, hats lost and trampled upon, and even coats, vests and shirts were torn from their wearers and tossed into the air by grappling hands.

Before the doors of the funeral parlors were opened, all pieces of statuary, paintings and bric-a-brac were removed from the lower floors of the establishment. Officials of the place said a boarded lane would be built to compel future crowds to enter single-file.

Valentino alive never drew such a crowd as Valentino dead. Some of the women wept as they waited hours in the street.

While the crowd massed outside, the actor's body was placed in a simple silver bronzed casket in the ornate gold room of the funeral parlors. The coffin was surrounded by yellow gladiolus and surmounted by a single red rose. The body was dressed in formal evening attire.

The body was to lie in state until midnight tonight. Thereafter the public was to be allowed to view the body tomorrow and Thursday from 9 a. m. to midnight.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning in St. Malachy's church. Father Edward F. Leonard, who heard Valentino's confession before he died, will officiate.

After the funeral the body will be placed in a reception vault in Woodlawn cemetery, unless Alberto Guglielmi, the actor's brother who is on his way to New York from Paris, has arrived by that time. He is to decide the place of burial. S. George Ullman, who was Valentino's manager, will urge the brother to permit the body to be buried in Hollywood, Calif.

Floral offerings were received at the funeral parlors continually throughout the day. Some of these were simple, inexpensive offerings, apparently sent by persons in humble circumstances. They were placed in the parlor with the more expensive floral wreaths, which also arrived in large numbers.

It was a nondescript crowd that surged about in the rain outside the funeral church. Flappers in gay dresses, shabbily dressed women with shawls over their heads and matrons attired in elegant frocks jostled with men and boys for a place in the queue that formed at the door. Mounted policemen surrounded the crowd and made way for traffic, which was blocked when the crowd surged into the streets.

The crowd began gathering before 8 o'clock this morning, and steadily increased as 4 o'clock drew near.

Messages of sympathy continued to pour into the offices of the United Artists corporation from all parts of the country and cablegrams also were received from abroad. One message was sent from Hollywood by a group of Valentino's co-workers, including Charles Chaplin, John Barrymore, Buster Keaton and Samuel Goldwyn.

Among those who will be asked to act as honorary pallbearers are Will Hays, Mayor Walker, Joseph Schenck, Adolph Zuckor, Marcus Loew and Hiram Abrams.

The funeral parlor where the body lies in state is on the northern edge of the theatrical district, and in hundreds of houses not far away lives a large percentage of New York's theatrical population.

VALENTINO ESTATE SAID NOT TO EXCEED $75,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Although Rudolph Valentino earned approximately $2,000,000 during his screen career, he was usually without money, Joseph M. Schenck, executive director of the United Artists corporation, for which Valentino made pictures, said today.

The potential earning power of the man who thrilled the romantic imaginations of screen fans was easily a million dollars a year, Mr. Schenck asserted, but his net estate, so far is known, does not exceed $75,000.

"Valentino was just beginning to realize large earnings in the last two years," Mr. Schenck said. "I should say that in the last year and a quarter he made between $800,000 and a million dollars in pictures. He made perhaps two million dollars during his entire screen career.

"Rudy made no investments. He lived well, spending freely, and was exceedingly generous with his friends. I know he never had any money, regardless of his earnings. He didn't know its value."

Valentino had taken out a personal insurance policy for $50,000, Mr. Schenck said, with his brother and sister, Alberto and Maria Guglielmi, as beneficiaries. The United Artists had insured him for $200,000. Valentino had made a will, which is now in Hollywood, according to S. George Ullman, the late actor's manager.

HARTFORD LIGHT RAISES ITS CUSTOMER DIVIDEND

HARTFORD, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A customer dividend of 60 per cent, an increase of 10 per cent over the customer dividend which was allowed to patrons of the Hartford Electric Light company last October, will be returned on October bills this fall. This action was taken today at a meeting of the directors of the company. A year ago the customer dividend amounted to about $225,000 and on that basis, with the ten per cent additional this year, the amount involved will be in excess of $250,000, making allowance of the company's increased business for the year.

In addition the stockholders of the company will benefit by the return of a premium amounting to $6.25 collected in connection with the issue of additional shares in 1920. The amount of this is about $62,500.

The Hartford Electric Light company inaugurated the policy of paying customer dividends a year ago.

GENERAL PANGALOS TO BE SENT TO AEGINA ISLAND

ATHENS, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The popular anger against General Pangalos, the dethroned dictator, has made it necessary for the authorities to transfer Lim to Aegina island, a small island a few miles from Athens in the Gulf of Aegina. Invasion of the military hospital where Pangalos had been detained was threatened by organized mobs, and when motorcars with a strong escort arrived and removed the former president, crowds gathered and shouted denunciations against him.

Mme. Pangalos was present at the time and was quickly surrounded by a threatening mob, which was dispersed by the military forces, and Pangalos conveyed safely to a car, which speeded away. He was placed aboard a steamer and taken to Aegina.

The general appeared livid and exceedingly nervous, and everywhere met with hostile demonstrations.

TEST OF AIRPLANE WITH RAINMAKING APPARATUS

HARTFORD, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The second "definitely successful," flight of the airplane equipped with "rain-making" apparatus, was made here today. In today's test, the pilot drove his plane into a dense cloud over the city, with the cloud disperser, a means of discharging electrically charged sand, working. Fearing that he had lost his way, the pilot started to retrace his course and found that the charged sand had cut a channel of clear atmosphere through the cloud, marking the wake of his machine. Another flight will be made tomorrow, which, if as successful as those of yesterday and today, will result in a request to the navy department in Washington for another pilot. Two navy planes are stationed at Brainard field here for the use of the inventor, Dr. L. Francis Warren.

One of the little echoes which reverberate now and then from the strike of the thread mills, over one year ago was heard in police court Tuesday morning when Frank Salvegio, charged with breach of the peace, said that his neighbors had called his wife and family names because they were now working at the plant. Joseph Musial, of Yellow Row, was the complainant in the case, establishing a second cause of the trouble as dissatisfaction, on Salvegio's part, over the report made to the police of a slight automobile accident Sunday. Musial, Mrs. Agnes Depathy and Mrs. Mary Solanski testified that the accused called Musial names and created a disturbance in general. Musial remained in his doorway to avoid a fight. Officer Bombria said that he found a large gallery to the altercation when he arrived, after having received a complaint. Salveggio denied making any trouble, asserting that he only wanted to talk to Musial about the accident. Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews found the man guilty and imposed a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $12.95, which was paid.

At the home of the bride's parents, 32 Taylor court, breakfast was served to forty guests from Hartford, Bristol, Jewett City, Burnside and this city. For traveling the bride was attired in dark blue georgette, with hat to correspond. Mr. and Mrs. Hansen left for New York by motor. After the wedding trip they will reside in East Hartford.

Phillips reported $1,765.50 paid to him. It was estimated that a suitable memorial will cost at least $2,000. Charles H. Davis was invited to speak to the various spots suggested, seven in all and eliminated all but two—the land owned by the government, west of the new post office, while the memorial would be seen the best and on the right side of Baptist Hill, which is the most artistic, but he thought there only a few of the residents would see it. After his report a committee of three, Mr. Davis chairman, to select the other two, was authorized to select the memorial. Unseen Sources of Long Life

The basic sources of automobile value are not always apparent to the eye.

A motor car, like a house, may LOOK a great deal more substantial than it really is.

Because of this difficulty, more and more thousands are turning to Dodge Brothers product for insurance against disappointment.

The years have proved, and each year proves anew, that Dodge Brothers are as deeply concerned with the UNSEEN goodness of their motor car, as with the seen.

The mileage it will deliver, the safety it will provide, the expense and trouble it will save the owner over a period of years, are quite as important to Dodge Brothers as the more obvious details of equipment and style.

What Are You Studying?

HISTORY, mathematics, literature, languages, science? In your whole curriculum, there is no lesson more important than how to guard your health. Long after your hard-won French vocabulary is forgotten, you will be putting into daily practice—if you are wise—the rules of health.

School work, with its continual studying, its sports, dances and social affairs demands a vigorous body. How discouraging it is to miss the good times. And sometimes, how unnecessary.

First of all, then, learn the lesson of health. Find out what fresh air will do, exercise, sleep and proper food. Many school girls have learned that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them to find the health they needed and has made their school days happier.

"I gave my fifteen year old daughter, Louise, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it did her a wonderful lot of good. She had been out of school for four months. I read the advertisements of the Vegetable Compound, and since she has taken it she has improved and has gone back to school again. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other mothers with girls who are not as strong as they should be."

POETRY

Our Orders

Weave no more silks, ye Lyons looms,
To deck our girls for gay delights!
The crimson flower of battle blooms,
And solemn marches fill the night.

Weave but the flag whose bars today
Drooped heavy o'er our early dead,
And homely garments, coarse and gray,
For orphans that must earn their bread!

Keep back your tunes, ye viols sweet,
That poured delight from other lands!
Rouse there, the dancer's restless feet,
The trumpet leads our warrior bands.

And ye that wage the war of words
With mystic fame and subtle power,
Go, chatter to the idle birds,
Or teach the lesson of the hour!

Ye Sibyl Arts, in one stern knot
Be all your offices combined!
Stand close, while Courage draws the lot,
The destiny of human kind.

And if that destiny could fail,
The sun should darken in the sky,
The eternal bloom of Nature pale,
And God, and Truth, and Freedom, die!

—Julia Ward Howe.

Hymn of the Earth

My highway is unfeatured air,
My consorts are the sleepless stars,
And men my giant arms upbear,—
My arms unstained and free from scars

I rest forever on my way,
Rolling around the happy Sun!
My children love the sunny day,
But noon and night to me are one.

My heart has pulses like their own,
I am their mother, and my veins,
Though built of the enduring stone,
Thrill as do theirs with Godlike pains.

The forests and the mountains high,
The foaming ocean and the springs,
The plains.—O Pleasant Company,
My voice through all your anthem rings!

Ye are so cheerful in your minds,
Content to smile, content to share:
My being in your chorus finds
The echo of the spheral air.

No leaf may fall, no pebble roll,
No drop of water lose the road;
The issues of the general Soul
Are mirrored in its round abode.

—William Ellery Channing.

Chemists need delicate scales. Dr. Joseph Bach, of Marquette university, has some which he believes will do. To test them he took a sheet of paper and wrote a name on it, leaving the letter "I" undotted. Then he weighed the paper and obtained a perfect balance by using a hair wire of aluminum as a weight. This done, he dotted the "I" and returned the paper to the scales. They did not balance. The difference was found to be two-one-hundredthousand hs of a grain.

DANIELSON

BODY AVIATOR SAW MAY BE MISSING BILLY MAURICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 24.—There is a possibility that the body reported by Aviator Argles as floating in the sound between Plum Island and the mouth of the Thames river, as told in the Bulletin of Tuesday, is that of Billy Maurice, 28, as he was known to his New York associates, but whose real name is William Coutu, brother of Edward Coutu, of 46 Dyer street, Danielson.

Billy Maurice, having disposed of a cabaret business in New York, sailed from that city July 13 on a Providence-bound steamer. Upon the arrival of the steamer at Providence the following morning Maurice's stateroom was vacant. His hat, coat, traveling bag and two bank books that were his property were found in the stateroom, but there was not a trace of Maurice.

Members of the crew of the vessel recalled seeing Maurice walking coatless about the deck at about 2:30 a. m. His absence from the vessel the next morning created the impression that he might have fallen overboard.

In the meantime the family tarough various means has sought for the recovery of the body. A week ago radio stations in Providence and Boston broadcasted requests for the Coutu family that any information relative to bodies recovered along the coast be sent to Maurice's relatives.

Maurice, who is a son of Peter Maurice of Lowell, left Danielson about 20 years ago with his parents. He was a waiter in various well known New York hotels and eventually became a captain of waiters with a hotel syndicate and at one time was at the Mount Royal hotel, Montreal. More recently he had been engaged in business for himself, but sold out early in July and wrote to his sister, Mrs. Joseph Mason, of 267 Pawtucket street, Lowell that he wanted to come to some shore resort near there for a month and requested that she arrange for a room for him.

He was later notified that this had been arranged and he started out of New York on the night of June 13. His relatives believe that he had a large sum of money upon his person, the proceeds of the sale of his business, and that possibly he was robbed and thrown off the boat by someone who happen to know he was carrying an unusual amount of money.

Maurice was about 5 feet 7 inches tall of medium height, had dark hair, midget worn in his mouth and had a diamond ring and wrist watch when he disappeared. If his body is ever recovered it is anticipated it will be found minus hat and coat as he was said when last seen walking along the deck of the boat in the early hours of the morning of July 14.

WEATHERBEE REFUSES TO TESTIFY AT INQUEST

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 24.—Raymond Weatherbee, of North Grosvenordale, held without bail at the Windham county jail in Brooklyn, to face a charge of murder, in the first degree has refused, by advice of counsel, to testify at Coroner A. G. Bill's inquest relative to the death of an unnamed female child of which Miss Agnes Pytko, 17, of Wilsonville, in the town of Thompson admits being the mother and accuses Weatherbee of sharing in the parentage of the child.

The body of the child was recovered from a cove in the river near Wilsonville by State Officer F. V. Streeter of the Danielson barracks after revelations that were made to him by Miss Pytko while she was a patient at the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam after giving birth to the child in the small hours of the morning on the river bank near where the child's body was recovered.

Unable to obtain any testimony from Weatherbee, Coroner Bill Tuesday released the following findings relative to the case:

The undersigned coroner within and for the County of Windham, having received notice on the 3rd day of July 1926 that an unnamed female infant child of Agnes Pytko of Thompson, Conn., had been found dead in the French river in the village of Wilsonville in said Thompson. I viewed the body of said deceased and caused an autopsy to be made thereon by Robert Paine, M. D., medical examiner of said town of Thompson. And on the 13th, 16th and 23rd days of July held an inquest as to the cause and manner of said death from the report of said autopsy and the testimony taken at said inquest.

And that the said unnamed female infant child of said Agnes Pytko died at said Thompson on the 30th day of June 1926 from a fracture of skull and other injuries caused and inflicted upon said child by said Agnes Pytko and Raymond Weatherbee of said town of Thompson. I therefore find that said death was caused by the criminal acts of said Agnes Pytko and Raymond Weatherbee. I delivered the body of said deceased to Smith and Walker, undertakers of Putnam, Conn., for burial. The said Agnes Pytko and Raymond Weatherbee having already been prosecuted for the murder of said female infant child, I find it unnecessary to communicate the import of this finding to a prosecuting officer of said town of Thompson. I file with this finding the report of said autopsy and a copy of the testimony taken at said inquest. Dated at Danielson, Conn., this 23rd day of August, 1926. Arthur Bill, coroner for Windham county.

Details of how Newell A. Badger of Abington met death a week ago Sunday, when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by the locomotive of a train, proceeding past Elliott station, in the town of Pomfret, were supplied Coroner A. G. Bill Tuesday by the engine crew, summoned here to tell of their knowledge of the facts.

The men in the locomotive cab were Engineer Fred E. Wilson, of New Haven and Fireman Joseph F. Robey of Hartford.

Fireman Robey testified that he first saw the Badger machine when it was astride the west-bound track, At Elliott station one track sweeps around the west side of the station and the east-bound track is on the other side of the station, which is between the double line of truckage. At this particular point there is considerable space between the tracks, ample for a car to park in safety while a train might pass on either track, or both.

Fireman Robey said that Badger appeared to be driving as slowly as 15 miles an hour and the fireman said he gained the impression that Bader was going to stop his machine by the tracks to allow the train to run by. When Badger continued to come ahead Robey said he shouted a warning to the engineer, but it was too late to stop the train and the locomotive plowed into the car, killing Badger.

Engineer Wilson said that when he first saw the Badger car it was partly across the east-bound track. The locomotive was so close upon it that it that there was no chance at all to stop the train. The locomotive hit one side of the Badger car near a rear wheel. Engineer Wilson said, and Fireman Robey testified, the train was coasting along down the heavy grade at that point and was making a speed of about 45 miles an hour.

G. Bill as the driver of the car in which Hughes' cousin Lawrence Hughes, was killed at Attawaugan Sunday morning. When Hughes is able to appear in court he will come in to face a charge of manslaughter.

Plant department crews of the S. N. T. company were engaged Tuesday in installing a new underground cable through Main from Academy street to a point near the railroad crossing. This is a 332-pair cable. Cable splicers were at work in the afternoon and it is anticipated that the installation will be completed by September 1.

Amades Lussier of Pawtucket, ser-iously injured in an automobile accident on the Brooklyn highway one Sunday last April only recently has been able to leave a hospital in Pawtucket and is far from well. Nine were hurt in the crash between the car Lussier was operating and another Pawtucket machine, one of Lussier's daughter's dying of her injuries within a few hours.

PUTNAM

RAILROAD SAFEGUARDS PROPERTY NEAR STATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 24—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad has erected a fence along the west side of the railroad station platform, opposite the old Chickering House.

For some time automobile drivers have been using the private way east of the Chickering House block to drive into and turn around. In making the turn they get very close to the west-bound tracks of the railroad and the company officials considered this a dangerous practice and erected the fence. The railroad company at first thought of closing the way entirely but this has not been done. Drivers may still enter the space between the sidewalk and the fence and still have room to turn. There are thirteen substantial posts set deep in the ground and a rail made of a three inch cast iron pipe runs the length of the fence, which extends from in front of the Putnam News company to the Front street bridge. The fence is strong enough to stand any ordinary onslaught from any ordinary vehicle.

MISSES GROSVENOR TO LIVE IN NEW HOME IN ITALY

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 24—Misses Sara and Ursula Grosvenor, sisters of the late Rev. Dr. William Grosvenor, for many years rector of the Church of the Incarnation on Madison avenue, New York and afterwards dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine of Morningside Heights, are spending the late summer at Pomfret. Miss Ursula lately returned from Italy, where she and her sister recently purchased a house in Florence and plan to make it their permanent home.

About 1,000 members of the Ku Klux Klan held a meeting Monday night at Woodstock Fair grounds. They came from Killingly, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, as there are but a few members of the hooded order in Putnam. Many of them rode through the streets here in their robes and hoods which were closely drawn around their faces but there were no masks worn. At the Fair grounds, to which only members were admitted, several speeches were made and a cross made of electric bulbs was lighted.

Probably as many sight-seers as there were members drove up to Woodstock chiefly out of curiosity as it is one of the few K. K. K. meetings that has been held in Putnam.

As far as is known there are but few members here and but little sympathy with the movement. Half of the local population is of French-Canadian descent and members of the Catholic faith. They and their Protestant neighbors meet and live in the utmost amity, do business together and have close, friendly relations. During the war a very great portion of those who went from here were of French descent, and an exceptionally large number of them were volunteers; a fact that has not been forgotten.

Putnam Rotary Clun has issued a new weekly publication called "The Broadcaster" devoted to records of meetings and local topics. The following item was in the last issue:

"Visitors last meeting: A. J. Gifford, Worcester Rotary, Mr. Morton of New York and Mr. Holmes, formerly of Putnam.

"Mr. Gifford gave us a good talk on practical business ethics which was interesting and instructive. If all business is done in the manner described, it will be pleasant and profitable."

Stanley Kelly, headmaster of Proc-tor Academy, also head of the Big K Ranch Trail for Boys at Andover, N. H., has been staying at Camp Eastford, Crystal Lake for several days. Mr. Kelley has with him on a hike the following boys: R. D. Farmer, New York; John Rivers, Alden B. Tiplin, Byron Flanckers, Carmon Jack, Norman Waldo, William G. S. Hayden, Charles Kelley, Robert Chamberlain and Jack Collins all of the Big K Ranch. They had a string of saddle horses. Mr. Kelley had charge of the camp for boys at Crystal Lake for a number of years.

Miss Dorcas Bartlett, who left Put-nam to become advance agent for Chautauqua is expected home about the first of September. She will end her work at Washington, N. J., where the season of Circuit B closes. While at Dunmore, Pa., a few days ago, Miss Bartlett was engaged to sing before the Professional and Business Men's club and was well received. This club was a strong factor in putting over Chautauqua big at Dunmore.

Funeral services for Miss Hazel Perry, who died on Saturday at Springfield, Mass., were held Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church, Rev. N. C. Burton officiating. Burial was at Grove street cemetery.

Among the people at the Parsonage cottage Pomfret, are Robert K. Snow and Mr. Piper of Boston having come from Bar Harbor, Maine; Miss Findlay of Chairmain, Pa.; Miss Pauline D. Riggs, New York; Robert Noyes, Porto Rico. Miss Riggs recently purchased the Tyrone farm house and will develop it into a beautiful country estate.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph C. Jenkins and Mrs. Jenkins have been at Webster Lake with Mr. and Mrs. E. Le Robinson who have had a cottage there for several weeks.

K. K. K. ACCUSATIONS ALARM LOCAL MERCHANTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 24.—Business interests in Danielson have reacted positively to the activities of young men who painted K. K. K. signs on highways a few days since. Likewise marked a walk leading to the Sacred Heart church at Wauregan. Denials came thick and fast from business men here Tuesday that they have any connection with the Klan. Rumors that this one and that one among the business men is a member is injurious to each in a business sense and all feel outraged that unseemly goings-on should be the means of endangering their trade and commercial interests. Here is one of the most unfortunate phases of a particularly odorous and malevolent escapade. Entirely innocent persons are fearful of being penalized by the thousands who live here and hereabouts, who are the objects of the Klan's propaganda against those of the Catholic faith.

It may be said here and now, for all to know that there is not a responsible business man in Danielson in the Klan ranks. They have shunned the organization. This statement is made that no business man may suffer losses of trade through groundless rumors that are going about, and that discrimination will be made by those whose suffered indignities at the hands of the painters of the K. K. K. signs against those who are in business here. While feeling runs high, it will be well for all outside the organization to discredit rumors that are not only untrue, but dangerous. From any angle, the sign painters have done a sorry service for this section of eastern Connecticut.

FREEMAN'S CANDIDACY

The announcement by Congressman Freeman that he would be a candidate for reelection this fall was in keeping with expectations.

Having served six terms in the national legislature it is apparent that he has gained an experience there which is especially valuable to this district and to the state. Having served as congressman longer than any other representative in the lower house, barring Floor Leader Tilson, there no mistaking the belief that it is the sentiment of the district that he should not only be a candidate but that he should be sent back to Washington.

What the people of the second district think of Congressman Freeman has been repeatedly disclosed at the polls. He has been elected to that responsible office every time his name has come before them and his constituents have come to realize that his efforts in behalf of this district and his prestige in Washington are such that it would be a gross mistake not to retain such a public servant.

Congressman Freeman declares that he is ready to go before the people on his record of 12 years' service in Congress and in that he is thoroughly justified. Why shouldn't he be ready to stand on such a record? It has been one of steady and consistent accomplishment. It hasn't been punctuated with oratorical fireworks, egotistical filibustering or endeavors to trip up the administration. It has shown a constant application to the duties of the office, a regard for the interests of the district and respectful consideration for the many appeals with which a congressman is constantly besieged.

In all parts of the district there is recognition of the good work which has been quietly but effectively done by the congressman, who has been found a rugged supporter of the administration.

The statement to the effect that Congressman Freeman is willing to return to Washington will mean that the people of the district will eagerly embrace the opportunity to see that it is accomplished. They know when they are well served and will insist on the continuance of the same.

WIDENING HIGHWAYS

In connection with highway travel the need of widening the roads has long since been recognized. It is not only a question of building more good and permanent roads but of constructing wider ones. The amount of traffic is such in many places that the roads which accommodate a line of traffic in each direction is far from adequate. This means that the widening process must go on quite the same as the provision of additional tracks had to be faced by railroads which found single or double tracks insufficient to handle business.

Whether the widening of highways can be expected to continue indefinitely, or whether the time is coming when truck traffic will be furnished a road of its own is a question. The trunk lines are the ones which must get attention of this kind and yet the wisdom of putting down other highways of greater width than was formerly done is not being overlooked. The matter of width is demanding attention quite the same as the easing of the grades and the elimination of the curves.

But where is the highway problem going to stop? It gives concern to city as well as to state highway departments. It is an interesting situation which has developed in New York where a large railroad which has been using one of the big terminals in that city has given it up and plans henceforth to transfer all patrons of the road from the center of New York city under the Hudson to the station in New Jersey. Large busses are provided for this purpose which means that transportation which has heretofore been provided on rails over private rights of ways is going to be transferred to the already much congested streets of New York city, and yet those busses are expected to run so regularly that the patrons will make connection with the trains.

Should all railroads undertake to move their patrons to and from the center of New York by means of motor busses it can be appreciated what effect it would have upon the street traffic. Clearly narrow streets and highways were not intended for and are not adequate for such ever increasing traffic.

THE GREEK COUP

Greece has been knocking about from one extreme to another for more than a decade. It has felt the effects of these changes but there is no assurance that the new government is going to be any better than the old.

Some four months ago General Pangalos was elected president of Greece after he had seized the government as a military leader. His intentions may have been good. He appeared to have felt that he was another Mussolini, but he lacked the Italian dictator's resourcefulness and following. Where Mussolini has a powerful backing, Pangalos had a weak one. He was not able to impress the majority of the Greeks, not even among the military group, with the fact that he deserved unlimited support. Instead of establishing confidence he caused jealousies. If he was able to get hold of the government others considered that there was a chance for them. Naturally his downfall came as a matter of course, and now it remains to be seen whether Greece is going to fare any better under the new order of things.

It still continues to be a military government. A new general has charge and while he doesn't openly aspire to be president he evidently intends to be the controlling power.

Greece has borne its share of troubles in the past decade and yet in spite of all its experiences it doesn't appear to have really profited. It is quite as much unsettled now as it was in previous years and that is what probably gives the former king the chance to think that some day he may go back to the throne, or even may be called back.

Revolutions are by no means new to Greece. They have followed each other like thunderstorms until it would seem to be time for the establishment of an efficient government that would not only be able to successfully combat them but to provide an administration that would eliminate any excuse for them. There is no assurance as yet to believe that the recent coup will accomplish this regardless of the great need for it.

FURTHER DISARMAMENT

Disarmament conferences are not called solely for the purpose of getting together. It is expected that there will be something accomplished when representatives of nations are assembled for the consideration of such a matter and it is invariably the case that the sentiment of the nations which may be involved has much to do with the time for calling such meetings. If the time is propitious well and good, otherwise there is little sense in trying to do the impossible.

Talk of a conference for adding to the accomplishments of the Washington conference is all right but the issuance of a call will depend largely upon the attitude displayed in the countries which are parties thereto. There are intimations that France is not ready to enter into any such extension of limitations. It is known that French sentiment prevented the establishment of certain restrictions which were sought during the Washington conference. They were opposed to having the submarines or the auxiliary craft curbed and there is nothing to indicate that there has been any change of mind in that direction, and yet that is what other nations believe should be done.

Till all are similarly minded there is little prospect of getting anywhere, but there is, of course, nothing to stand in the way of endeavoring to bring France to the proper state of mind in anticipation of such a conference.

FROM SPRINGFIELD TO HARTFORD

An announcement that occasioned much interest was that by the Hartford Courant to the effect that in a few weeks Maurice S. Sherman of Springfield, editor of the Springfield Union, will become associate editor of that paper for the purpose of relieving Charles Hopkins Clark of duties which illness has made it difficult for him to discharge.

It will be recognized that the Courant has made an excellent selection. Editor Sherman having made a name for himself during the many years he has been connected with the Union, which, in various capacities, marks the time since his graduation from Dartmouth. He will be welcomed to the Connecticut newspaper field.

There will of course be regret that this change has become necessary because of the sickness of Editor Clark who has been so long identified with the Courant, so much so that Clark and the Courant have become practically synonymous.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO

Because he had played leading roles in motion pictures Rudolph Valentino was known to millions throughout the country. It was a screen acquaintanceship but his name was on many lips and his features and acting were familiar to the throngs who follow the picture shows. He was a leader in his profession and quickly sprang into public attention and approval. He gained a position and fame that are reserved for only a few.

He has come, played, conquered and died all within a few years and his untimely removal will cause sorrow among the great number who had come to know and admire the manner in which he filled the role of a moving picture star. Probably through no other channel would he and his work have become known to so many people. He established a reputation which will not soon be forgotten.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

When Dexter Haines told me that his California cousin and her husband were coming through the city on their way home from Europe I said at once that I should simply love to meet them. I had heard him speak of them before and I knew that they were interesting people.

"I'm sure that they would like to know you, too," answered Dexter, "but they will be in town only a few hours. Of course, I'll take them to dinner. How would it do for you to dine with us?"

"It's lovely of you to ask me, but I feel as if I had just about invited myself," I laughed. "I tell you what — I'll go with you to the train to meet them, and then you can all come home with me for dinner at our house. That's what I'd like, Dexter."

"But, Lucile, you shouldn't go to the trouble of entertaining my kinsfolk," objected Dexter.

"Oh, it won't be any trouble at all. In a large family like ours two or three guests don't count, and I feel sure that after a long sojourn abroad, a nice simple home-cooked American meal will be acceptable to your cousins. Do say you'll bring them, Dexter."

"You're certainly the queen of hospitality, Lucile, but I can't tell in advance what Gertrude and Gilbert will wish to do."

"No, of course you can't," I said reasonably. "Well just leave it open, and if they feel like coming mother and all of us will be more than delighted to have them."

"But supposing we can't—"

"It will be all right whether you come or not. We always have something fairly good to eat. We won't prepare a banquet," I smilingly remarked, although I was inwardly planning a delightful little dinner menu, and was earnestly hoping that his beloved Gertrude and Gilbert would accept my invitation. I am planning to go to California next winter if possible, and I should love to make a little visit in their home which Dexter has told me is one of the most charming places in Santa Barbara, where all sorts of fascinating people gather.

"Why in the world did you do that?" asked mother peevishly after I had told her that I had asked Dexter to bring his relatives to our house for dinner. "Tilly will still be away, and I don't see any reason anyway why we should have them here. I should think they would rather dine downtown in one of the good hotels."

"They have been eating in hotels for a year, and they would appreciate a change, and I thought this would be such a splendid chance to do something for Dexter, who is always so thoughtful and nice to me. It often seems to me, mother," I was beginning to cry, "that you wish to do anything to help me socially. Sometimes I feel that it isn't worth while for me to try to take my proper place in society as long as my family all—"

"Don't weep, Lucile. Of course if your heart is set upon it we can have the little dinner party. Fannie and I can cook the meal and we can get some one in to wait on table. I suppose you have thought what to have."

"Well, I don't care to have it seem elaborate, mother dear. I think if we could have a really handsome thick beefsteak with fresh mushrooms, new potatoes, asparagus Hollandaise and Cousin Fannie's delicious molded salad. For dessert we could have strawberries and cream with chocolate angel's food. That would be simple and good."

"Simple?" grumbled mother. I laughed and said she was a darling old dear, and she seemed quite pleased, but the night that Dexter's cousins were in town I found her in one of her most trying moods when I came in about midnight.

"What excuse have you to offer, Lucile?" she demanded.

"The California train left earlier than Dex had thought and there wasn't time to come out here for dinner. I had the switchboard girl at Dex's club telephone you. Didn't you get the message?"

"Yes, I got it, and I wasn't surprised that you didn't phone yourself, after all the work you had put Fannie and me to, getting up that expensive dinner. Outrageous!"

"But mother dear, was I responsible for the train time? I myself was so disappointed that Dexter took me to the theater to distract me."

"How nice," said mother sarcastically. I often wish that she were not so difficile.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

NEAR SIGHT

By Francis B. Kellogg, M. D., Pasadena Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Near sighted children are apt to be great readers. They cannot see distinctly at a distance and consequently resort to reading as a substitute for the play and games of their unhandicapped mates. Distinct vision is only possible at the near point.

Myopia, or near sight, unlike other visual defects correctable by glasses, is a disease. Neglected, it is liable to become progressive and lead to blindness.

Thirty odd years ago Dr. Risley, of Philadelphia, stated that in the previous 50 years myopia had been reduced to 50 per cent in this country. He attributed this remarkable improvement to the increased attention to the eyes of school children during that period which resulted in the correction of visual defects by glasses.

Today, in the writer's opinion, based upon over 30 years active experience as an oculist, that 50 per cent reduction has been easily increased to 75 per cent. This has been accomplished by the oculists of the country principally, in their work with the school children.

The visual defects of childhood are often slight but important because of the plastic period of growth and the possibility of development in the wrong direction.

The eyes of children should always be examined by an oculist. He alone is equipped with the facilities, and permitted to use the measures essential to the thorough and scientific examination of a child's eyes. This is only possible by the temporary suspension of the function of accomodation only permissible at the hands of a graduated physician.

The function of accomodation is especially strong in childhood and enters into any examination in which it is active as a misleading factor if now its suspension is essential.

There is a temptation, which is not always resisted, on the part of those outside of the medical profession, to bring this measure into disrepute, claiming that it is injurious to the eyes. This opinion is directly contrary to the facts, and probably is most common among those without scientific training.

The Gorgas Memorial recommends that conscientious parents should take their children to a qualified oculist whenever indications point to a possible eye strain.

Such indications are headache; miscalling words in reading; holds the book too close; nervous symptoms, local or general.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

James R. Sheffield, who is to confer on the Mexican situation with Secretary of State Kellogg in Washington today is just rounding out his first year of service as United States ambassador to Mexico. Previous to entering the diplomatic service a year ago Mr. Sheffield had never held public office, with the exception of a single term in the New York assembly. For many years, however, he had been active in politics in a quiet way. He was an intimate friend of Theodore Roosevelt and has also enjoyed the close friendship of Charles E. Hughes, the former secretary of state. He is a lawyer by profession and for many years has had high standing at the New York bar. Mr. Sheffield is a native of Iowa and it was as private secretary to Senator Allison of that state that he began his career soon after his graduation from Yale.

Mr. and Mrs. Stickleback.

You who sing a mother's praise
Consider now a fish's ways.
—Graywing the Gull.

Graywing the Gull and Reddy Fox were sitting, or rather standing, at the edge of a pool on a marsh just back of the sand dunes of the seashore. Graywing had just shown Reddy a little globe-shaped nest attached to some grass stems in the water. At least Graywing said it was a nest, and Reddy was willing to admit that it looked as if it might be a nest. Reddy wasn't yet quite ready to believe that it was the nest of a fish, however, for no fish were to be seen near it. Just as he said as much, Graywing said, "Here comes the owner of that nest now. It is Mr. Stickleback."

Reddy looked down in the water and, sure enough, he saw a fish coming straight toward that nest. It was a very small fish, hardly three inches long. Reddy would have said it was a minnow. It looked to him like a minnow. Then he saw that there was a second fish. "I suppose," said he, "that one of those is Mrs. Stickleback."

Graywing bobbed his head. "Of course," said he. "Those are Mr. and Mrs. Stickleback. That one going into peared through the little round doorthe nest now is Mrs. Stickleback."

One of these little fish had disappway into the nest. The other one seemed to be keeping guard outside. "Why," demanded Reddy, "did you say that Mr. Stickleback is the owner of that nest? Isn't it just as much Mrs. Stickleback's as his?"

"No," declared Graywing, "it is his. It is all his. He built it, every bit of it. Mrs. Stickleback didn't have anything to do about it, and what is more, she won't have anything to do about it after she has laid her eggs there. That is Mr. Stickleback's nest, and he is mighty proud of it. When you hear anybody giving all the credit for bringing up a family to the mother of the family, just you tell them about Pa Stickleback."

"What is he called Stickleback for?" inquired Reddy.

"Look at him," retorted Graywing. "Look at his back! How would you like to bite down right on that back of his?"

Reddy looked more closely than he had looked before. Right in the middle of his back two spines that looked sharp-pointed and as if they might hurt, stood upright. Just in front of the back fin was a third, shorter and smaller. "Oh!" said Reddy when he saw these, "I guess I know now why he is called Stickleback. I guess that any bigger fish that tried to swallow him would find him rather uncomfortable. Do you mean to tell me that he really built that nest all himself? What makes it stick together?"

"Certainly, he built it all himself," replied Graywing. "Do you think I would have told you so if it wasn't so? He has some kind of sticky stuff which he uses to bind those bits of grass, weed and other green stuff together. I've seen a good many nests of Stickleback's. Sometimes they have one doorway, and sometimes they have two. I think this one has two."

Graywing walked around where he could look across to the back. Then he returned to where Reddy was standing. "Yes," said he, "this one has two doors. If you want to see a good father, and learn something about fathering, you come over here every day for a few days and watch Pa Stickleback."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tribute to Mrs. Austin

Mr. Editor: Mrs. Willis Austin is heart of gold, the disposition of an angel. For the past ten years I have known her to do charity right and left with her time and money. As chairman of the welfare and entertainment committee during the war and since and of the Foreign War Veterans organization. Mrs. Austin has never refused her help to the good cause. She gave the best she had.

Monday's Bulletin mentions the fact that a republican leader, a lady, was needed. There was not a woman more qualified than dear Mrs. Austin. She had charge of the suffrage drive in which I worked at the time in Norwich and surrounding towns. With the support of Mrs. Austin financially, and at her direction all the representatives in New London county were interviewed and all of them admired and envied her knowledge of politics. And she was a fluent speaker. During the war at one of the biggest liberty loan drives we put over in Norwich Mrs. Austin was the principal speaker. Mrs. Austin overworked during the war drives and also afterwards. Last winter she came personally to the Buckingham Memorial and helped out the auxiliary with a fine donation of money and clothes. God bless her; also all her friends who help for those boys who cannot help themselves.

Her friend in sorrow.

Face Disfigured With Itchy Eczema Cuticura Healed

"Eczema broke out in blotches on my chin. It was in a rash at first but later formed little blisters. It itched and burned causing loss of sleep, and I scratched a great deal of the time. Scratching caused eruptions, and my face was disfigured. I had the trouble about a year before I found anything that helped me.

"I tried many other remedies but got no relief. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me the first time I used them. I continued the treatment and in three months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Doris M. Grant, R. F. D. 2, Box 54, Berwick, Me., March 30, 1926.

Stomach Troubles Are Due to Acidity

Tells of Pleasant Home Treatment to Bring Swift Relief.

So-called Stomach Troubles—indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, sourness, etc., are, in probably nine cases out of ten, evidence of "too much acid in the stomach" souring the food, causing the formation of gas and starting acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes a full, oppressive burning feeling known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining. Get rid of Gas and Acidity, and you get rid of indigestion.

To stop or prevent the sourness and gas, to neutralize the stomach acids and keep the stomach sweet and free from indigestion, a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia should be taken in a little water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, pain or acidity is felt. This quickly sweetens the stomach, neutralizes the acidity, stops the pain and is harmless and inexpensive to use.

Bisurated Magnesia, powder or tablets only, can be obtained from any drug store and its daily use keeps the stomach in fine condition, enabling it to do its work without the aid of artificial digestants.

It is alleged that on June 23, 1926, the New Jersey man's machine ran into the bottling works' car from the rear on Pequot avenue, New London, doing $2,000 damage to the Nutmeg company's machine and destroying soda water bottles and beverages which it was carrying to the extent of $300.

Fannie Miller of Waterford, a minor, brings suit through her natural guardian, Abraham Miller, against Louis J. Saul of New York, and Lean Siegel of Hartford, for $5,000 damages for injuries received in an automobile accident June 26, 1926 on Douglas hill, Waterford, on the New London-Colchester highway. Miss Miller was a passenger in Saul's automobile which was going up the hill when it was in collision with the Siegel car which was coming down hill. SEEKS INJUNCTION ON MASON'S ISLAND TRAFFIC

A legal contest over alleged trespassing on Mason's Island will reach the superior court for this county, according to a suit that was filed here Tuesday at the court clerk's office and is returnable in September.

Helen E. Dodge of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is the plaintiff against the Mason's Island company, seeks an injunction and $2,000 damages to restrain the defendant from entering her land and for such further relief as shall seem in equity to be just in the premises.

It is alleged that the plaintiff is the owner of a certain parcel of land with buildings thereon stand, located on the southwest end of Mason's Island. It is further alleged that since July, 1916, the defendants and their officers, servants, agents, and employes, at the direction of the defendants have repeatedly entered upon her land and knocked down and demolished fences, gates and other obstructions that the plaintiff had established to prevent them from trespassing on her land.

The acts of trespassing consist of a large amount of traffic by means of motor cars and motor trucks over the plaintiff's land and close to the cottage she has for a summer residence, and also the placing and maintenance of a large number of water pipes on the land above the surface.

The wrongful acts of the defendants have already caused great damage to her property and if they are allowed to continue, such acts will work irreparable injury to land and property of the plaintiff.

LYME CONGREGATIONALISTS CELEBRATE 200TH ANNIVERSARY

The First Congregational church of Lyme celebrated the two-hundredth anniversary of its founding Sunday afternoon with fitting and exceedingly interesting exercises.

The church building is situated on a hill in the center of that part of the town of Lyme known as Hamburg. It has a background of tall trees and overlooks the picturesque arm of the Connecticut river called Hamburg cove. The church is of plain design with little attempt at ornamentation but both inside and out it is in good taste and has a good deal of old time charm.

When the organ prelude began the building was crowded to the doors and many were disappointed in not being able to get inside the building. The prayer of invocation was made by the pastor, H. B. Morrell, a student at Yale Theological seminary and the Rev. J. C. Gavin of the Lyme Baptist church read scripture. Miss Ola Rankin, contralto, then sang "For Just This Day." After a prayer and a hymn the address of welcome was made by the pastor who stressed the opportunity of paying homage to a worthy past by the present congregation.

Judge William Marvin, a deacon of the church and one of its strong pillars, then read a history of the founding and progress of the church.

His address was exhaustive of the subject, but Judge Marvin was successful in eliminating from his discourse everything but the essentials and at the same time selecting incidents in the story of the church that were both illuminating and interesting. Among these were his mention of the fact that more than one quarter of the present membership descended from Benjamin Lord and Richard Ely, two men who were especially prominent in the founding 200 hundred years ago.

Rev. Sherrod Soule of Hartford followed Judge Marvin, speaking of the history and customs of the colonies in relation to the church of that time and of the changed conditions that have caused the decline of so many country churches.

The next speaker was Rev. H. M. Burr of Springfield who told of his recollections of his father, Dr. Burr, the former pastor. His address, for all its light touch, brought up very clearly the difference between the present generation of churches and ministers and generations of the last century.

He was followed by Senator Hiram Bingham who spoke of the noble past of New England and its churches and held high hope for the future of the country church through a revival in agriculture in the New England states. He closed by reading several extracts from speeches by President Coolidge.

On Monday George E. Main left for New London to visit his son, George Main, who is in the Lawrence Memorial hospital where he recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

SWEDISH YOUNG PEOPLE CONVENE AT CROMWELL

The tabernacle issue was laid aside at the anual meeting of the Swedish State Young People's Federation held Saturday at Cromwell. Delegates from Southern New England, New York and New Jersey were present, and voted to investigate further sites. The proposal to purchase Wangum lodge, a building situated in Wethersfield and owned by the Hartford Y. W. C. A., was turned down. The proposition will come up for discussion at the November meeting, which will probably be held at the Swedish Christian orphanage in Cromwell.

At the conference Saturday and Sunday, 3,500 were present at the gatherings. About 6,000 meals were served during the last two days of the conference. A collection of $1,350 was taken at the afternoon meeting. This sum will be donated to the Swedish Christian Orphanage.

CONTINUANCE TAKEN IN COLCHESTER THEFT CASE

Samuel Mousset and Louis Sala of Hartford were presented before Justice of the Peace R. E. Baker at Colchester Monday night charged with the theft of $400 worth of automobile tires and tubes and the case continued for one week. The two men were arrested at Hartford by the Hartford authorities on request of Sergeant Clifford N. Gorgas of the Groton state police barracks following an investigation into the robbery of the garage of Charles Wehler of Colchester on August 16.

FEWER EGGS IN 42ND WEEK AT STORRS

There was a slight decline in egg production during the forty-second week of the Storrs egg laying contest, the 1,400 pullets laying 4,826 eggs, or slightly over forty-four per cent. This is eighty-six eggs less than last week, and fifty-nine eggs less than the corresponding week a year ago. The contest flock laid a grand total of 195,247 eggs in the first forty-two weeks of competition. This is an average of 140 eggs per bird.

White Leghorns are outlaying all other varieties at Storrs at the present time, and during the forty-second week this variety monopolized the honor roll taking every position. The entry of George B. Ferris from Grand Rapids, Mich., made the best score for the week with a lay of 37 eggs. Wilgerodt Bros. pen from Red Bank, N. J., took second place for the week with a score of fifty-three eggs. Following close behind to tie for third place were the entries of Toivonen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Pa., and Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., each with a score of fifty-two eggs. The fourth best score for the week was made by the entry of Adam Glass of Mobile, Ala.

The honor of being the first pen to attain the 2,000 egg mark in the fifteenth contest will probably go to the entry of Toivonen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Pa., and they should pass that figure in the course of the forty-third week. These ten pullets have laid a total of 1978 eggs in the first forty-two weeks, and at the present rate of production should go by the 2,000 mark with little difficulty. Two other Leghorn pens which should also reach this total in the near future are the entries of R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y., with a lay of 1930 eggs, and Dudley Poultry Farm from Webster, Mass., with a score of 1940 eggs.

There were two changes in the leading pens of the "All Other Varieties" class. The Dominique entry of Thurlow Travis from Peekskill, N. Y., went up into second position, displacing the Ancona entry of F. M. Wistner from Monroe, Mich. The White Rock entry of S. Bradford Allyn from Holliston, Mass., went up into third place.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes

The Locusts West Cornwall, Conn.	1694
Winlay White Wyandottes Colebrook, Conn.	1674

PLAYGROUNDS INDUSTRIAL WORK IS EXHIBITED

The industrial exhibit of the Norwich playgrounds, which opened on Tuesday in the Reid & Hughes Co. window, is attracting much attention from citizens interested in this work. The exhibit has been arranged under the direction of Miss Katherine Farrell, who has been in charge of the industrial work of the playgrounds during the season.

The exhibit has been placed in the Shetucket street window of the Boston store and is one that will attract the eye of the passerby. In the center of the display is an Afghan shawl which has been donated to the United Workers by the playgrounds. A double row of dolls, which have been made and dressed by the children, has been arranged in the front of the window. This part of the display is the work of the younger children of the grounds and deserves much commendation.

Sweaters and other knitted articles are to be seen in the rear of the window. These represent much time and labor spent on them and speak well for their owners. The dresses which have been made at the playgrounds round out the display for 1926, which compares favorably with that of previous years.

The local recreation commission appreciates the efforts of William Cruickshank and Morgan J. Cronin who have made this display of playground industrial work possible.

Through an error it was stated that basketry has been carried on by the playgrounds during the year. This is wrong as there has been nothing of this sort in the playgrounds this season.

The exhibit will be on display until Thursday and no doubt a large number of people will take advantage of the opportunity to view the playground industrial activities of the season.

Cleanup Work Needed

If the chipped fragments of concrete and a length of insulating material remain for one more day at the foot of one of the White Way poles on Franklin square, it will be just a week since these fragments were left there to ornament the main business street of the city after employes of the city gas and electric department finished a repair job at the pole, which is about the dividing line between the Perkins candy store and the Cosgrove shoe store. In the course of the repair work it was necessary to chop up some of the gutter to get at the conduit where the cable runs, and the rubbish made by the job has remained piled up at the foot of the pole since then, except what has been kicked out into the street by passing automobile traffic.

STATUS OF THE RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSY IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Details of the campaign for congressional amendment of the religious clauses of the constitution are still under consideration by the Catholic Episcopate, though the Episcopate is admittedly dubious as to results, because it believes that all deputies in the new congress are pledged in advance to support President Calles' religious policy.

In a statement today the Episcopate expressed pleasure over the attitude taken by Aaron Saenz, the Mexican foreign minister, as reported from San Antonio. Senor Saenz is quoted in an interview bearing on the religious situation as saying he thought that when laws or constitutional provisions were inimical to the best interest of the country they should be repealed or amended.

The hope was voiced that Senor Saenz's declarations might have some influence on congress, and the statement says, "some slight ray of hope is thrown into the situation."

The differences between the Episcopate and President Calles regarding registration of priests, it is pointed out, involved the fundamentals Catholic principle that the pope is the supreme spiritual authority of the church, and no other such authority can be recognized by Catholics.

The Episcopate believes that the president's religious regulations and the registration of priests give to the government such intimate and detailed jurisdiction and authority over priestly functions, church management and religious affairs as to destroy the life of the Catholic church and make the Mexican government, and not the pope, the authority over Catholics and the church in Mexico.

DENOUNCED PRACTICE OF TIPPING BARBERS

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The practice of tipping the barber was denounced "as a nasty, nauseating system that tended to lower the barber to the level of the lackey," by James C. Shanessy, of Indianapolis, general president of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America, in the interview here today. Journeymen barbers' locals in the United States, Porto Rico and Canada are affiliated with the organization of which Mr. Shanessy is president.

"No honest barber will look for the handout," he declared, "as it lowers the professional respectability of the trade."

GOODMAN, M'CARTHY, SKELLY, MURPHY REACH FINALS IN CADDY TOURNAMENT

The aspiring Sarasens and Farrells battled through 18 holes of golf at the Norwich Golf club Tuesday morning with the result that Goodman and McCarthy will meet in the finals this morning in the senior division of the Caddy tournament at the club being played this week. Skelly and Murphy will clash for the title in the Class B finals.

In Tuesday morning's semi-final round, Goodman had an easy time with Brauman beating him 6 and 4. Goodman outdrove his opponent and his approach shots and putting were more steady. Goodman took a 45 out and a 49 coming in for a gross score of 94. In the other semi-finalist McCarthy beat R. Moody, medalist of the senior division and 3. This match the senior division 3 and 2. This match was in trouble on several of the long holes and McCarthy's steady playing pulled him through.

The match between Skelly and Shorty Gilman the junior division was the feature match of the semi-final round, Skelly beating Shorty on the 18th hole, 1 up. These two midget caddies played with all the science and strategy of elder players each paying strict attention to the game and taking their golf very seriously. It was a pleasure to watch these two youngsters get off drives that do credit to some of their elders and they handled their iron shots equally as well.

Another good match in the junior division has been Murphy and Frankie O'Neil. Murphy winning 3 and 2. O'Neil lost the match on the fifteenth hole when he had a chance to even the match. Both youngsters played well throughout the match.

The finals will be played this morning at 9:30 and no little interest is manifest around the caddy shack in the coming matches. To hear the youngsters talk one might think Hagen and Bobby Jones were the principals. Each caddy has picked his man, with Goodman being the favorite to take the senior title while Skelly is the majority choice for the junior crown.

SPRUCE LODGE BOYS WERE IN THE RIGHT

When the manager of the Sachems went in his account of the game between his club and the team representing the Spruce Lodge at Bozrah appears that the manager told only his side of the story regarding the game. The members of the Spruce Lodge team feel that an injustice has been done them in which they are perfectly right according to their account of the game. They claim that the Sachems appeared at their diamond and that after five innings had been played the manager of the Sachems declared his team had played enough baseball for the afternoon as it was getting late. He took his team from the field without giving the home club the turn at bat. He then demanded the full amount of the guarantee which the Spruce Lodge management refused and paid the Sachems on a percentage basis for the number of innings played which was more than the Spruce Lodge team claims he was entitled to or that it looks as though the Spruce Lodge boys were in the right in the matter.

CONNECTICUT BOY PLAYING NICE GOLF IN ENGLAND

COOMBE HILL, Surrey, Eng., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Charles Sweeney of the Canterbury school of New Milford, Connecticut, who with his brother represent America in the boys' amateur golf championship, scored a fine victory in the second round today and the critics say he has a very fair chance to win the trophy. He hits a great ball off the tee and makes powerful play with his irons.

Robert Sweeney, the younger brother, was beaten in the first round by G. J. Summers of Aberdeen after a very hard contest which Summers won on the 20th green.

Fred Waters, a Scotch boy, made a hole-in-one on the 17th green in the play today the first time the feat has ever been noted in the boys' championship play here.

CUBS TAKE BOTH ENDS OF TWIN BILL FROM PHILLIES

CHICAGO, Aug. 24—(AP)—Heavy batting by Chicago in both games of a double-header enabled them to down the Philadelphians twice by scores of 9 to 4 and 9 to 0, respectively. Chicago's pitchers were in fine form, Root allowing but six hits in the initial contest, while Blake shut out the visitors on seven hits. Hack Wilson bagged his nineteenth home run of the season in the second game while Hartnett knocked the ball over the wall twice in the second contest. The scores:

YOUNG BEAUREGARD GETTING IN TRIM FOR YOUNG BRADLEY

Word comes from Camp Devens where Al Beauregard, formerly Young Coulon, ex-flyweight champion of Connecticut is stationed that he is putting in some hard training work in preparation for his coming bout with Dark Cloud Bradley of Holyoke at the boxing show to be given on September 1 at Parish hall by the Army-Navy club of Taftville.

Beauregard has long sought this chance to mix with Bradley for Bradley was the one who handed a beating to Pinkie Silverberg who had taken the crown from Coulon. If Beauregard can get the verdict over Bradley he feels sure that he can regain the title if Silberberg can be signed as an opponent in a future bout. The state athletic commission recognizes Silverberg as the state champion in the flyweight class although Silverberg was beaten by Bradley in a Hartford bout.

Regardless of the outcome of the bout the fans will see one of the fastest bouts staged here in recent years. Bradley is fast while Beauregard is a slugger. It will be a match where cleverness will oppose terrific hitting power.

Mingo and Labenski of Lake Street and Sheridan of Hobart Avenue were the fancy diving stars of the afternoon while Eddie also did good work for the Elizabeth Streeters and Dosch did well for the Falls.

ATHLETIC MEET AT FAIR HAS SANCTION OF A. A. U.

The athletic events at the Norwich fair on Sept. 8th being arranged by the Duwell A. A., give promise of being one of the largest and biggest attraction at the local fair in many years. The athletic program which includes eight field events and five or six bouts of good amateur boxing will without a doubt attract many well known stars to Norwich on that day.

During the past few weeks the Duwell A. A. which is in charge of the events has become affiliated with the Amateur Athletic union and will run the events at the fair under the sanction of the A. A. U.

The field events will be so divided that while they will attract well known men here, they will also give the boys in eastern Connecticut a chance to compete under fair competition, another feature of the field events which give the youngsters a chance to break into the athletic world.

The following is the program of field events:

Open A. A. U. events: 100-yd. dash, 1-2 mile run, 1 mile run.

Closed to eastern Conn.: 100-yd. dash, 1-2 mile run, 1 mile run.

Playground events closed to eastern Connecticut.: 400-yd. relay, 100-yd. dash.

During the past summer field events have played an important part in the playground program, finally a relay team being selected which includes the fastest boys in the city. It was intended to take the local relay team to New Haven with the Duwell track team to take part in the police meet, but at the last minute it was found necessary to leave the boys at home and it is with the idea of giving the youngsters some incentive to work for during the playground season, that this year and possibly the years to come a team of athletes will be selected to compete against teams from the New London, Willimantic, and possibly Putnam playgrounds. Anyone desiring to enter any of the field events can get entry blanks by applying to the Sports Manager of the Duwell A. A.

POWER MEN AND WARRIORS WILL CLASH TONIGHT

The Eastern Conn. Power Co., and the sensational young Warriors tonight will play off the tie game of last week. Those who saw these teams battle for six innings on last Thursday evening, the best either could do, getting off with a tie game, know as to what kind of a game to expect tonight. While the Power Co. had mowed down all opposition with little or no interference at all, it remained for these youngsters who only this year were playing in the Junior Twilight league, to come along and stop and hold the Power Co. even in their triumphant march to the 1926 championship. Not only did they hold the E. C. P. to a tie, but they should have defeated them, as they had piled up an early lead which they would easily have held had they been more hardened in experience as their older opponents.

Taking each man on the Warrior roster individually, the experienced baseball fan can see a great future ahead for him, provided that they do not get the disease of an inflammed cranium, this ruination of many a promising youngster.

Couture, one of the most promising youngsters in the league, will again twirl against the Power Co. Couture pitched against the team last week and kept what few hits they did get well scattered.

Mgr. Holland will use either Simcox or Greene in tonight's game.

DAVIS ISSUES CHALLENGE TO TUG-OF-WAR TEAMS

Baseball, football, fighting and challenges in other lines of sports are common, being heard of nearly every day, but when Captain Homer Davis comes forth speaking for his East Side tug-of-war team, challenging any team in eastern Connecticut to pull against his squad at the Norwich fair on Sept. 8th, it establishes a new record in the line of challenges.

Davis claims to have under his wing a team of heavyweights which he says can pull any five men off their feet, and he does not restrict the challenge to Norwich, but openly defies the whole eastern section of the state to produce a team to compete against his gang as he calls them. He states that should more than one team accept this challenge, so much the better, as it will make the competition more keen.

Davis in announcing that he would like to hear from anyone in this section of the state, mentions the State hospital, Jewett City, Submarine Base, West Side, Taftville, New London and Greeneville, as being prospects to furnish opposition for his heavyweights.

RICKARD GETS ASSISTANCE OF QUAKER CITY PROMOTERS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24—(AP)—Tex Rickard will have three Philadelphia fight promoters to assist him in putting on the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship battle at the sesqui-centennial stadium September 23.

All differences among the local promoters were ironed out today after a conference with Rickard and will do all they can to assist him in making the Dempsey-Tunney bout a success.

The third promoter is Jules Aronson, who was selected by Rickard last week to help him with local arrangements.

Rickard today received his Pennsylvania license as a promoter of bouts in this state.

As soon as the necessary changes are made in the building the tickets for the fight will be shipped here and put on sale. Ticket prices will be $3.30, $5.50, $7.70, $16.50, $22 and $27.50. These prices include federal tax.

Hundreds of applications for tickets have already been received, Rickard announced.

OCCUM MAN WITH THEIVING SAILORS BOUND OVER IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24.—Police Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh with the assistance of a man who was robbed, Mike Selvagna, a tailor, who also maintained a series of lockers in which sailors could deposit their civilian clothes for use when they came to this city, succeeded in getting the most dangerous gang of criminals that has been rounded up here in a long time. The gang is composed of three young men, George M. Aaron and Allen Ogle, who were discharged from the coast guard as undesirable members of the crew of the ship Camden, also Frank Benoit, who claims to have a residence in Occum, but who has been working at carnivals as a laborer recently. The men robbed the lockers at the Salvagna place of clothing valued at more than $300. Most of the plunder was recovered, but there is much other clothing, shoes, toilet articles and similar property that was not found and which will probably not be located. The gang was equipped to follow the work in which they were engaged, for they had blackjacks and searchlights, a lot of keys including a master key that could be used to effect an entrance almost anywhere when a lock was used. The gang has made complete confessions of their doings and acknowledged their crimes. In the police court this morning, probable cause was found to hold them for burglary in the night season. They were bound over for trial in the superior court at the September term.

TRYING TO LOSE A CAT PROVES NOT SO SIMPLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24—Mrs. Barney Kosakow had a cat that she didn't want, so she secured her brother to take the cat a few blocks away and drop it where it would have to seek shelter and food. Agent Sweezy of the Humane society happened along as the brother did his trick and grabbed him and presented him in court. Then he was given to understand by Judge Prince that abandonment of a homeless animal in that way would not be tolerated. The judge told the brother that such conduct was a cruelty and that provision to put a stop to it had been made in the statutes of this state. He then suspended judgment on the youth that the latter might learn wisdom from his experience.

MAN AND WOMAN HELD FOR INCITING A STRIKE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 24—Samuel Sietsky, 72 Connecticut avenue, and Mrs. Bessie King, Chesterfield, are persistent in their efforts to precipitate a strike among the garment workers at the factory, 664 Bank street, so persistent in fact that they are likely to be severely disciplined in the police court if they continue their efforts to cause discontent among the men and women workers at the clothing factory. Several days ago Sietsky and the King woman went to the factory and went among the workers informing them that they were underpaid and that they were working too many hours. The efforts of the couple to bring about trouble caused the police to be summoned and Sietsky and Mrs. King were arrested. They escaped punishment in the police court for that offense, but in the morning they decided to make another attempt to bring about a strike. Sietsky and Mrs. King went to the factory, but instead of entering the building they remained on the sidewalk, conversing in front of the factory and at other times on either side of the building, where they talked long and loud in their native tongue, and, according to the police endeavored to incite trouble. When a telephone message was received at the police station, Sergeant Nelson Smith and Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman Clarence Martin were sent to the factory and finding Sietsky and Mrs. King loitering about the building and apparently talking loud enough for the workers to hear them in their call for a strike, the couple was arrested. They were released upon furnishing bail of $500 each, and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

He could not remember anything that happened, but he was allowed to keep walking, in order that he might get out of town. John Falvey said he was on the way to Norwich when apprehended. He just got drunk, he said. He was allowed to continue to the Rose of New England.

The police of Greenwich communicated with the New London police this morning, stating that Frank Habersham, 13, colored, who claimed to reside at 13 Thames street, this city, was a runaway, and requested that the parents of the boy be notified of his arrest. The victory of the Submarine Base brings about a tie for first place. The tie will be played off within a few days, but probably not earlier than next week. The lone tally was scored in the seventh inning when with the bases crowded, Cranker, Kacey moundsman, winged a batter and forced the winning run across the plate. The game was witnessed by the largest crowd of the season and the sailors were accompanied by the band of the U. S. S. Camden. The youth sustained a fractured right leg and is now a patient at Home Memorial hospital.

The cyclist was riding on Bank street and at the corner of Truman street, the truck appeared, overtaking the boy-rider. Katz, John street, and the other at the Green cafeteria. Green street, frequented by colored patrons.
